PREFACE.

In compiling, from the Manuscript Works of several Persian and Arabian Authors, whatsoever they had written on the Geography of the Eastern World, I found that, in a variety of detached extracts, I had imperceptibly translated almost half of that treatise which I now offer to the Publick as complete in an English version as the obscurities and imperfections of the original would admit.

Besides the intrinsick merits of the work, its authenticity and antiquity induced me to regard it as the most important of all compositions on the subject of Oriental Geography. Abulfeda informs us, that Edrisi, Ebn Khordadbah, and many other writers of high reputation, have only traced, on paper, the footsteps of EBN HAUKAL*, who, it appears from his own words, had actually visited most of the places which he describes.

Although the exact epoch of his birth and death is still unknown to me, I have not hesitated to announce EBN HAUKAL as an author of the tenth century. That he wrote before the building of Cairo, we learn from his account of Egypt in the following work, page 30; and after the accession of ABDARBAHMAN, who, in his time, governed Andalus, or Spain, appears from p. 28. The foundation of modern Cairo was laid in the year 908 of the Christian Æra, and ABDARBAHMAN assumed the government of Spain in the year 902 of the same Æra, or of the Hegira 290. Thus we may ascertain, that EBN HAUKAL flourished before the year 968, and after the year 902; and we cannot err considerably if we place him in the middle, or, perhaps, in the beginning, of the tenth century †. He is styled, by Edriss and Abulfeda, simply

t This date is confirmed by another passage in our Author's description of Maweralnahr, or Transoxania, page 235. He there informs us, that he conversed with a respectable personage, who had served in the armies of NASSER AHMED. This Prince, of the Haukal, or ابن حوقل Ebn Haukal: But it appears, from one copy of his work deposited among the Oriental manuscripts in the Library at Leyden*, that his name was ابن حوقل Abi L'Cassem Ebn Haukal.

The work itself, in the original Arabick, according to the Catalogue of the Leyden Library, above quoted, is called with the Leyden Library, above quoted, is called Kitab al Mesalek al Memalek. The Persian translation which I have used, and the copy preserved at Eton †, bear the same title, with the omission of the Arabick article, and (in my copy) the addition of the copulative, thus: کتاب مسالک و مبالک. Under this name the ancient Tarikh, or Chronicle of Tabari, quotes it in a passage which I shall hereafter adduce.

Samanian family, became Sovereign of Maweralnahr, Anno Hegiræ 301, (A. D. 913.) If EBN HAUKAL could have spoken with a contemporary of NASSER AHMED, one who had been of sufficient age to attend him in his battles, we cannot, reasonably, assign a later date to the composition of this work than the middle of the tenth century.

[†] Eton Oriental, MSS. No. 418.—This manuscript is an octavo volume, containing above three hundred pages, written in an uniform, but very difficult and inaccurate hand; most of the proper names wanting their discritical points. My own copy, which I purchased

It is probable, however, that it bore a second, or more descriptive and ample title; for Mons. D'Herbelot mentions the work of Ebn Haukal as entitled "Giagrafiah fi Marefat al Boldan*: And in the Leyden Catalogue, we find, after Al Mesalek al Memalek, these additional names:

The words Mcsalek Memalek seem to form either the whole or part of the titles to many other Geographical manuscripts. Among the various original treatises which furnished materials to Hamdallah Mustoufi, the celebrated Persian geographer, in the composition of his Nozahet al Coloub, he with many other MSS, about three years ago, is a large and thin octave volume, containing two hundred and twelve pages: it is imperfect at the end; but on a collation with the Eton MS, appears only to want the last leaf. The character is sufficiently neat; but the proper names are must inaccurately written, and whole lines, in various places, are without a discritical point.

* Bibliot. Orient. art. Haucal. As this article contains a very just account of our Author's defects, I shall give it entire:—" Haucal,"—Ebn Haucal,—" Auteur d'un livre intitule Giagrafiah fi Marefat al Boldan. C'est une Geographie fort prolixe; Abulfoda qui ie cite souvent, se plaint de ce qu'il n'a pas designé assez clairement les noms propres des lieux, faute de sétre servi des voyelles qui servent à en fixer la prononciation. Cet Auteur est aussi fort defecteux en ce qu'il ne marque ni les longitudes ni les latitudes des lieux dont il parle, defaut qui lui est commun avec la plûpart de geographes de l'Orient, qui ont laisse ce soin aux astronomes."

enumerates, in the Preface to that most excellent work, the "Mesalek al Memalek, by Abi Cassem Abdallah ben Khordad, of Khorasan *."

A geographical book, entitled Al Mesalek ou al Memalek (of which Mons. D'HERBELOT thinks the author may have been Abou Ali, surnamed Marakshi), is quoted by Ebn al Vardi, in his Kheridet al Ajaieb.

The learned Graves, who published Abulfeda's Chorasmia and Maweralnahr ‡, mentions the celebrated composition of Edrisi, whom we generally style the Nubian Geographer, as entitled Memalek al Mesalek, although it bore many other names, which Hartmann enumerates in his admirable commentary on this work §. Indeed the name Mesalek al Memalek seems to have signified an Universal Geography, or, rather, a Work describing several Countries; for Abulfeda complains, "That "the greater number of those books which are called Al "Mesalek ou al Memalek (of Countries and Kingdoms) treat "only, with accuracy, of those regions wherein the Mussul-"man religion is established," &c.*

مسالك الممالك بتالبف ابي قاسم عبدالله بي خرداد خواساني "

[†] Bibliot. Orient. article Marakeschi; yet I suspect, that in this place, the learned author of the Bibliotheque Orientale has fallen into some error: he seems, however, to have corrected it in another article. See Mesalek.

Such were the observations I made, while uncertain to whom I should ascribe the composition of a manuscript treatise which fell into my hands about three years ago, bearing the same title, but without any author's name. Although the copy preserved in the publick Library at Leyden furnished the name of Abi L'Cassem Ebn Haukal, yet I was not, when visiting that magnificent collection in the year 1794, interested in a minute examination of any particular volume, and therefore could not afterwards ascertain whether my manuscript was a Persian translation of his work; and the copy deposited in the College Library at Eton, wanted, like my own, the author's name. But a comparison of the various extracts given by Abulfeda in his account of Khorasmia and Maweralnahr, from EBN HAUKAL's book, with those which describe the same places in my manuscript, sufficiently demonstrates the identity of their author. I shall refer the reader, in particular, to ABULFEDA's account of Tuncat, the chief place of Ailak, near Chaje or Shash; its numerous gates; water running in the city; its wall to prevent the incursions of the Turks, reaching from the mountain called شابلغ Shabaleg, to the valley of Chaje; the river named Ailak *, &c. All these the reader will find more fully described by EBN HAUKAL in the following work (pages 266, 267); with a variation occasioned merely by the different collocation of diacritical points in the names of Tuncat and Shabaleg. The account of Naksheb and of Kash, as extracted by Abulfedat from Ebn Haukal's book, will be found to correspond exactly with the description of those cities given in the following translation, pages 259, 260, &c. A comparison of these passages will convince the reader, that the Mesalek al Memalek, of which an English version is now before him, must be the work of EBN HAUKAL, so often quoted by ABULFEDA.

^{*} Chrasm. et Maweraln. p. 49. † Chorasm. Gr. p. 43.

But there are some more striking passages, which (as the work of Abulfeda may not always be at hand) I shall present in the original Arabick, with a literal translation.

ABULF. PAGE 19.

"EBN HAUKAL relates, that in the mountains of Al Botem there is a certain cavern, in which, when every passage for air is stopped up, a thick vapour arises, resembling fire by night and smoke in the day-time; and this is the nushader (or sal ammoniac.) Nobody, with safety, can enter this cave, unless covered with thick garments fitting close to his body, and he must be expeditious in taking away the nushader. The vapour moves from place to place, and they seek for it by digging until it appears. This vapour would not be

" noxious to those who approach it, if there were not an arched house or vault erected, to prevent its evaporation."

The reader who is acquainted with the very vague and inaccurate manner of Eastern writers, both in their quotations and translations, must acknowledge this to be the same passage given in the following work, page 264.

Another extract will be sufficient to prove the identity of our author with the EBN HAUKAL, quoted by ABULFEDA, page 45.

قال ابن حوقل و رايت علي باب من ابواب سهرقند يسهي باب كش صفحة من حديد و عليها كتيبت يزعم اهلها انها بالحهرية و الباب من بنا تبع ملك اليهن فان من ضنعا الي سهرقند الغ فرسخ و ان ذلك مكتوب من ايام تبع قال ثم وقعت فتنه بسهرقند في ايام مقامي بها و احترف الباب و فهبت الكتابه ثم اعاد محهد بن لقهان بن نصير بن احهد الساماني عهارة الباب و لم يعد الكتابة

"EBN HAUKAL says-I saw on a gate at Samarcand, "which is called the Gate of Kash, an iron plate with an "inscription. The people report this to have been in the Hamariah character, and that the gate was erected by the Tobba, the king of Yemen, (Arabia Felix); that (the inscription signifies) "From Sanaa to Samarcand is a thousand farsang." This was written in the days of the Tobba. Then, says he (Ebn Haukal), a riot or tumult having happened at Samarcand, during my stay there, the gate was burnt and the inscription destroyed. After that, Mohammed Ebn Locman Ebn Nasir Ebn Ahmed, the Samanian*, caused "the gate to be rebuilt, but did not restore the inscription."

In page 254 of the following work, this passage will be found with less variation from the original than Persian translations generally exhibit: and as it leads to a curious unevdote in Oriental history, an article of the Appendix is devoted to its illustration.

The Author of the Ajaieb al Boldan (Fifth Climate) also quotes EBN HAUKAL on this subject; and he seems to have used the original work in Arabick rather than our Persian translation: his words are,

ابن خوتل خوید که نوبتی بسپرتند رسیدم و بربابی از ابواب شهر که آنوا باب کش کفتندی صفحهٔ از حدید دیدم و بر آن صفحهٔ کلیهٔ چند سنتود بود و اهل سپرتند کهان داشتند که آن کلیات را اهل حی نکاشته اند و بانی باب تبع ملک یهن است و ههو گوید که در آن مدت در سپرتند ساکن بودم فتنهٔ روی نهود و آن بابرا باحرات معدوم ساختند

EBN HAUKAL says, "Once I went to Samarcand, and upon "one of the Gates of that city, which they call the Gate of "Kash, I saw a plate of iron, and on it were inscribed some "words; and the people of Samarcand were of opinion that "this inscription had been written by the people of Homer "(or the Hamyarites), and that the builder of that gate had been the Tobba, or King of Yemen." The same person (EBN HAUKAL) also says, "at the time when I resided in "Samarcand, a tumult or riot happened, and that gate was destroyed by fire."

Having mentioned in the beginning of this Preface, that the Mesalek Memalek is quoted in the ancient Chronicle of Tabari, as the reader who learns from Pococke*, D'Herbelot*, or Ockley $\frac{1}{2}$, that the venerable historian died early in the tenth century $\frac{1}{2}$, will not readily believe that he could have quoted the work of Ebn Haukal, whom I have assigned to the middle of the same century, and consequently supposed to have existed several years after Tabari, although it is possible that they might have been contemporaries. But the Chronicle of Tabari underwent a Persian translation; which work, as it was performed by a man of learning and ingenuity, (vizier to one of the Samanian princes), and enriched by him with much curious additional matter, M. D'Herbelot prefers to the original Arabick. This, indeed, is not

D. 963), probably very soon after the time of Ebn Haukal. To the Persian translator I would attribute that quotation from the Mesalek al Memalek, which thus occurs in Tabari's History of the Virgin Mary; and of her flight, with the infant Jesus, to a village in the territories of Damascus.

گویند که آن دید هم از شام بود از غوطه کمشف و اندر کتاب مسالک و مبالک ایدونست اندر خبر شهرها که در جهان نزهت و خرسی چار جایست یکی شهر سغد سهرتند و دیکر غوطه دمشف و سیوم نهر الایله و آن بصرهست و چهارم شعب بوان و این پارس است از روستاها شهر شیراز پس این دید که مربم عیسی را آنجا بپرورد از روستاها غوطه است دهیست بر سر بلندی

Now the place in which Mary nursed Jesus, was a village of the Ghoutah (of Damascus) situated on the summit of a rising ground," &c.

perfect and accurate text might be obtained; this, if correctly translated and illustrated from other Asiatick compositions, the Biblical records, the classicks of Greece and Rome, and the more modern productions of European writers, would form a complete body of Oriental History and Antiquities; since it comprehends not only the Persian and Arabian annals, but the most ancient traditions of the Jews, the Egyptians, and the Greeks.

"The Soghd of Samarcand is one of those places esteemed the most delightful in the world; these are the Soghd of Samarcand, the Ghoutah of Damascus, the Nahar al Ablah, or river Ablah*, near Basrah, and Shaab Bouan in Persia; that Ebn Haukal says that the Soghd of Samarcand is the pleasantest of all the four places above enumerated."

It would be surprising to find a passage from any Oriental manuscript remain uncorrupted or unaltered through different translations. My copy of the Mesalek al Memalek (see p. 237.) gives this in the following words:

I have followed GRAVES, the translator of ABULFEDA, in writing Ablah: but it is properly called Ubbullah, being thus accounted المحدد المعلقات الم

"They say that in the whole world there is not any place "more delightful than these three; one, the Soghd of Samar"cand; another, the Rud-i-Aileh (or Ablah); and thirdly, the "Ghoutah of Damascus."

The reader will find in page 237 of this work, that EBN HAUKAL prefers the Soghd of Samarcand (as in Tabari's Chronicle, and Abulfeda) to the rival Tempes, and describes those points in which its superior beauty consists. Why the Shaab Bouan has been omitted, I cannot pretend to have discovered*. The deplorable inaccuracy of Oriental transcribers, as well as translators, has been so often noticed, that it is unnecessary for me to dwell on the difficulties attending MOHAMMED SABUR ISFARANI, the Nahr Ubbullah is within four furrang of Basrah.

^{*} Similar emissions (though not so important) may be detected in other passages. EBN HAUKAL, at quested by ABULFEDA, tells us, that the Hamyaritick inscription before mentioned in this Preface, was on the Gate of Kash at Samarcand.—Our Persian translator has omitted the name of the gate; but we find, in some places, that he has retained more of EBN HAUKAL'S particular descriptions than ABULFEDA.

any endeavour to reconcile the various readings, and to supply the deficiencies, or to correct the errors of manuscripts. The instances, however frequent, of incorrectness and variations which occur in the present work, do not by any means surprise me. After a close application to Eastern literature for nine or ten years, during which I have turned over some thousands of written volumes, and attentively collated passages in several hundreds, I no longer expect to find in Arabick, Persian, or Turkish manuscripts (the Koran always excepted), either accuracy of transcribing, fidelity of translation, or exactness of quotation. Thus, a heavy cloud of uncertainty and confusion still hangs on the Geography of Edrisi, notwithstanding the learned labours of Kurzmann and of HARTMANN, who notice the numerous defects of the printed editions, the variations of the manuscript copies, the different titles of the same book, the uncertain age and country of the author, &c.

Of EBN HAUKAL's work, had there been found a perfect copy in the original Arabick, it is most probable that the pleasure of offering this translation to the Publick would not have been reserved for me. "We must lament," says the ingenious Koehler*, "that no better copy of the Mesalek al "Memalek + exists, than the manuscript preserved in the Library at Leyden, which is exceedingly imperfect and very badly written." It seems, indeed, the lot of Ebn Haukal's work, in whatsoever form it appears, to be censured for incorrectness and defects, by writers of different ages, and of different countries; for to the passage above quoted, we may add the following from Abulfeda:

كتاب ابن حوقل و هو مطول ذكر فيه صغات البلاد مستوفيا غير انه الم يضبط الاسها و كذلك لم يكزر اللطوال و العروض فصار غالب ما ذكره مجهول السم و البقعة

"The book of EBN HAUKAL is a work of considerable bength, in which the different countries are described with sufficient exactness. But neither are the names of places marked by the proper points, nor are their longitudes or latitudes expressed; this frequently occasions an uncertainty respecting the places, proper names, &c."

⁺ See the Leyden Catalogue before quoted.

These are censures of the original Arabick. I must now bear testimony against the Persian transcripts which I have used.

Of the difficulties arising from an irregular combination of letters, the confusion of one word with another, and the total omission, in some lines, of the diacritical points, I should not complain, because habit and persevering attention have enabled me to surmount them in passages of general description, or sentences of common construction; but in the names of persons or of places never before seen or heard of, and which the context could not assist in deciphering, when the diacritical points were omitted, conjecture alone could supply them, or collation with a more perfect manuscript. The former I have seldom indulged, and the latter has enabled me, in several instances, to ascertain the true reading; and even the few names in which I have supplied the diacritical points from conjecture, are pointed out to the reader by a note, or otherwise.

Notwithstanding what I have just said, and although the most learned writers on Hebrew, Arabick, and Persian Literature, have made observations on the same subject, it may perhaps, be necessary to demonstrate, by a particular example, the extraordinary influence of those diacritical points, which, as they are essential parts of letters, must not be confounded with the vowel points or accents.

One example will suffice—Let us suppose the three letters forming the name Tibbet to be divested of their diacritical points, and thus written The first character may be rendered, by the application of one point above, an N, thus, if of two points a T, if of three points a TH or S, i; if one point is placed under, it becomes a B if two points, a Y if and if three points, a P i. In like manner the second character may be affected, and the third character may be, according to the addition of points, rendered a B, P, T, and TH, or S.

Thus, amidst the multiplicity of names which may be formed of those three characters, it would be almost impossible, without the aid of context, or previous consideration, to ascertain the true reading: and, to use the words of Golius, that most learned Orientalist, on a similar occasion, one must act the part of a diviner before he can perform that of an interpreter*.

^{*} As the whole passage, in which Golius apologizes for the mistakes of Erpenius in his

we are sometimes informed that one place is distant from another one month's journey: the extent of this could be easily ascertained, were the number of miles or leagues in a day's journey (الك روزه راه) exactly known; but we cannot expect precision in this computation, since much depends on the particular mode of travelling, the state of the roads, the nature of the country, and other circumstances. Equally vague and uncertain are the terms are merhileh and which occur in the following pages.

GRAVES, in his Preface to Abulfeda's Chorasmia, translates merhileh by statio, diæta, mansio. According to Edrisi's Geo-translation of Elmakin, is much to my present purpose, I shall give it here. "Nam licet of Persia we can speak with greater certainty and accuracy, although it appears, from the Greek and Roman, as well as the native writers, that this measure was not always exactly ascertained, even among the Persians. Xenophon computes the pharsanga at thirty stadia; and Pliny informs us, that, like the schenos, it was a measure variously determined ‡.

[†] But the number of miles or farrange in a day's journey is not accertained; and we accordingly find mention in the following work of a short merhileh, and a long merhileh; perhaps thirty miles may be the average.

ments in different provinces. The farsang or parasang (he says), in the time of the Caianians, or second dynasty of Persiansovereigns; contained, according to ancient writers, three miles of twelve thousand feet. According to Malek Shahi, the farsang of Khuarezm consisted of about fifteen thousand yards, (%). In Azerbaijan, Armenia, and the neighbouring provinces, it contained only twelve thousand yards; while in the two Iraks, in Curdistan, Laristan, Khuzistan, Fars, Shebangareh, Diarbekre, &c. the farsang was reckoned to contain only six thousand yards; in other places it consisted of eight thousand, but may be generally computed at twelve thousand cubits, (¿٤)). The following passage, however, from the Borhan Kattea seems to fix the measure with precision:

فرسنگ معین از راه و آن به قدار سه میل است و هر میلی چهار هزار معین از راه و آن به قدار سه میل است و هر میلی چهار هزار کز که مجهوع فرسنگ دوازده هزار کز باشد و طول هر کزی بقدر بیست و چهار انکشت دست باشد که بعرض در پهلوی هم کزارند و آن شش قبضه است یعنی شش مشت

[&]quot;Farasang, with the vowel accent fatha over the first and "third, equivalent (in rhyme or metre) to Sar-i-chang, is a cer-"tain fixed measure for roads, consisting of about three miles,

"each mile containing four thousand guz; so that the farsang altogether consists of twelve thousand guz: the length of each guz is equal to twenty-four fingers measured in breadth (sideways), and making six handfuls, or six measures of the clenched fist."

In another excellent Dictionary, the کشف الغات Kashf al Loghat, we find the following article:

"Farasang, with the vowel accent fatha, and the Persian "letter gaf, three krouhs of ground. In Arabick they call it "farsakh."

The og krouh, according to the Borhan Kattea,

سه هزار کز است و بعضي څويند چهار هزار کز و زيادة از اين نيست

[&]quot;consists of three thousand guz, or, as some say, of four thousand, but it does not exceed this number."

The guz (as above described) may be computed from twenty to twenty-four inches. Mr. Richardson* informs us, that the parasang, or league, contains about eighteen thousand feet; and Captain Francklin†, whose computation I would adopt, makes it nearly equivalent to four English miles.

These and many other matters, which in the following work appear obscure or difficult, it was my intention, when I undertook this translation, to investigate with minute research, and to illustrate with ample explanations. On those subjects, also, which seemed of the most curious and interesting nature, I collected a variety of notices, and extracted from several other Oriental Manuscripts, and from the works of European Antiquaries, Historians and Travellers, every passage that could contribute information.

I endeavoured, by examining the most ancient traditions preserved in Persian records, to ascertain whether the celebrated Ruins of Istakhar, often mentioned in the course of this work, exhibit any monuments of the scriptural

But so much did my inquiries on this subject exceed the limits of a note, that they formed, rather, a distinct essay.

The various Languages of Persia and other countries, noticed by Ebr Haukal, were also the subject of laborious research: through the modern Deri and Parsi, the ancient Pehlavi and Zend, I have traced every vestige that remains of the dialects used in Iran during the earliest ages §; and I have collected, rather as an Antiquary than an Etymologist, many hundred Greek and Persian words, of which the identity cannot be disputed, and must have originated from some other cause than accidental resemblance: that interchange of nations and of people, to which Seneca * alludes, must naturally have occasioned a confusion of languages; and the intermixture of Greek and Persian dialects would be a probable consequence of the Macedonian conquest.

In this research I have availed myself of the learned Burton's aid (see his Weter's Lingua Persica AEIYANA"), the more powerful assistance of Reland (see his Dissert. de Vet. ling. Pers. Sc.), and that of Wahl (in his "Allgemeine Geschichte der Morgenlandischen Sprachen und Litteratur"); but I have had access to original sources unexplored by them.

Several pages, also, were filled with observations on EBN HAUKAL'S account of the Magi, or Fire-worshippers: one passage, which, for obvious reasons, I have translated into Latin, will be found to bear testimony in favour of Anquetil du Perron.

On another part of this volume I was induced to bestow some inquiry, since it serves to illustrate, and is itself confirmed by, a Rabbinical work of high reputation. I allude to EBN HAUKAL'S description of the Land of Khozr; and to the Hebrew composition, entitled, כפר בוורי Sepher Costi, written about the year 1140 of the Christian æra, by ר'יוודה הלוי

Rabbi Ichudah the Levite, in honour of the Jewish monarch of that country.*.

From a multiplicity of Eastern traditions concerning the land of Yajouge and Majouge (or Gog and Magog), I collected whatever could illustrate that subject, over which a veil of obscurity still hangs, notwithstanding the endeavours of Bochart † and D'Herbelot ‡ to remove it. It is unnecessary to mention any other European writer, however ingenious, since, if not skilled in the languages of Asia, or not having better sources of information than those eminent Orientalists above named, all that he can offer is mere conjecture.

EBN HAUKAL'S account of Spain afforded subject for many observations, and my remarks on the Pyramids of Egypt occupied several pages. The vestiges of Jewish and Christian establishments pointed out by our Author in various parts of the following Work, appeared worthy of being examined with attention: and I took some trouble in comparing his account of many natural curiosities with the descriptions given us by travellers.

I found, however, that these illustrations, whether to be printed in the form of notes, or as an appendix, would retard considerably the publication of my book, and render it doubly expensive by the addition of so much as another volume of equal size would scarcely contain. I therefore resolved to content myself with offering to the Publick a mere translation of Ebs Haukal's work, retaining what the Geographer and Critick will probably esteem the most essential part of the original, all names of places in the proper character; and so exactly have I followed the orthography of my manuscript, that in many pages the same word will be found spelt differently, and even erroneously. Some of the most obscure, difficult, or doubtful passages, I have remarked in short notes, or endeavoured to illustrate in the Appendix, where many are given in Persian.

^{*} Thus we find; in p. 48, طبرية Tiberiah and طبرية Tiberthah—in several places, Isfahan, Sfahan, Ispahan, &c. The Pyramide of Egypt (properly written العرامان) or العرامان Ahram or Elheraman) are styled, in page 33, العرامان Houman or العرامان.

The chief obscurity, as well as importance, consists in the proper names. From my accuracy, therefore, in observing the original orthography of these, every advantage which could result from a perusal of the manuscript is presented to the reader; for the passages merely descriptive or narrative contain few difficulties, and these few are noticed.

The illustrations and notes above mentioned, as I have reason to hope that the time and labour spent in collecting them were not employed in vain, shall soon be offered to the Publick. They will form part of a Work in which I propose to examine the Geographical System of the Asiaticks—to extract, from a multiplicity of Arabick and Persian Authors, their descriptions of Countries and Cities, Rivers, Mountains, Seas, Islands, &c.—to give exact imitations of many original Maps preserved in rare and curious manuscripts; and to inquire how far the Geographers of Asia agree with those of ancient Greece and Rome, and with modern Europeans. I shall collect all the traditions that can illustrate local History and Antiquities; and construct Maps, according to the best authorities, not only of the Asiatick regions, but of Africa and Europe, as described by Eastern writers*.

^{*} Besides the Geographical Treatises of Abulfeda, Edrisi and others, well known to the

In preparing for publication the Geography of Ebn Haukal, had I solicited, I would most probably have received, assistance from many learned friends; and I should, in this place, with equal pride and pleasure, have followed the example of those writers who appropriate a department of their Prefaces to a publick acknowledgment of their numerous obligations.

But on this subject I shall not long detain the reader; for publick, I have used, in compiling materials for this Work, a variety of Oriental Manuscripts but little known in Europe. Among these are the مغت اقليم Heft Aklim, or Seven Climates, by Emir Rauzi ; the شبرازنامه Shiraz Nameh, by Sheikh Zarkoub ; the نزهت القلوب Nozhat al Coloub of Hamdallah Mustoufi, so often quoted by D'Herbelot; the ... Ajaich al Boldan, or "Wonders of Regions; the Tahkik al Irab, a Geographical Dictionary, by Mohammed Saduk Isfahani; the تحفت العراقيي Tohfut al Irakein, or Poetical Description of the two Iraks, Arabian and Pertian provinces, by the celebrated Khakani; the جاب الغرايب Ajaicb al Gheraich ; the صور الاقاليم Sour al A-عجايب المخلوقات Sour al Akalim; the sully Seir al Belad; the Geographical Index at the end of Mirkhond's Rozet al Sefa, Se. There, with the assistance of EBN HAUKAL'S work, have enabled me to construct a Map of Persia and the adjacent provinces, on so large a scale as to admit a multiplicity of names not found in any other. It comprehends (on a sheet measuring six feet by free) nearly the same extent as Mr. Wahl's celebrated Map, prefixed to his " Altes und Neues Vorder und Middel Asien;" and the names of places are written, not only in European characters, but respectively in Arabick, Persian, Armenian, Sc.

my debt of gratitude is single. To the Provost and Fellows of Eton College I am indebted, not only for frequent opportunities of collating their manuscript with my own, but for the most liberal hospitality and the most polite attention. Through their indulgence I have been enabled to supply some deficiencies, and correct several errors, which must otherwise have disfigured this translation: whatever imperfections still remain, would probably have been removed by the collation of a third copy with the two which I have used. A third copy, however, I sought in vain; although, from information, communicated by an ingenious friend, I have reason to believe that EBN HAUKAL's work is among the manuscripts belonging to a certain learned Society: but I must regret that it is not found in any other library of this metropolis to which I have been admitted. Such as it is, I am not without hopes that this work will prove acceptable to the Orientalist, the Antiquary, and the Geographer. If their approbation be withheld, I shall acknowledge that I have toiled in vain; for the result of my former labours has taught me to expect no other recompense than praise, and the hopes of substantial profit have been extinguished by successive disappointments.

THE ORIENTAL GEOGRAPHY

EBN HAUKAL.

In the name of God, the Clement, the Merciful!

Praise be to God, the origin of all good! and may the blessing of God be on Mohammed, the Prince of Prophets! Thus says the author of the work: "My design, in the composition of this book, is to describe the various climates and regions of the face of the earth, comprised within the circle of Islam, or Mohammedanism, and their several divisions, in such a manner that every remarkable place belonging to each region shall be noticed, and all the boundaries and territories depending on them, their districts, cities, mountains, rivers, lakes, and deserts."

But as the particular details of all these seemed unnecessarily prolix, they are here compressed within a small compass; and in the present volume, which is entitled Mesalek u Memalek, our plan is to describe, and to delineate on maps, the various seas or oceans which surround the land, the inhabited and the desert islands, and every climate and region of the earth; affixing the name of each, so that it may be known in the maps; and confining ourselves to those countries which are the seat of Islam, and the residence of true believers.

The square Temple at Mecca; built, according to Mohammedan tradition, by Abraham.

t Omm'al kura. ام القري

(Here, in the original manuscript, a blank page occurs, on which was to have been delineated a general Map of the World, or the Eastern Hemisphere.)

The author of this work informs us, that such is the form of the earth, its various parts, inhabited and uninhabited. We have divided it into empires or states, where the empires of this word is word is wingdoms; in the singular, where the empire of this earth, none is more populous, cultivated, or flourishing, than the empire of the light part of the empire of which, in former times, was where the empire, in the time of the ancient Persians, is well known; but the Mussulmans have since possessed themselves of the countries above enumerated; such as Roum, Natolia; and شام Sham, Syria; and روم Misr. Egypt; and اندلس Andalus, Andalusia or Spain; and Magreb, the west (part of Africa), and part of Hindoostan; and the territories of o sie Mansoureh, as far as will Multan; and کابلستان Kabulistan; and the borders of کابلستان Tokharestan ; and of چين Cheen, China or Tartary ; and Maweralnahr, or Transoxania. The author says, that he reckons, as belonging to بنتالب Roum, the borders of سنتالب Siklab, Sclavonia; of سرير Rous, Russia, الان Serir, and الان Allan, and Armen, Armenia, where the Christian religion is professed; and he places, as belonging to Hindoostan, سند Sind, and Cashmere, and part of "Tibet. "As for the land of blacks, in the west (Africa), and the زنگیان Zingians, Æthiopians, and such tribes (says the author), I make but slight mention of them in this book; because, naturally loving wisdom, ingenuity, religion, justice, and regular government, how could I notice such people as those, or exalt them by inserting an account of their countries? Yet one race of them has some degree of civilization and religious observance, the نوبيان Nubians, and حبشيان Habbeshians, Abbyssinians: the reason of this is, their vicinity to the other more polished countries; thus ig Nubia and Aubbesheh, Abyssinia, are situated on the borders of the درياي قلزم Deryai Kolzum, the Sea of Kolzum, or Red Sea. Nothing farther can be said in their favour."

at a TC of a larger of the Atlanta

The region of Islam is superior to the others, because it is more extensive; from south to north, and from the western bay or gulph, connected with the ocean, to the borders of جين ماجين ماجين المحافظة والمحافظة وال

On the east of the land of Islam are the regions of Hindoostan and the عرباي پارس Persian Sea; to the west lie Roum, and ارمن Serir, and Milan, and المن Serir, and المن Serir, and المن Siklab, and part of تركستان Turkestan. The land of Islam has to the north the empire of پين Cheen, and its various territories from the borders of Turkestan; and to the south the Persian Sea, and the region of سند Sind. The Ocean bounds it to the west and to the south.

Description of the Seas.

the Sea of Roum, or the Mediterranean, which are nearly opposite: both join the great ocean. The Persian Sea is more extensive in length and breadth, reaching to the land of جين Cheen, and to the جين Sea of Kolzum. From Kolzum to Cheen, in a streight line, is a distance of about two hundred menzil*; and from Kolzum to Irak, by the way of the desert, is a journey of two months. From the جين Jihoun, or Oxus, to the extreme boundary of Islam, on the borders of خياكة Ferghanah, is above twenty merhileh*; and, from those places to the coast of Cheen, is a very tedious way, because in these seas are various windings and turnings.

· See the Preface.

ذكر دريا روم وغيره

Of the Sea of Roum, or the Mediterranean, and other matters.

This sea comes from the ocean, and extends from that narrow bay, or pass, between the west (Africa), and the land of live Andalus, Spain, to the coast of Sham, Syria, a distance of seven months journey. This sea is of a more regular and even outline than the Persian; for, after you pass the mouth of that bay before mentioned (Gibraltar), it is protracted in one line to the end.

is a distance of an hundred and eighty merhileh. From the extremity of the east to that of the west, is near four hundred merhileh. From Roum, one comes to Sham (Syria) in the course of sixty merhileh. From Sham to Egypt is thirty merhileh. The distance of the journey between the land of will be land of Lajouge and المناب Bulgar, and the country of المناب Siklab, is about four hundred merhileh; and from Siklab to Roum, to the borders of Sham, sixty merhileh. From Roum to the extreme boundary of the أحين نويال land of the Nubians, about eighty merhileh.

Between Lajouge and Majouge, and the northern ocean, and between the deserts of the Blacks and the other limits of the ocean, all is desolate and waste, without any buildings. I know not what are the roads or stages of those two deserts which are on the coasts of the ocean, because it is impossible to travel in them on account of the excessive heat, which hinders the building of houses, or the residing there. Thus, also, in the south, no animal can exist, so excessive is the heat, nor any person dwell there. But between side the colline and the west side of the ocean surrounds the land like a collar or necklace.

From this ocean proceed the مرياي فارس Deryai Fars, Persian Sea or Gulph, and Deryai Roum, Mediterranean, but not the مرياي خر Deryai Khozr, or Caspian Sea. If any person wish to make a circuit round this sea, he must set out from Khozr, and proceed through the land of ميلان Deilman, and كريا Deilman, and كريا المستان Tabaristan, and كريا المستان Gurkan, and, turning by the desert, in the vicinity of سياه كره Siah Kouh, or the Black Mountain, thus come back to the place from which he had set out, as nothing would impede him but the river which falls into the Caspian Sea.

The Franks, in general, we speak of as belonging to Roum (Europe), because they have the same religion and king, though speaking various dialects.

The empire of ____ Cheen extends, in length, a distance of four months journey; and in breadth, three. And when one comes from the mouth of the bay or gulph to the land of Mussulmans, the borders of ماورا لنهر Manweralnahr, Transoxania, it is a journey of three months. And when one comes from the east, and wishes to proceed to the west, by the land of the غرغز Nubians, and the land of خرخيز Khurkhiz, and of Ghurghez, and by Kaimak to the sea, it is a journey of about four months. In the regions of Cheen there are various dialects: but all تركستان Turkestan, and غرغز Ghurghez, and Assah, and خرخيز Khurkhiz, and كياك Kaimak, and خرنه Ghurneh, and خرند Khurnjiah; the people of all these have the same language, and are of one kind. The chief place of the empire of Cheen is called Cheen as Eumdan, as Costantineh, Constantinople, is of Europe, or ندداد Bagdad, of the land of Islam, or Sie Canouge, of Hindoostan; but the land of Turk, غز is separately situated. غز Ghuz is the boundary of it from Khozr to Kaimak, and to Bulgar, and the borders of the خرنجيد Barab, باراب Barab کرکان Barab and to Jenjab.

When you pass from the territories of Kaimak, then it is the land of خدر Khederje, lying to the north, between خدر Ghuz and خدن Khurkhiz, and behind سنالاب Siklab; and the land of ياجوج Yajouge is situated in the north, when you turn from Siklab, and pass the bounds of Kaimak; but the extent of Yajouge, and the number of its inhabitants, are known to God Almighty alone. There is a place of Khurkhiz, situated between Ghuz, and Kaimak, and the ocean, and the land of Khederje. The country of Tibet is situated between Khurkhiz and the empire of Cheen. Cheen lies between the sea and the land of Ghuz and Tibet; and Cheen itself constitutes this climate (or division); but the other parts of Tibet were annexed to it, as in Europe the lesser places depend on Constantinople, and in the region of Islam on Iran, which is the land of Jabel.

Of بانغار Bulgar is a small town, which has not many territories, and for that reason the places belonging to it have been well known. The Rous are a people between whom and Bulgar is a tribe of تران Turks; in one place here some fishermen reside, and there are a few date trees, as far as تاران Saran, and ابلات Cheilak, and opposite the mountains to عبلات Ableh. Ableh is a small town, well inhabited, with a little tilled and cultivated land. "In that place were some Jews; those to "whom it was forbidden to hunt on the Sabbath (or Sunday): "and God transformed them, and caused them to become "monkies*.

^{*} و انجا جهودان یاشند انان که صبد روز شنبه برایشان حرام شد و خدای ایشان مسخ کرد و بوزیند کردانید

As for مداين Madaein, and its territories, as far as يبن Yemen (Arabia Felix), and to عبان Oman, and تحرين Bahrein, (islands in the Persian Gulph), as far as عبادان Abadan; of all these we describe the roads as belonging to Arabia: but Abadan is a small fort or castle, inhabited, on the sea-coast, and the waters of the alad Dejleh (or Tigris) come up there. This is a rebat, or station, where sentinels used to be placed, that they might watch the فرفان دريا robbers of the sea, or pirates. The river and Dejleh, or Tigris, passes here; and thence we come by the sea-shore to ماهي رويان Mahi-rouian, on the borders of Pars, or Persia. On this journey it is necessary in most of the places to go by water; because the river of Khuzistan winds about دورت Daurak, and flows to درت Hysn Mohdi, and closely Ramnan, and then falls into the sea at Mahi-rouian; and this Mahi-rouian is a small town, well-inhabited, and pleasant, the port for ارغان Arghan, or the pass to it. Then we come to سينير Sinir, which is larger than Mahi-rouian; and this Sinir is the port of all Pars or Farsistan. From thence the sea-shore winds on to Bijerm. Between Jenabeh and Bijerm, there are groves, and meadows, and villages; and the air becomes very warm here. From this you proceed to سيران Siraf, one of the most ample harbours in all Pars. Siraf is a large town فارس فارس one of the eyes of the towns of Fars. Here there is not any husbandry or cultivation of ground; and they bring water from a distance.

Passing from this along the shore, by places where there are hills and deserts, you come to the of Hysn ebn omarreh. This is a very strong castle: in all Pars there is not any fort more strong, or in better condition; and it is thought that there is an allusion to the lords of this castle in that passage of the Koran, where it is said,

"And there was, behind them, a king who forcibly seized on "every (sound) ship*.

From this place you proceed to جين المستد, which is the port of المستد Kirman. Hormuz is a well-inhabited and flourishing city: it abounds in dates, and the air is exceedingly warm. From this you go to المين Daibul, where there are merchants, who trade in all places. This is the port of the land of سند Sind: and Sind is the same as منصوره Mansureh; and the region of الميان Lattian, as far as جين ماچين ما

ذکر بچه و حبش و نوبه

Of Bajeh, and Abyssinia, and Nubia.

Kolzum, on the west of the sea (the Red Sea), the dry deserts stretch very far, to the land of عجاء Bajeh. The inhabitants of Bajeh are blacker than the Abbyssinians, like the Arabs*; and they have not either cities, villages, nor cultivated land--nothing but what they bring from Yemen, Abbyssinia, Egypt, or the land of the Greeks

This country (Bajeh) is situated between Abbyssinia, the land of Abbyssinia, and Egypt. In it are gold mines, which extend from near the borders of Egypt to a certain castle on the sea-coast, which they call about ten merhileh. Among these mines is a place called Allami, situated on a level ground. There are not in any quarter of the world such gold mines as these. In Bajeh they worship idols, or any thing that seems pleasing to their eyes. Those who immediately border on the land of Abbyssinia are Christians, and of the same complexion as Arabians.

^{*} Probably it should have been "Blacker than the Arabs, and like the Abbys-sinians."

[†] This word is so equivocally written in the MSS. that it may be decab, &cc.

On the sea-coast there is a place called Zeilaa, which is the port for those who go to Yemen and Hejaz. Then begin the deserts of Yubia. The Nubians are Christians; and their country is wider than that of the Abyssinians; and the Ægyptian Nile passes through their territories, and goes on to the land of the Zingians (Æthiopia); and one cannot proceed beyond that *."

The sea continues to the land of interest in the regions of Islam. Althopia is a dry country, with few buildings, and very little cultivated ground. The leopard skins, and other spotted skins which are brought into Yemen, come from this place. The inhabitants are at war with the Mussulmans. There is in Zingbar a race of white people, who bring from other places articles of food and clothing. This country produces little: the inhabitants are not much inclined to the cultivation of arts or sciences.

So far we have spoken of those countries bordering on the Persian Sea: Now we proceed to describe the regions of the West.

[&]quot; نبل مصربان بناحبت ایشان گذرد و بزنکبان رسد و بعد از آن نتوان رفتن The last sentence (which seems obscure) is literally, " and after that it is impossible to go on."

ذكر ديار مغرب

Of Magreb (the West), or part of Africa.

This western region is situated along the دریاي روم Mediterranean Sea, and is divided into two parts---one, the eastern --- the other, western. To the eastern division belong برقه Barkah, and برقه Afrinkeieh, and تاهوت Tahouth, and افرانقيم Melinjeh, and سوس Sus, and ويله Zouilah; and all on the sea. The western division extends to

The sea, to the east, reaches as far as Egypt. From Egypt we proceed to مهم Mohediah, and جزيره بني ربهي Jezireh Beni Rebehi (or جزيره بني Basireh, and اربله Basireh, and بصيره Sus, where are deserts without any sort of habitations. To the south of these places is sand.

Magreb (the west) or Africa, is chiefly remarkable for the black slaves: it is the land of blacks. The white slaves come from the quarter of Andalus; and damsels of great value, such as are sold for one thousand dinars or more; and mules fit for the saddle; and the coarse woollen stuff, called in Nemed Magrebi; and coral, and ambergris, and gold, and honey, and silk, and seal-skins.

Bakour, and Jezireh Beni Rebehi, which we have before mentioned, and about ten other towns in the vicinity of Tahouth, are considerable. Tahouth is the chief: it is a large town, well inhabited and supplied. The inhabitants practise agriculture:—they have been conquered by a people called plana.

Sejelmasah is a town of middling size, belonging to the territories of Tahouth. One cannot enter Sejelmasah but by the way of the desert, which the sand renders difficult. This town is situated near the gold mines, between them and the land of the Blacks, and the land of في Zouilah. These mines are said to be of the most pure and excellent gold; but it is difficult to work them, and the way to them is dangerous and troublesome. They say that the district of Tahouth is reckoned as belonging to liquid.

Shateif, is a considerable town, and well-inhabited, between Tahouth and تعرفات Kirouan. The inhabitants are a tribe of Berbers, and called منابع Kenamah. Abdallah has subdued them; and Abu-Abdallah, who was a servant of Abdallah, resides among them, and governs them.

Kirouan is the largest of all the towns. The tribes of Magreb all resided there; and it was their chief place until the decline of their government, when Abu-Abdallah came forth, and conquered them; since which time Abdallah dwelt at Kirbuan, until he built the town of Mohediah on the seacoast, and removed to that place.

Douileh is a town of middling size, with many territories belonging to it: it is situated near the country of the Blacks. This land of the Blacks is a very extensive region, but extremely dry. In the mountains of it are to be found all the fruits which the Mohammedan world produces; but they do not eat of them; they have other fruits and natural productions for their food. Their skins are of a finer and deeper blackness than that of any other blacks, whither Abyssinians, or Library. And their country is more extensive than that of any other nation of Blacks: it is situated on the coast of the ocean to the south: to the north they have deserts which extend towards the deserts of Egypt: from behind reaches to near the Nubians; then to the desert in the vicinity of Zingbar. Whatsoever they get, comes to them from the western side, because of the difficulty of entering their country from any other quarter.

Now we proceed to speak of the West, and begin with an account of اندلس Andalus, or Spain. Andalus is an extensive and considerable country, with many large and flourishing cities, the chief of which is called قرطبه Cortubah (Cordova), situated in the midst of the country. The ocean is on one side of Andalus, and the Sea of Roum (the Mediterranean) on the other, as far as the زمين فونك Land of the Franks (France.) The first of the cities is سرين Serin; then حسينيه Husiniah, Asebiliah (or Sebilah, Seville), سكونه Sedounah, Sidonia, مالغه Malaca, to the country of مولسه Moulsah, and to باریس Tartousah; where there is طرطوسه Tolsah, and طلسه Baris, a town on the sea-side. Thence along the sea, belongs to the land of the Franks; and on the dry side belongs to the country of Aljekes. This country is inhabited by a race of Christians, and as far as the land of بسكونس Biscounes belongs to the Christians, as likewise the territories of Jalekan. There are two boundaries to Andalus; one, the land of the Infidels (or Christians); the other, the sea: and all those towns which we have spoken of, as being situated on the sea-coast, are considerable places, and well-inhabited.

Andalus is now in the hands of the بني اميد Beni Ommiah, the Ommiades*; and the عباسيان Abbassians, the Abbassides, have not yet snatched it from them; nor has Abdallah yet obtained the superiority over them. At the time that the glory of the Beni Ommiah was declining, one of that family, who was at ما المالية المال

Between Magreb and the country of the Blacks, there are deserts, of which but a few places are accessible by any road. Between high hair and تاهوث Tahouth, there is a small tribe, called شراه Sherah.

Account of Egypt.

Sea of Roum, between اسكندريه Iskanderiah (Alexandria) and Barkah, at the deserts behind ولح Wahh; proceeding to the land of the Nubians, and to the land of جوته Bajeh, and back from اسوال Asouan to the Sea of Roum; and from Bajeh, to the اسوال Sea of Kolzum (the Red Sea), till it comes to the Children of Israel.

From the coast of the Sea of Roum to the land of the Nubians behind راح Wahh, is twenty-five merhileh. From the borders of Nubia you must go eight merhileh to the south; from قلزم Kolzum, on the coast of the Red Sea, to the تيه بني اسرايل Tiah beni Israel, or Desert of the Israelites, six merhileh; and from the sea to the borders of that Desert, or Tiah, where it is bounded by the Sea of Roum, eight merhileh; from اسواي Asouan to the Sea of Roum, twenty-five merhileh.

Now we present a map of this country.

The chief city of Egypt is called included Fostat,* situated on the bank of the River in Nile to the north. The Nile flows from the east; and all this city is situated on one side of it. Near to it are certain edifices, called in Jezireh, or the Island, to which they pass from Fostat on a bridge; and from this Jezireh they have constructed a bridge to the other bank, where there is a place called in Jeirah. The extent of the city is about two thirds of a farsang: it is very well inhabited, and supplied with provisions; all their houses are seven or eight stories high. Near the town is a place called Mouekaf, the soil of which is less marshy, and more firm and solid. It is said that Fostat was the name of a certain tribe.

Hamra is a town situated on the bank of the river Nile. It has two principal mosques; one in the middle of the town, built by عبرو بن عاص Amru ben Aas; and the other in the place called عبرو بن عاص Mouekaf, erected by Laaher ben Touloun. Without the town is a certain place of above a mile in extent, which that Laaher Touloun caused to be built for his troops: this they call نطابع Fetaia or Ketaia. In like manner were the dwellings, called اقاله Afadeh, of the عبروان Afadeh (or family of Agleb), situated without the town of تعبروان Kirouan. In this place agriculture is much practised.

^{*} Fistat is now, according to Mr. Browne (Travels, p. 80), "A long street, running parallel to the river, and occupying part of the space between Kahira (Cairo) and its bank." Of modern Cairo the foundation was laid A. D. 968.

There are great quantities of dates, and many corn fields, along the banks of the Nile, from that to near Asouan, and to the borders of Leskanderiah. When the weather becomes very warm, the water increases; and when it sinks, they sow their grain; after that, there is no necessity for water. In the land of Egypt there falls not either rain nor snow; nor is there in the whole country any running stream beside the river Nile.

Fioum is not a very considerable town. It is said that the prophet Joseph, on whom be the blessing of God! brought the water to that place, and called it Lahout: And there is not any person who knows the fountains or source of the river Nile; on this account, because it issues from a cavern in the territories of نثبار Zingbar, from a certain spot, which a man may very nearly approach, yet never can arrive at: after this, it runs through the inhabited and desert parts of the land of the Nubians to مصر Misr (Egypt); and there where it first becomes a river, it is equal to the محرد Deljeh and Frat (Tigris and Euphrates.) And the water of the River Nile is the most pure and delicious of all the waters on the face of the earth.

The Nile produces in crocodiles, and the fish sekenkour: and there is also a species of fish, called class raadah, which if any person take in his hand while it is alive, that person will be affected by a trembling of his body*; when dead, this fish resembles other fishes. The crocodile's head is very long, so long as to be one half of his whole form; and he has such teeth, that, if a lion were to come within their hold, he would be destroyed. It sometimes happens that the crocodile comes out of the water on the dry ground; but he has not then the same powers as when in the water. His skin is so hard that it resists the blows of all weapons when stricken on the back: they therefore wound him where the fore legs join the body (literally, under the arm pits), and between the thighs. The sekenkour is a species of that fish (the crocodile), but the crocodile has hands and feet; and they use the sekenkour in medicinal and culinary preparations. This creature is not found any where but in the river Nile.

From اسوان Asouan, along the banks of the Nile, as far as the sea, the country is all inhabited and cultivated. On the southern side of the Nile there is a place called where are mines of interesting in the desert; and beside these there are not any mines of those precious stones. On the northern side of the river Nile, near Fostat, there is a certain hill, called معظم Moazem, in the vicinity of which is found the stone خباهن khemahen; and this hill extends to the land of the يونان Iounans (Greeks): And near that hill, in the district of Fostat, is a burying-place, where the tomb of Shafæi* is situated;---the Lord be merciful to him!

^{*} The original is very obscure: it may signify that the fish's body is affected by an extraordinary tremulous motion while life remains.

Eskanderia, Alexandria, is a considerable town, built on the sea-side: the houses, and other edifices, are of marble. And out in the sea there is a مناره minareh, or watch-tower, of hard stone, and very lofty; it contains about three hundred houses: No one without a guide can arrive there.

Of the buildings at Fostat, on the bank of the Nile, all that are above the city are called سعيد Saied, and all that are below the city are called ين Zeif. At the distance of two farsang from Fostat, there are some ancient structures, called اهوا Ahouam; of which two are very lofty piles, and called هومان Houman: these are each, in height, four hundred guzt: And on the walls thereof are inscriptions written in the Greek language (يوناني); and this writing is said to signify, "the building of "Houman and Sertaier (was) in the sign Cancer!" These edifices are quadrangular, and gradually diminish towards the summits, which are about large enough for a camel to stand on; within them there are passages in which a man cannot go without some difficulty. And in Houman is a cleft, or excavation, under the ground, supposed to have been, with some appearance of probability, the burial-place of the ancient sovereigns of this country.

The land of Mahat was a pleasant and cultivated district, with trees, and water, and many inhabitants; but none at present remain. It abounded also in fruits. From the Egyptian Saied Saied Misr, to the land of Wahh, in the south, is a journey of three days; and from that a small desert extends towards the land of the Blacks.

The sea which borders Egypt is bitter; but where the river Nile pours into it, and overcomes it, the waters of the sea are rendered sweet. Farther out, when the waters of the Nile are confounded with the sea, the bitterness again predominates. In this sea there are islands, to which one may pass over in boats or vessels. Of these islands are with Teneis (or vessels. Of these islands are with Teneis (or many pass over in boats or vessels. Of these islands are with Teneis (or vessels. Of these islands are vessels.

move on it by help of men*. It produces a certain fish النده مشك like meshk†, which is called دلغين delfin (dolphin); and this is a fish of which if any person eat, he will be troubled with horrible dreams. From the borders of this sea, to those of the sea of شام Syria, it is all sand.

The town of اشهویین Ashmouein is small, but well-inhabited, and improved by agriculture; it produces dates: and opposite اشهویین Ashmouein, on the north of the river Nile, there is a little town called بوصبر Bouseir, where Merwan ben Mohammed was slain. It is said that the magicians of Pharaoh were from this بصبر Beseir, (or بوصبر Bouseir, as before written.)

Asouan is a place which produces dates. Agriculture is there much practised.

Akhmim is situated amid the sands of the desert; but it is inhabited, and affords dates. It is said that Dhu'l' Noun ‡, the Egyptian, was of this place.

Ferma is situated on the sea-shore. It is a pleasant and cultivated spot. In it is the burial-place of جالينوس Jalinous (Galen) the Grecian. From Ferma to تنيس Teneis is a distance of two farsang by this sea.

Teneis is a vast pile or heap erected over the bodies of the dead, which were placed one above another until they formed a pile; which pile was called "Terkoum: and this must have been done before the time of Moses, on whom be the peace and blessing of God!—for, in the time of Moses, according to the religion of the Egyptians, the dead were interred—a custom which was continued afterwards by the Christians, and is still practised by the Mussulmans. The author of this book says, that he himself had seen some of those bodies in their shrouds, or winding-sheets, with bones and skeletons of immense size.

There are some places on the river Nile which the crocodiles do not infest, near Fostat and Bouseir; and the عين الشب Aienal-shems, or Fountain of the Sun, lies to the south of Fostat. These two places are said to have been villas or pleasure-houses of Pharaoh. On the top of Mount معنا Monzem there is a place which they call the stove or furnace (تنور) of Pharaoh.

In the vicinity of Fostat, there grows a plant, called plant, from which the oil is extracted. This is not to be found in any other part of the world.

The left side of the Nile is called - Khouf. In this division are situated جري Kiasah, and جري Jerjeir, and Kakour. The opposite division, on the right side of the river Nile, they call عناقل Zeif. These two places contain the chief villages of Egypt. The gold mines are in the land of Assang. The country where those mines are situated is sandy, and without any hills, fields, or tilled land: it furnishes slaves for Egypt. There are asses and mules, of considerable value, in Egypt: no other country produces such. The district of Asouan affords asses not larger than sheep, which will not live when brought out of that country; and in the land of Asouan affords asses, عناقا Kheran Siklabi. The Egyptians say that the land of Khefa, or خناقا Khefakar, was inhabited and cultivated in the time of Pharaoh.

the north of Syria lies the land of Roum; and to the south are the borders of Egypt, and the الله الماليل Tiah beni Israel, or Desert of the Children of Israel,

(Map of Syria.)

West of Syria, it is unnecessary here to make any mention, as we have already pointed them out in the map. Some places are called عند Seghur Sham, or frontiers of Syria: others are called عند Seghur Jezireh, or frontiers of Arabian Irak, or Mesopotamia, because all bordering on one half of the Euphrates belongs to Syria; and from معند Meltiah to معند Meraash is called the Seghur of Jezireh, because people of Jezireh reside there, and it belongs to Syria.

The hills of كوه لكام Lekam extend for two hundred farsang into Roum; and the كار اسلام Dar al'salam (the mansion of salvation or peace) is between Meraash and هار ونيد Harouniah; and the عين اربه Aein Arbah, or Fountain of Arbah. After having passed عين اله Mount Lekam. From that, the continuation of this mountain is called من Soukh, as far as من Memehes; and from that, throughout all Syria, it is called Libnan (Lebanon), till it comes near the Sea of Kolzum (Red Sea.) The borders of itumbers are two days journey to the west, from the place called Reman to the borders of Behour; and the breadth of the borders of Palestine, on the western side, is also, from that place to Lil Bilka, two days journey; and the land of the tribe of Lot, (Sodom, &c.) and Saherah, and Taberah, all that is situated between the two mountains, they call غور Ghour. It is lower down than the land of Syria; and part of it is reckoned as belonging to Jarden, and part to Palestine. The water of Palestine is rain water. Palestine is about one half of Syria; and the chief cities of it are Jo, Ramleh, and the Beit-almokeds, Holy House, or Jerusalem, which is situated on a hill. Here is a mosque (مسجى), or temple, than which there is not, in all the land of the Mussulmans, one more large. Here also is the Alexab, the chief altar of David, on whom be peace!---a building of about fifty guz high, and thirty broad, of stone. On the top of this is the Mehrab of David; and this is the first object that presents itself as one comes from Ramleh.

At a distance of six miles from Jerusalem is a village called Beit Allehem (Bethlehem or Bethlem.) Here Jesus, on whom be peace! was born of his mother; and it is said that the date or palm tree, of whose fruit Mary ate, and which is celebrated by mention in the Koran*, has been placed in the dome or vault which is here, and held in high veneration and respect.

From Bethlehem, on the southern side, there is a small town, called the Mesjed Ibrahim, or Temple of Abraham: and in the mosque where they pray on the high feasts, are the burial places of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, (may peace be on them!) and those of their wives are opposite. Here are many hills and trees: all the hills of Palestine are covered with trees; and there is much fruit, olives, and figs.

نابلس Nabolis is a town of which the inhabitants are called ماريان Samarian; a people who have not any other residence.

In the extreme borders of Palestine, in the vicinity of Egypt, there is a city, called غزه Ghazah, which هاشم بن عبدالله Hashem ben Abdallah conquered, and in which شافعي Shafai † was born.

In the district of غور Ghour, snow is almost unknown; but dates, and streams, and fountains, abound. It commences at the borders of اردن Arden; and when it passes them, it extends to the boundary of Palestine, and in like manner reaches to Aileh.

Sour (Tyre) is a very strong town, situated on the seashore. It is the most ancient of all the cities on the coast; and all the Grecian philosophers حكيان يونان came from this place. اردن Arden was the dwelling-place of Jacob, to whom be peace!

mountains; and is well watered by streams which flow around. The land about it produces trees, and is well cultivated by husbandmen. This tract is called غوطه Ghouteh. It extends about one merhileh by two. There is not, in all Syria, a more delightful place. There is a bridge in the midst of the city of Demeshk, by which a horseman may pass over the water, which goes on to the villages of Ghouteh, and runs amongst their inns, and hot-baths, and shops.

Here is one of the largest mosques in all the land of the Mussulmans, part of which was built in ancient times by the صابيان Sabians. Then it fell into the possession of the Greeks, and became a place of religious worship to them. After that, it fell into the hands of the Jews, and of certain princes who adored idols; and at that time they put to death Yahiah, the son of Zachariah, ایحی بن ذکریا to whom be peace! and fixed his head upon a pole, before the gate of this temple, at the place which they call باب جرود Bab Jeroud (probably جبود Jews'-gate.) It then passed into the hands of the Christians, who performed in it, likewise, their religious ceremonies, until, at length, it came into the possession of the True Believers (the Mussulmans), to whom it serves as a mosque. At the same spot where the head of Yahia ben Zachariah had been fixed, the head of Hosein, the son of Ali, to whom be peace! was also exposed. Walid ben Abd-al-Molk, in his time, caused this building to be وليد بن عبد الملك repaired, and beautified with pavements of marble, and also pillars of variegated marble, the tops of which were ornamented with gold, and studded with precious stones, and all the ceiling he caused to be covered with gold; and it is said that he expended the revenues of all Syria on this work.

The inhabitants are celebrated as being handsome. Neither scorpions nor serpents are found here. It is copiously watered; the lands are cultivated, and there are many trees. There is also a church (author) a Christian church, Ecclesia), to which there is not, in size, any church of Syria equal: one half of this building is a church; the other, a mosque. The streets here are paved with stone.

ذكر بعير روم

Description of the Sea of Roum, or Mediterranean.

THE Sea of Roum is a bay or gulph, proceeding from the great ocean at بصير Andalus. Between بصير Basireh, and between the land of and Jezireh, there is a certain mountain, which they call جبال الطارف Jebal al Tarek, situated on the point of the borders of Andalus. At that place the breadth of this sea is twelve farsang; and it becomes broader, on the eastern side (of Gibraltar), till it approaches the land of Egypt, and from that proceeds towards Syria, along those places which we have above described: it turns, and passes by the cities of Roum, as far as انطاكيه Antakiah; then it joins the sea which forms the bay of قسطنطنيه Costantiniah, Constantinople ; then it proceeds along the coast of lill Ainas ; then along the coast of a Roumiah; and then to Frank, France, along the shore to طرسوسه Tarsousah, on the sea of Andalus; and then, continuing along the coast of Andalus, it at last joins the ocean at Jebel al Tarek, opposite Basireh, and proceeds as far as بسرين Besirin, which is the extreme point of the land of Islam.

تابیم Kelimah, or تابیم Kelmiah, is a town which belonged to the طرسوس Roumians; and there is a gate at طرسوس Bab Kelimah, or the Gate of Kelimah. Kelimah is at a distance from the sea. About a merhileh's distance from that, there is a village on the sea-shore, called المس Lames; from that village the country is Roum.

Antakiah is a very strong fortress, belonging to the Roumians, situated on the sea-shore. It is well-inhabited, and has many villages depending on it. The bay on which it is situated is of bitter or salt water; and they call it the Bay or Gulph of Costantinah خي قسانطينه "A chain is (or may be) drawn across this gulph, to hinder any one from passing there from the sea or elsewhere;"* and this gulph falls into the Sea of Roum.

On the side of Roum there are shores which they call the coasts of Asas سواحل اساس and Roumiah These are two well-inhabited and considerable towns, with villages and tilled lands: they belong to the Christians, and are situated near the sea. Asas is the place from which came the حكيان يونان Grecian Philosophers. Roumiah is one of the props of the kingdom of the Christians; they have one throne (حرسي) at Antakiah, one at اسكندريه Eskanderouiah, and one at Roumiah; and the throne which they have at (Jerusalem) did not exist in the time of the Apostles (حواريات), but has been introduced for the greater honour and aggrandisement of that city. From those places the sea proceeds towards the coast of خزنک Frank, and, passing by سقاليم Sikaliah (Sicily), goes on to طرسوسه Tarsousah, belonging to the land of اندلس Andalus.

We have already spoken of the cities, towns, and coasts, of Magreb, and Egypt, and Syria, to the extremity of Islam: it is not necessary to say more on those subjects. In this Sea of Roum there are islands, great and small. سقاليم Sikaliah is the most considerable of them all. There are, besides, اقريطس Akrites, اقريطس Kibres, and the mount called قبرس Jebel al Kellal.

Sikaliah is near Frank: it is an island of near nine merhileh in extent; and produces more corn and provisions, male slaves and female attendants, and cattle, than any other island belonging to the Mussulmans, in this sea. Akrites is a smaller island than Sikaliah: it is inhabited by the Mussulmans and غازيان Ghazians; and amongst them there is a tribe of Christians. The inhabitants of Kibres are all Christians. Akrites is a very strong island: at present the inhabitants are on terms of peace with the Mussulmans. They bring Astiky from Kibres to the countries of Islam.

The place called About is now inhabited by Mussulmans; and it affords sufficient water and land. It is, in extent, two days journey, situated on the frontiers of Frank; but the Franks have not been able to get possession of it. There are not, any where, shores so delightfully interspersed with buildings on both sides, as the shores of this sea. Here the ships of Mussulmans and of Infidels sail about, and sometimes oppose each other in battle, to the number of an hundred ships on each side.

The tract of country called Jezirch is that which lies between the rivers and Dejleh (Tigris) and Forat (Euphrates.) The Forat rises in Roum, at a distance of two days journey from Melitiah, and then proceeds to Melitiah. On the eastern side of the river Dejleh, and on the western side of the Forat, are various cities and towns, which are reckoned, on account of their vicinity, as belonging to Jezirch, although in fact not so.

Account of the Cities and Towns of Irak Arabi.

Basrah is a considerable city, the foundation of which was laid in the time of عرب الخطاب Omar ebn Alkhitab--- (may God reward him!)--- and the building performed by attach ebn Ghazouan. On the western side of Basrah the desert approaches, which is without water. "It is said, that the rivers or streams of Basrah were reckoned in the time of Belal ben Abi Bordeh, and amounted to the number of one hundred and twenty thousand streams, on which boats were employed. This anecdote astonished me: I went there, and be"held, within the space of about an arrow's single flight, several small streams, on which little boats were employed*."

The extent of Basrah comprises about fifty farsang from (5" Sey, to عبادان Abadan, which is the palm-plantation (فنخلستان) of Basrah. At Basrah is the tomb of مالحه بن عبدالله Talhah ben Abdallah; may God reward him! And there are several places, also, to which pilgrimages are made; such as the tomb of Al Hara ben Serir, and other learned men. The river كافي Zohad runs four farsang: it is so thickly interspersed with villas and gardens, that you would imagine the whole place was one garden. Many streams belong to this place, and palmtrees are here in great number. When the water of the sea rises or increases, the waters of those streams go back amongst the gardens, and fields, and orchards; and when the water of the sea sinks or diminishes, the river-waters return to their channels, but are all brackish, or of a bitter taste. Ableh is situated on this river; and there is a dangerous place, called Hawer Ableh, in it, against which vessels from the sea must be well guarded, lest they should be sunk there. Ableh is a small town, but well supplied with provisions, and pleasantly situated, one side being towards the Dejleh. That river (above mentioned) comes from the Dejleh, in a direct line to soil Abadan. The soil or earth of Basrah is white. The towns of this district are, Ableh, منتج Mentah, and مدار Medar; all small towns, situated on the river Dejleh. The chief of these is Ableh.

In the territories of Basrah are Ahma and Betaiah. Boats or vessels are moved here by the strength of men. Near this place are great gulphs or abysses: one would imagine that the land had been dry at some former time; and it is possible that the water, making its way from the rivers of Basrah, had settled wherever it found a deep furrow or pit.

been built since the introduction of Islam. The foundation was laid by Hejaje Yusuf. It is strongly built; and the castle of Hejaje is there, on the western side, with a few fields belonging to it. Waset is a populous town, and well supplied with provisions—of a purer air than Basrah: the vicinity of it is planted with gardens, and well cultivated.

Cufa is smaller than Basrah, but resembles it in some respects. The air and water of Cufa are better than those of Basrah. It is situated near the river Forat. The suburbs of Cufa were built by سعد بن وقاص Saad ben Wakas.

nak, are situated on the skirts of the desert, towards the west; the river (Euphrates) running by them on the east: they afford dates, and have some cultivated lands. From Cufa to these places is a distance of one merhileh. Heirah is an ancient city, and large; but when Cufa was built, Heirah was drained of its inhabitants.

Heirah enjoys a pure air, and is one farsang distant from Cufa. At Cufa is situated the tomb or meshed of the Commander of the Faithful, على بن ابي طالب Ali ben Abi Taleb, on whom be peace! Some say it is in the cloister at the entrance of the chief mosque; and others say it is at a distance of two farsang. and Cadesiah is situated on the border of the desert: it has running water, and cultivated lands. From Cadesiah, on the confines of Irak, until you come to Medinah (مدينة اللسلام Medinah Alssalam, the city of Islam), there is not any running water.

Baghdad is a celebrated city, erected since the introduction of Islam. It was built by ابو جعنو منصور Abou Jaffer Mansour*. At first the western quarter was built, and every one settled himself there in any manner he thought fit. Afterwards it became populous; and when مراكب Mohdi succeeded to the khalifat +, he encamped his troops on the eastern side. Buildings were then erected, and that quarter also became thickly inhabited. The villas and palaces extended for near two farsang from Baghdad to the river, and this city became the residence of the khalifs. The buildings were continued from the river to the district of المعاون الم

Shemasiah, a distance of nearly five farsang. The eastern side they call باب الطاق رصانه Bab al Tauk Resafeh, and also Bab al Tauk is derived from a certain great dome, or cupola, in the principal bazar or market-place, called سزف العظيم Souk al Azim.

Resafeh is a considerable suburb, built by شيك Rashid, near the mesjed Jamia: the western side is called the Korkh. Here are three mosques; one, the Mesjed Jamia al Mansour; another, situated at the Bab al Tauk; and the other, at the ما ما المادة Dar al Khalifah, or palace of the Khalif: and the buildings continue as far as المادة Kelwazi, where there is a mosque. Over the river Dejleh a bridge has been constructed of boats; and from the عام المادة Bab alia Sertheh, the breadth of the city at both sides is about six miles.

Korkh is very well inhabited, and considerable commerce is there carried on; but the trees and streams are on the eastern side. The water they drink is of the river in Nehrwan. On the western side there is a stream, called the invertible in Nehr Isa, or the river of Jesus---a branch of the Forat, which, passing by Baghdad, falls into the Dejleh.

Between Baghdad and كوفه Cufa there are many districts and villages, through which run streams from the river Forat. Here is situated the town of or Sarsar, on the stream called Sarsar, at a distance of three farsang from Baghdad. It is a pleasant town, with land well cultivated. After that, at a distance of two farsang, is the نهر البلك Nehr al Molk (or the King's river.) There is a bridge over it; and it is much more considerable than the river of Sarsar. The district of Nehr al Molk is better cultivated, and affords more corn and fruits, than Sarsar. From that one proceeds to قصر ابن هبيره Kesr Ebn Hobeireh, situated on the river Forat, and one of the most considerable places between Cufa and Baghdad. Here are several streams, so that the water is much augmented, and passes on to the town of Soura. The great river Forat has not any branch more considerable than this. From Soura it proceeds to the sound (ol or villages in the neighbourhood of Cufa; and after that falls into the river of Betaiah.

کربلا Kerbela is situated on the west of the Forat, opposite to or near (برابر) Kesr ebn Hobeireh.

Sumereh is altogether situated to the east*. In this quarter there is not any running water, but the river Al-katoul, that runs at some distance from the town. Buildings, and streams, and trees, are opposite, on the western side, and extend for near one merhileh. The first founder of this place was Motasem; and it has since fallen into the hands of Motawakel*, and is all in ruins, so much that within the space of a farsang there is not any building or cultivated land to be seen. On the north it has the borders of ميب Seimereh, and کو خدال Lour, as far as the borders of جبال Lour, as far as the borders of جبال Lour, as far as the borders of المناب Jebal, adjoining the territories of Spahaun. It is said that Lour was once reckoned as belonging to Khuzistan; but at present it is comprehended within Jebal.

The boundaries of Khuzistan towards Pars and مناها Sfahan, and the borders of Jebal and Waset, are straight lines on the four sides: But on the southern side, from عبالها Abadan, to the villages about Waset, the boundary is an irregular line; and from Abadan to the sea, and the borders of Pars: then this southern boundary proceeds along the sea shore; then to the Dejleh, and passes from المعالف Barma: thence winds from above عناه Meftah and معال Medar, among the villages of Waset, there whence we first set out.

The land of Khuzistan is level. It has many running streams, the chief of which is the river of Shushter: and King Shapour* caused to be constructed on this river a wall (or mound) called منافع Shadervan; by means of which the town of Shushter, situated on an eminence, might be supplied with water. This river comes from الشكال Leshkur (or Asker Mokrem) to المنافع and goes on to the Hysn Mohdi, on the sea side. Another river of Khuzistan is called المنافع Nehr at Mushirkan, on which, at Leshkur, a great bridge has been erected; and by this river one may go from Leshkur to Ahwaz, a distance of eight farsang; but when one has gone six farsang, all the water is drained off, for various purposes of husbandry and agriculture; and for two farsang the bed of the river is altogether dry. In the land of Khuzistan there is not any place more populous or cultivated than Musherkan.

The streams of Khuzistan, from Ahwaz, and Dourek, and Shushter, and all that rise in this quarter, are collected together at Hysn Mohdi, and there, forming one great river, fall into the sea. There is not any of the sea in Khuzistan, except a little of the sea. There is not any of the sea in Khuzistan, except a little of the place of the province is more dry, in proportion as it is distant from the river Dejleh: that part nearer the Dejleh is like the soil of Basrah, and that region.

Throughout Khuzistan there is not either ice or snow; nor is there any part of it which does not afford dates. It is a very unhealthy country. All kinds of fruit are to be found in Khuzistan, except walnuts (), and the fruit of trees peculiar to a cold climate.

For the greater part, Arabick and Persian are spoken in this province: there is also a particular dialect in Khuzistan. The fashion of the people, in their dress, resembles that of the inhabitants of Irak. They are in general of bad dispositions; and mostly of a yellow complexion, with scanty beards; and of the Motazelite sect (Mahommedan schismaticks.)

Among the wonders of Khuzistan, is the Shadervan of Shapour (before mentioned) at Shushter. It is said to be a mile in length, constructed of stone and mortar, for the purpose of conducting water to Shushter.

In the city of week, there is a river; and I have heard, that, in the time of heave? Abou Mousa Ashoari, a coffin was found there: and it is said the bones of Daniel the Prophet (to whom be peace!) were in that coffin. These the people held in great veneration; and in time of distress, or famine from droughts, they brought them out, and prayed for rain. Abou Mousa Ashoara ordered this coffin to be brought, and three coverings or cases to be made for it; the first, or outside one, of which was of boards, exceedingly strong; and caused it to be buried, so that it could not be viewed. A bay or gulf of the river came over this grave, which may be seen by any one who dives to the bottom of the water.

There is also, in the district of which fire issues at all times. At night this fire gives light; and smoke comes forth in the day-time: and the general opinion is, that there is here a fountain of which (زفت), which has taken fire. There is also a species of scorpion (زفت) which they call ما يورو kezoureh: they are like the leaves of الجمال anjedan (the herb laserpitium or pellitory), and are more destructive than serpents.

Very rich garments of brocade are manufactured at Shushter. At Sus there is a species of orange, which they call پنج انکشت penj-angusht, (or five fingers,) said to be exceedingly fragrant. In this district there is a place called بعض Bosi, where they weave beautiful tapestry; as also at کلیوان Keliwan, and at بر دون Berdoun.

THE Persian Sea is a bay of that great ocean which extends as far as China, along the coast of Hindoostan. In Persian it is called the Sea of Pars, or of Kirman, because that none of the countries situated on it are more populous, cultivated, or delightful, and because, in ancient times, the kings of Pars were the most powerful and illustrious; and even at this present time the people of Pars are famous in all quarters.

ذكر شهرهاي بزرك و بناهاي معروف

Description of the great Cities and remarkable Edifices.

Istakhar* is a city neither small nor great, more ancient than any city whatsoever of Pars. The extent of it is about one mile; and the sovereigns of Pars had their dwellings there, and Ardeshir resided in that place; and there is a tradition that Solomon, the Prophet (the blessing of God be on him!) used to set out from منابع Taberthat in the morning, and at night arrive at Istakhar. There is in Istakhar a mosque, which they call the Mosque of Solomon, the son of David: and some people affirm that بالمامة المامة المامة

Beshadour was built by King Shapour. It has strong ramparts, and a ditch with water, in which weeds and thorns grow as high as the waist of a man, so thickly entangled, that one cannot, without considerable difficulty, be extricated from them. This place has four gates; and in the midst of it is a singular hill, or eminence, like a tower or dome. The buildings are of clay.

Jawr was built by Ardeshir. It is said that this place was formerly a small lake, and that Ardeshir, having there obtained a victory over his enemy, desired to build a city on the spot, and ordered the water to be drained away. The walls are of clay. There are four gates: One is called the Je July Bab Mihr; it leads to the east: another is the باب بهرام Bub Behram, leading to the west. On the right hand is situated the الروازه هرو Derwazeh Hormuz, or Gate of Hormuz; and on the left the gate of Ardeshir دروازه اردشير. This gate was erected by Ardeshir; and from it there is a view of all the districts and territories. Opposite to this is a hill, from which water gushes with great force, and falls into an aqueduct, which was formed of stone and mortar, but is now fallen to rain. The city is well supplied with running water; and in the vicinity of each gate there is about a farsang laid out in gardens and pleasuregrounds.

Mohammed ben alcassem Okail, uncle (or cousin-german) of جاے بن یوسف Hejaje ben Yousuf. The productions of every city are brought to Shiraz, and are not taken from that to any place. This was chosen as the station of the army of Islam, on account of its vicinity to Istakhar, during the war*. The city was at that time built: it extends about one farsang, and has not any walls. Here is a Divan (Court of Revenue, Tribunal, &c.) and the Collectors of the Revenue go there.

Aberkouh, and the best in that Koureh. The town called من Mekeh is situated near the borders of البرقوه Yezd and البرقوه Herieh goes between from the شق Shek of Kirman and the borders of Isfahan !. Istakhar: it has not any trees. رودان Rudan resembles Aberkouh in every respect, but that it produces more fruit, and is better supplied with provisions. Serour is a small town; but plentifully supplied. بيضا Beiza is one of the largest towns in the Koureh of Istakhar: it is a pleasant and well-inhabited place: its walls are white; and it was the station of the Mussulman army at the time of the conquest of Istakhar. From this place they send corn to Shiraz.

ذكر كوره شاپور

Of the Koureh of Shapour.

ONE of the chief cities in the Koureh Shapour, is Cazeroun. It is about the size of Lubendjan; but Cazeroun is more populous, and stronger, and of better air: the air of Cazeroun is the purest of all Pars. They drink there, well-water; and have abundance of fruits and crops. Cazeroun and Nubendjan are the most plentiful places of all the Koureh of Shapour.

فکر کوره دارابجرد می Danahierd Of the Koureh of Darabjerd.

Тик largest town in the Koureh of Darabjerd is. www Besa. It is of the same size as Shiraz; and the air of Besa is better than that of Shiraz. In their buildings they use cypress wood. It is an ancient city, with a castle, and walls and ditches. All the productions of a warm and cold climate are to be found there; dates, oranges, &c. All the towns of Darabjerd are near each other.

Of the towns of اردشير دره Ardeshir Dereh we have already mentioned Shiraz. After that is will Siraf, about as large as Shiraz. Here are very wealthy men, such as merchants, and others, who expend thirty thousand dinars on the building of their houses. There are not any trees immediately about Siraf. There is a mountain on the east of the city which they call Jem; this affords fruits and water for the town. Siraf enjoys a warmer climate than any of those other towns.

ارجان Arjan is a considerable city, producing dates and olives in great plenty. From Arjan to the sea is a distance of one merhileh: so that it partakes of the land and sea, of the mountainous and level country.

ذكر آب و هوا و خاك فارس

Of the Water, and Climate, and Soil of Fars*.

The land of Fars is divided into the warm region, lying to the south, as far as کارزین Karzin, and داراب کو Eirkh and فرج Firkh and فرج Hereje. The northern division is cold.

In the warm region are comprised ارغان Arghan, and ارغان Nubendjan, and سنير Mahrooian, and مهرويان Nubendjan, and مهرويان Mahrooian, and مهرويان Jenabah, and المنت رشاف Deshti Reshak, and حوه Hereh, and حاريان Darein, and حاريان Marein, and ماريان Semiran, and خايكان Khemaigan, and سيران Semiran, and ماريان Siraf, and المجروب المناس المناس المناس المناس المناس المناس المناس المناس المناس عباره المناس المناس عباره المناس عباره المناس عباره المناس المناس المناس المناس عباره المناس المناس عباره المناس عباره المناس ا

To the colder region belong المطخر Beiza, and المانيين Manein, كام فيروز Aideje and كام فيروز Kam Firouz, and كام فيروز Goured, and كالر Kellar, and كورد Sersir, and المنايين Sersir, and المنايين Awlenjan, and ين Yezd, and المنايين Serder, and المنايين Serder, and المنايين Serder, and سنايات Setouder, and سنايات Setouder, and سنايات Meshkanath, and المنايين Astehajan, and المنايين Berm, and المنايين Rahban, and المنايين Sermek, and many other places, all belong to this cold part of Fars. But Jawr, and Besa, and Shiraz, and المنايين Beshadour, and Cazeroun, are nearly alike in climate. The cold region is that in which fruits do not arrive at perfection, and where corn only is produced, such as Yezd, and Rahban.

In the warm places, during the summer season, no bird remains on account of the excessive heat. In some parts of it, flesh, if laid upon the stones, in summer time, will be roasted. The climate of the cold region is very healthy: that of the warm parts is not so good, especially of Darabgird. Arghan enjoys a better air, such as Siraf and Jenabah. Shiraz, and Besa, and Cazeroun, and Jawr, are of a more temperate and salubrious climate. The water at Darabgird is bad.

ذكر صورت اهل فارس

Of the Persons (also of the Manners, Languages, Religions, and Chief Families) of the People of Fars.

The inhabitants of the warm parts of this province are of slender make, and brown complexions*, with little hair. In the colder region they are fatter, and have more hair, and their complexions are fairer. And they have three languages: The Parsi (زبان پارسی), which they use in speaking, one to another; though there may be some variations of dialects in different districts, yet it is in fact all the same, and they all understand the language of each other, and none of their expressions or words are unintelligible: The Pehlavi language, نام بالمان على which was formerly used in writings; this language now requires a commentary ناس بالمان which at present is used in the Divans, or Royal Courts of Justice, Revenue, &c.

The dress and ornaments of the princes are, short coats, or tunicks, open before; and large cloaks, or outer garments; small sashes wrapped round the turbans, and swords hung by belts, with tight boots. The Cazis (or magistrates) wear on their heads caps (a), so that their ears are covered, the end hanging on their shoulders. Their shirts are of a fine texture; but they do not wear boots, nor the outer cloak. The secretaries, or writers (could be of Pars, wear the cloak and boots, and their habits resemble those of the Arabians.

As to the manners of the people in Pars, those who are the chief men, and who occupy the higher offices in the service of the sovereign, are polite and courteous: they have fine palaces, and are very hospitable. The people, in general, are kind and civil in their manners. The merchants are remarkably covetous, and desirous of wealth. I have heard that there was a certain man of Siraf who had passed forty years at sea, never leaving his ship during that time: whenever he came to a port, he sent some of his people on shore to transact his commercial affairs; and when that business was finished, he sailed on to some other place. The inhabitants of Siraf devote their whole time to commerce and merchandize. The Author of the book says, "I myself saw at this place several persons who possessed four thousand thousand dinars; and there were some who had still more; and their clothes were like those of hired labourers." But the people of Cazeroun and Besa traffick on shore; and they derive their fortunes from this kind of commerce: they are persevering and patient in the acquiring of riches; and the men of Pars, wheresoever they go, are powerful and wealthy.

As to the different religious sects of the people of Pars, those who inhabit the sea-shore are of the same sect as the people of Basrah. From Siraf to Mahi-rooyan, and to I Arghan, are nearly all the same. The inhabitants of Jehrem are of the Moatazelite heresy: Those who dwell in the warm region are of seven different sects: and those of the cold region, of Shiraz, and Istakhar, and Besa, are believers in the Sonna (or traditions of Mahommed); and some are like the people of Baghdad, and have the Fetwa, according to the rules of those who follow the Hadith, or holy traditions.

In Pars there are Fire-worshippers, or Guebres (البران), and Christians (البران), and some Jews (البران); "and the books of the Guebres, their fire temples, and their customs or ceremonies of Guebrism, or Magism, still continue among the people of Pars; and there are not in any country of Islam so many Guebres as in the land of Pars, which has been their capital or chief residence*."

In the books of the Persians (پارسیان) it is recorded that several of their kings were of Pars, such as Zohak, and Jem, and Feridoun, and others, till the time that Feridoun divided the earth among his sons; and they were the kings of the earth till the time that Zhu'l'karnein (Alexander the Great) came, and slew

Since the introduction of the true faith (Islam), there have been many illustrious men from this province, (Pars.) One of these was Hormuz, a Guebre, who, in the time of Omar ebn Alkhitab, may God reward him! was taken by Abdallah ben Omar, and put to death.

The race of Omareh also called I Jelendi, formerly possessed extensive territories and wide dominions in this country, on the sea-coast, in the vicinity of Kirman. It is said that their empire existed before the time of Moses, on whom be the blessing of God! and that it is to some princes of this family the Koran alludes in that passage,

و كان ورا هم ملك ياخذ كل سغينة غصبا

"And there was behind them a king, who forcibly seized on every (sound) ship *." And to this very time they have soldiers, and plunder on the sea, and pay not tribute to any king: and it was with عبدالله بن احبد الجاندي Abdallah ben Ahmed al Jelendi that عبوبن الليث Omru ben Leith made war for two years; and he did not conquer him until he had called to his assistance two of the family of Omru.

The بني الصغار Beni Alseghar are also of the race of Jelendi سبف الصغار It is said that سبف الصغار Seif al-Seghar is called after them. Those we have mentioned are the more ancient kings of Pars.

called after him. ابوساره Abu Sareh, who seized upon Pars, was of this family: he retained possession of Pars until the Khalif هامون Mamoun sent مامون Mohammed ben alashaath against him, when, in the desert of Shiraz, his army was defeated, and himself slain. To جعنر بن ابي زهير المشيد Jaffer ben abi Zoheir, هارون الرشيد Haroun Arrashid gave the viziership. هارون الرشيد Muzuffer ben Jaffer Reshak has it, and is Lord of the Scymetar خداوند شهشير Bejerm, belongs to him.

The race of Khanteleh, عنوا خنطاه They are of the family of بني تبيع Arweh ben Adyeh, who crossed over from Bahrein to Pars, in the time of the Ommiades (بني اميد). After the death of Arweh, they settled in Istakhar, where they accumulated great riches, and lived in splendour. One of them, called Omru, was so wealthy that he purchased a book * (مانون) at the price of one thousand dinars, and bequeathed sums of money for religious purposes, and alms, throughout all the cities and provinces of Islam; and the income and taxes of their estates were ten thousand thousand direms.

Mamoun the sovereignty of the sea. After him, مردس بن عبرو Merdas ben Omru, who was called بويلان Bouyellan, possessed such estates, that every year his taxes amounted to three thousand direms. His son, المحمد بن واصل Mohammed ben Wasel, was equally rich. The chief of this tribe was عبرو بن عيسه Omru ben Aiseh. At the time the Turks assumed the Khalifat, they desired to remove them from court; and the province of Fars was divided among forty nobles of the Turks, the chief of whom was of Mouled: Having reproved them for their tyrannical conduct and wickedness, they all conspired against him, and sought to kill him: he applied for protection to Merdas, who saved him from those nobles, and sent him to Baghdad. The Turks then gave the command to ابراهیم بن سیارا Ibrahim ben Simara; and عبدالله بن محل Abdallah ben Vahia sent a letter, desiring that those nobles might be seized, and put to death. Ibrahim ben Simara took four of them, and slew them; and pardoned the others. From that time forth he was chief of the Turks (ریس و مقدم ترکان) in Pars.

Pars; and عبدالرحين بن مغلاء Abdar'rahman ben Moflah was sent from Baghdad with a great army, and a general, named ماشتر Tashem. In a battle with Mohammed ben Wasel, this Tashem was slain; and Abdar'rahman, being taken prisoner, was put to death. Pars continued in his possession until his kinsman Merdas invited Yacoub ben Leith, who came into Pars, and defeated Mohammed ben Wasel, who fled from مرو Beiza to Merou. At the time that Mohammed ben Wasel returned from battle with Abdarrahman ben Moflah, Yacoub ben Leith defeated Mohammed, who went to sea (or fell into the sea, المال), and was brought from that to Yacoub: he was confined for some years in a castle; but, whilst Yacoub was absent, having gone to the borders of نيشاپور Nishapour, Mohammed, with a band of the prisoners, got possession of the castle, and Yacoub sent people to put them to death.

For some time they put it on a spear, and bore it about in front of the army. The skull was set in silver, and continued till the time that عرو بن ليث Omru ben Leith defeated عرو بن عبد العزيز Ahmed ben abdalaziz, when that curiosity having fallen into his hands, he ordered it to be broken. he dwelt in Basrah; and was slain there in the time of منصور Mansour. The occasion of this was as follows: he had given a passport, or letter of security, for عبدالله بن علي بن منصور Abdallah ben Ali ben Mansour; and in it was written "If this " promise of protection should not be observed, or if violence " should be offered to him, Mussulmans shall nevertheless be free " from any blame." Mansour, enraged at this, sent an order to the Aumil (or Chief Collector of Revenue) at Basrah, that he should privately destroy Abdallah ben al Mefakaa.

Yahouiah, the Grammarian and Scribe, was originally of Istakhar: he resided at Basrah, and died at Shiraz, where his tomb is. He composed a Treatise on Grammar.

A great many officers of the Khalif's Divans (or Courts of Justice, Revenue, &c.) were of Pars; some viziers, such as the Barmeks (Barmecides). At all times the offices of state were filled by men from Pars, who are peculiarly qualified for those situations, because they are rendered so expert in business, by the multiplicity and various forms of their Courts and Tribunals, that one person will discharge the functions of several difficult offices. I have not seen any others who were so universally acquainted with business, except two or three: معلي بن النصر Maali ben al Nasser, who was secretary to حسن رجا Hassan Reja; he came from Irak, and was killed at Shiraz. Hassan Reja, who managed the war department, caused a tomb to be erected for him at Shiraz.

Bedar Hedaf ben Zerar al Mazeni was fifty years employed in the Divans, and lived six years after he became blind. هامان بن بهرام Haman ben Behram was of Shiraz, and belonged to the Divan of Ali ben al hosein ben Basher: علي بن الحسين بن بش he was afterwards transferred to the Divan of المحبد بن واصل he was afterwards transferred to the Divan of كالم المحبد بن واصل Mohammed ben Wasel, and superintended every Divan except that of Ambassadors.

There is a race or family in Pars, called the اهل بيوت Ahil Biout, to whom the business of the Divans belongs by hereditary right. The family of حبيب مدرك Habib Medrek, and the family of Fazl, the son of that Habib, are of this tribe, which is originally of خيروز Kam Firouz. They settled at Shiraz, and managed important matters, and became great; and the Khalif Mamoun invited معتب Medrek ben Habib to Baghdad, and held him in high esteem. His death happened in Baghdad, in the time of معتب Motazem. It is said that المحتب Vahia Aksem hired some person to murder him privately.

The race of the Beni Sefar بالمين صغار are of the tribe of بالمله Bamlah. يعدالوجين Yahia, and بالمله Abdarrahman, and عبدالرجين Abdallah, of the children of Mohammed ben Ismael عبدالله بن السعيل, resided in Pars during the reign of Mamoun, and filled the offices of the Divan. Merdshad علي مردشاه بن علي مردشاه and the sons of Hassan, مردشاه بن علي المرد and the sons of Hassan, العبال ديوان Hosein and Ahmed, are Aumils of the Divan.

(عبال ديوان) Many other men of Pars have arrived at high religious dignity in various places.

Hosein ben Mansour al Hellah حسين بن منصور الحلام was of Beiza. He was a man of probity, and virtue, and wisdom; and arrived at considerable eminence. He said, "Whosoever " honestly strives with all his heart, and, separating himself from " the allurements of pleasure, shall hold fast the bridle of sensual " desire, and patiently wait, shall ascend to the court of honours " by the steps of uprightness, and gradually be purified from the " infirmities of human nature; or if human nature should occa-" sionally shew itself in him, it will be such as was imparted to " Mary the Virgin, by the power of the spirit of Almighty God, " the fruit of which was Jesus, on whom be peace! All that " such a man shall utter, will be, as it were, the voice of the " Lord; and all his actions, as it were, divine; and all his com-" mands like those of Heaven." In this manner spoke Hosein ben Mansour, and preached to all the people about him, till many of the viziers and officers of the Divan began to imitate him; and he gained influence over the nobles and princes of Irak, and Jezireh, and Jebal, and Rei. He would not return to Pars; and meditating on his own business, he went to Baghdad, and was in the palace of the Khalif, and had attendants, porters, and slaves, till at length he was hanged alive...

Hassan, surnamed ابو سعيد Abu Saied, was of low origin. He introduced the heresy of the ترسطيان Karmestians. Having gone to Bahrein on mercantile business, he preached to the people of Arabia, and great numbers followed him; and he acquired such power that he defeated armies, and took a castle from the people of عبان Oman, and seized some towns of Arabia; but was at last slain.

Selman ben Hassan was a man who went into the road of the hadjes, or pilgrims going to Mecca, and robbed and slew them: and at last proceeded to such lengths, that he plundered the treasures of the Kaaba, and killed the pious men who devoted themselves there to incessant prayer. In consequence of this, Hejaje ordered his kinsmen to be seized, and brought to Shiraz: they were kept a while in confinement; but, being men of good character, were not made responsible for his offences.

Account of the most extraordinary Edifices in Pars, (and other Curiosities.)

In the territory of lower Istakhar is a great building, with statues carved in stone; and there, also, are inscriptions, and paintings. It is said that this was a temple of Solomon, to whom be peace! and that it was built by the Dives, or Demons: similar edifices are in Syria, and Baalbeck, and Egypt.

In the territory of Istakhar, also, there is a kind of apple, half of which is sweet, and half sour. Merdas ben Omru mentioned this circumstance to Hassan Reja: he denied the possibility of it, and Merdas sent and caused one to be brought, and shewed it to him*.

At the village of Abdar'rahman on there is a certain great pit, the bottom of which is dry all the year, except at the season for watering the fields, when water issues from it, and serves for the purposes of agriculture and for drinking. When it is not any longer necessary for the husbandman's use, the water disappears.

In the territory of شاپور Shapour, there is a mountain; and in that mountain are the statues of all the kings, and generals, and high priests (موبده Moubed), and illustrious men, who have existed in Pars: "And in that place are some persons who have representations of them, and the stories of them written †;" and this tribe belongs to the territory of ارغان Arghan, at Hysn Mohdi د مسن مهدي.

In the vicinity of ! Aberkouh are considerable heaps of ashes. The common people say, that here was the fire of Nimrod (into which he caused Abraham to be thrown.) But this is not true: the fact is, that Nimrod, and the kings of Canaan, dwelt in the land of Babylon.

In the Koureh of Arghan, at the village called old Sahil al Areb, there is a well, from which proceeds water enough to turn a mill, and water the fields. The people here say, that they have made various efforts to ascertain the depth of this well, but have not ever been able to reach the bottom.

In the Kourch of رستاف الرستاق Rostak ar'rostak, there is a place between two hills, from which smoke constantly issues; and it is said, that if a bird should fly near that place, it would drop down.

In the دشت وارين Desht-Varein, there is a village called خسروهين Khosruhein, in which there is not any tree. Here is a family, of whose sorceries and magick I have heard such an anecdote as cannot be repeated.

In اردشير دره Ardeshir Dereh, near the gate of Shiraz, is a fountain, of which they drink the water as a purgative: one cup full operates once upon the body; two cups full, twice: if one drinks many, it occasions vomitings, and excessive evacuations.

Near Arghan, on the borders of Khuzistan, is a remarkable pile, or heap, called the تل ديليي Tel Deilemi, with a vault or recess, two hundred paces broad, and so high that a man, mounted on a mule, with a standard in his hand, cannot reach the top.

In the territory of Louan, there is a certain flower, which they eat green, like the leaves of the _ Ehukender.

In the territory of Shiraz there is a plant, or herb, which they call we susen Nergus, (the Lily Narcissus.)

Near الريض Varein there is a river, called المرجين Nehr-Cheen, the water of which is pleasant to the taste, and is used for the purposes of agriculture; but when clothes are washed in it, it becomes green.

Account of the Commodities and Productions of Fars

The rose-water of Shiraz is most remarkably excellent, and highly esteemed in all parts of the world. It is chiefly made at Jawr. and sent by sea to Hejaz, and Yemen: it is also sent to Syria, and Egypt, and Magreb or Africa, and Khorasan. Here also is made oil, better than that of any other place, except the oil of Kheiri (وغن خيري), and that of Cufah.

At Juniar, and Jenabah, and Jenabah, and Sinir, and Sinir, and Jenabah, and Jenabah

At ابرقوه Aberkouh they manufacture clothes ابرقوه Yezd and ابرقوه Aberkouh they manufacture clothes of silk and cotton; at جبره Jehrem, fine carpets. At عبدان Desht-i-Varein, they make beautiful tapestry and carpets. Besa is remarkable for needle-work; and they excel there, in respect to that art, the people of ترقوب Corcoub.

At wife Siraf they abound in marine productions, and commodities brought by sea; such as aloes, ambergris, camphire, pearls, canes, ivory, and ebony: pepper, sandal, and various kinds of drugs and medicines, are sent from that place to all quarters of the world; and in this city there are such wealthy merchants, that several of them possess fortunes of sixty thousand thousand direms; and I have seen them.

Afaresk, افارسک Afaresk افارسک Afaresk اوغان Afaresk, they make such excellent دوشاب doushab (syrup), that no other place can equal it in that respect, except سیالان Seilan.

At کازرون Kazeroun there is a certain species of date, called خیلان kheilan, which they send into Irak and Isfahan. At مخیلان Darabgird, in the ditches which surround the town, there is a certain fish extremely pleasing to the taste, without any bone.

In the vicinity of Darabgird, mummy is found. Once every year they open the place where it is produced, and a certain quantity of it is taken for the king's use, in presence of confidential persons, who then seal up the place. And in the territory of Darabgird there are hills of salt, white, black, yellow and green.

In the land of Pars there are mines of silver, and iron, and lead, and sulphur, and naphta. The silver is scarce, and found in the cold region called olimbia. Iron is brought from the mountains of Istakhar, and from the place called Darabgird.

The striped stuffs of Shiraz are well known; and in the Koureh of Istakhar they manufacture fine linen.

Of the Money, the Weights, and Measures, of the People of Fars.

Is buying and selling, they use direms and dinars: but since the time of the Kesris*, to the present day, there has not been any coinage of direms in Pars, unless in the name of the Emir al Moumenin امير الهومنين Commander of the Faithful.

^{*} The fourth Dynasty of Persian kings, or the Saturnides are called the Akarreb or Kerris; of these Noushirvan was peculiarly styled Kerri: in his reign Mohammed was born. The last of this Dynasty was Yezdegerd, who died Anno Hegirae 32, (A. D. 652.)

In Pars the weight of the direm is two مثقال methkals. The stone (سنک) is of two kinds, great and small: the great stone is one mun (سنک) a thousand and forty direms, like the stone of Ardebil سنک اردبیل; the small stone is the stone of Baghdad and the stone of بینک اردبیل; Beiza, one mun eight hundred direms. At Istakhar four hundred direms make the stone. At محرد Behreh, two hundred and eighty direms; at Shapour, three hundred direms; and at اردشیر خره Ardeshir Khereh, two hundred and forty direms.

The جيب Jereil of Shiraz contains ten نفيز kefiz; and a kefiz, sixteen رطل rotels, a little more or less. The jereib is one hundred and thirty rotels; and that is divided into half, third, and quarter. The jereib of Istakhar is half the jereib of Shiraz. The measure or weight (کيبل) of Beiza is more than that of Istakhar by about a tenth and half a tenth; and the measure of Kam Firouz is greater than that of Beiza, by about one tenth. The measure of Arghan exceeds that of Shiraz by a fourth: and the measure of Kazeroun and of Shapour is a sixteenth more.

ذكر ابواب المال

Account of the Gates of Wealth, or the manner of raising the Revenue.

THE gates of wealth, or those by which money is supplied in the Divans, are the taxes or tribute: a tenth on ships; a fifth on the mines, on corn, fodder, the mint, the roads, the canals, fruits, iced waters, salt, &c.

The tribute of lands is of three kinds: by division, and by regulations and statutes. All the proportions are exactly ascertained, and admit not of any diminution. Whether the ground be tilled, or not tilled, the measurements and divisions take place: if the ground is cultivated, it pays tribute; if not cultivated, it is so much lost.

The greater part of the country is subject to measurement, as far as the Zems are. The taxes of Shiraz are more considerable, in proportion as their jereib is the great jereib for such things as wheat and barley. The jereib is two hundred and thirty-seven direms. The garden jereib is one thousand four hundred and twenty-five direms. The small jereib is sixty j guz, of the king's cubit or yard (i.e.); and the king's cubit is nine تبضة kebsets, or handfuls. The great tax is the tax of Shiraz, because جعنر بن ابي زهير Jaffer ben Abi Zoheir spoke to Haroun Ar'rasheid on the subject, and he ordered that a third and a fourth should be paid. The tribute of Istakhar is not so considerable as that of Shiraz.

The tax of division is of two kinds. The better is that of the Emir al Moumenin Omar, (may God reward him!) and the other khalifs, which divides into tens, threes, and fours. These are taxes paid on the products of agriculture, and various other duties and tributes, nearly the same as in other countries.

In all Pars there is not any mint, except at Shiraz. The land belongs to the sovereign: he lets it out to farm at certain rents. There was not any tax in Pars on shops, or work-houses, or gardens, or trees. علي بن عيسي Ali ben Isa laid a tax on them in the year 302*.

Of the Province of Kirman.

To the east of Kirman lie the land of Makran, and the deserts of that country, and Bahrein (the two seas), on the borders of Molouje. To the west of Kirman lies the land of Pars, which we have before described. On the north are the deserts of Khorasan and Sejestan; and on the south the Persian sea and Mersey Makran, and

In the region of Kirman the climate is both warm and cold. The fruits are of all kinds; chiefly those of the warm climates. Part of Kirman is bordered by the sea. Here are their harbours and ports, which are subject to excessive heat, such as Alaroun, and some others; and the air in general is not pure.

Now we proceed to describe the cities and mountains of Kirman, and to lay before the reader a map of that province, such as we have seen it.

Hormuz, جيرفت Sirgan, جيرفت Jireft, بيركان Bam, هرمخ Hormuz, ميركان Douhin: these cities are, by some, reckoned as belonging to Pars; by others to Kirman. جيروقان Jiroukan, مرزقان Mezer-kan, معون Keri, كري Allas, كري Allas, كري

The mountains of قارن Karen: ایغان Aikan, ایغان Deher Houmah, are by some assigned to کوهستان ابو غانع Kouhestan abou Ghanem. Between Hormuz and Jireft are the towns of منوجان Koumin, منوجان Merzingan, منوجان Merzingan منوجان and the mountains or hills of Kefes, بان Baren جبال قنص

In Kirman there is not any lake or great river: there is that bay, or gulph, called the Persian Sea, which comes from the ocean near Hormuz; the water is salt, and ships pass on it to and fro. In parts of Kirman there are several mines.

ذكر كوههاي كرمان

Of the Mountains of Kirman, (the Inhabitants, and Chief Cities.)

The mountains of تغض Kefes lie on the southern border, near the sea. To the north, near the borders of Jireft, are رودان Rudan and the Kouhestan, or hilly country of ابوغائم Abnghanem. On the east is خواس Khouas, and the desert extending towards Kefes, and the province of Makran. On the south of that is بلوج Bolouje, or Bolouche, and the borders of Mirjan بلوج الله ميرجان

In the mountains near Hormuz, it is said, there is much cultivated land, and cattle, and many strong places. On every mountain there is a chief: and they have an allowance from the Sultan or Sovereign; yet they infest the roads of Kirman, and as far as the borders of Fars and of Sejestan: they commit their robberies on foot; and it is said that their race is of Arabian origin, and that they have accumulated vast wealth. "The Boloujes, are "in the desert of Mount Kefes was and Kefes in the "Parsi language is Konje; and they call these two people "Konjes and Boloujes. The Boloujes are people who dwell

" in the desert*: they infest the roads, and have not respect for any person."

The mountains of Aaren belong to the cold region of Kirman: they are fertile and strong; snow falls on them; and in the time of the Guebres, or Fire-worshippers, they used to come down from these mountains and rob; but in the reign of the Abbassides they became converts to the true religion, and have kept their hands from evil actions. These mountains afford mines of iron. The mountains of the silver mines are near the borders of Jireft, and extend to the pass of a Derban; from that to the silver mountains is a journey of two merhileh. There are pleasant and fertile valleys, with small towns, and many delightful villas.

The warm part of Kirman is more extensive than the cold; insomuch that there is not above one-fourth of the province liable to the cold, from the borders of with Sirgan to the desert, in the vicinity of Bam. The warm region extends from the borders of Hormuz to Makran, and to the confines of Pars, and of Sirgan, throughout Hormuz, and with Miougan, and Jireft,

^{*} The epithet Sebra Nishin (See Appendix) is sometimes used to express a solitary retired man, a hermit, &c. The Ferhang Borhan Kattea informs us, that Bolouche is the name of a people inhabiting the desert (قومي صحراني); also the name of a country of Iran or Persia. I write the name Bolouche, on the authority of this excellent dictionary, which accents the first syllable with damma, and describes the last letter chim Farsi.

and the hills of کوی Kouje, and the کوی desht viran, or "the dreary waste;" also throughout Bam and the desert, and to the borders of Kirman, and to خیص Kheis.

The inhabitants of Kirman are lean and slender, with brown complexions*. Towards the west of Jireft, snow falls. Among the hills of silver, and as far as Derban to Jireft, and likewise from before the hill of Jarem to near Jireft, and the place called Derman, there runs a considerable river, with such a rapid stream, that it is not to be crossed without difficulty: it turns about twenty mills.

Hormuz is the emporium of the merchants in Kirman, and their chief sea-port: it has mosques and market places, and the merchants reside in the suburbs.

Jireft is in extent nearly two miles; it is situated near the sea: here they enjoy at once all the productions of both warm and cold climates.

Bam is a considerable town, with extensive suburbs. Prayers are said on the chief festivals, in three different great mosques, and there is a small one in the market-place. Some of the people are of the Sonnite sect. In the castle of the city there is another mosque, with a publick treasury, and other offices.

^{*} Literally wheat-coloured Cos Sica

The town of سيركان Sirgan is watered by subterraneous trenches or aqueducts: in the suburbs they raise water from wells. This is the largest of all the cities in Kirman. The inhabitants are observers of the Hadith, (or holy traditions.) The people of بوغانم Rudbar, الموالية Kohestan, الموالية Bou Ghanem, and المالية Bolouje, are all of the Shiah sect: and from the borders of Maaoun, and الشكرة Lashgird, to the territories of Hormuz, the people are industrious and honest; they cultivate sugar, and eat bread made of millet (الرزية). They give one tenth of their dates to the king, like the people of Basrah: and whatever dates are shaken from the trees by the wind, they do not touch, but leave them for those who have not any, or for travellers: and it happened one year, that half the dates were thus blown off the trees, yet the owner did not take one of them.

The territory of Roulest is a dry soil. The people are, for the greater part, robbers and plunderers. There are a town and a village on the sea-coast, where they catch fish. It is a stage on the road to Pars.

The language of the inhabitants of Kirman is the Persian; but the Kouches have another language, and also the Bolouches.

Fine linen and striped stuffs are manufactured at Zareid, and are sent into Pars and Irak.

The خواس Khouas are a tribe of the desert: they have camels, and date trees; and their houses are made of reeds.

ذكر بالاه فند و بعضي از هند

Of the Country of Sind, and part of Hind.

We proceed to describe the land of Sind, and some part of Hind, and the country of مكران Makran, and طوران Touran, and مكران Nedeheh, and the bordering territories which belong to the possessors of Islam.

The eastern boundary of these regions is the Persian Sea. On the western side lie Kirman, and the deserts of Sejestan, and some territories of that province. On the north is the land of Hind, and its territories. The southern boundaries are the deserts of Makran, and the territory of the Bolouches; and a part of this borders on the Persian Sea, which is winding and curved on these confines.

Now we shall lay before the reader a map of those parts of Hind and Sind, and describe the curious and extraordinary places of them. Some parts belong to Guebres (کبران), and a greater portion of this country to کافران Kafers (Infidels) and Idolaters

ذكر شهرها كه دراين اتليم انتاده است

Of the Cities and Towns situated in these Countries.

There are ميدون Seidan, ميدون Meimoun, ميدون Multan, Heidour; names of cities in Sind and part of Hind. These, for the greater part, are inhabited by Infidels: but there are, in this country, some Mussulmans, who have mosques, and on stated days read the Khutbah: and the Indian sovereign who dwells here has a very extensive empire.

The city of Mansourah is about a mile in breadth, and as much in length; and a bay or arm of the river Mihran passes by it, and renders it like an island. The inhabitants of Mansourch are of the descendants of Mansourch are of Hebar ebn Alasoud. He took the place, and it continues till this time in the possession of his family. It enjoys a warm climate, and produces dates, apples, and pears, and a fruit resembling the peach: it is a place abounding in provisions. Their coins are the Sale Kaheri, every direm of which is equivalent to (or weighs) fifty direms; and another of silver, which they call Alabot, one direm of which is fifty direms; they also use gold in their commercial intercourse. Their dress and habits resemble those of the people of Irak; but their kings affect the appearance of Indian kings, and wear pendants in their ears.

The city of Moultan is about half the size of Mansourch. It is called the "Golden House;" for there is in the city a certain idol, to which the Indians of the country come as on a religious pilgrimage, every year, and bring great riches with them; and those who pray in the temple of this idol must pay a tribute. This temple is situated in the centre of Moultan; and in the middle of the temple there is a great cupola or dome. All round this building are various houses, in which the servants and attendants of the idol reside. Moultan is not reckoned as belonging to Hindoostan; but there is in it a race of idolaters who worship in this temple. The idol is made in the form of a man, with the feet on a bench, formed of tiles, or bricks and mortar: it is clothed in a red garment, resembling Morocco leather (""), and no part of the body is to be seen except the two eyes. Some people say the body is made of wood; but they do not permit any one to see more of it than the eyes, which are composed of precious stones. On the head is a diadem of gold. It sits upon a square throne, the hands resting on the knees.

All the riches which are brought to this idol from Hindoostan, are taken by the Emir of Moultan, who distributes a portion among the servants of the temple. When the Indians come there in a hostile manner, and endeavour to carry off the idol from them, the people of Moultan take it forth, and seem to make preparations for breaking and burning it; when the Indians perceive that, they desist from fighting, and return back. If it were not for this circumstance, the Indians would destroy Moultan. There is here a castle, or citadel; but Mansoureh is more populous and improved.

Moultan was styled the بيت الزهب Beit Alzahab, or Golden House, because the Mussulmans were in great distress when they seized on this town, and found in it vast quantities of gold, and acquired power. About half a farsang from the town is a villa, in which resides the Emir of Moultan—on the appointed festivals he goes into the town—he is a تريشي Coreishi of the children of Sam the son of Noah, who conquered Moultan; and he is called the Emir of that place. He has not any power over Mansourah; but the Khutbah is read in the name of the Khalif.

Besmeid is a small town. Besmeid, and Moultan, and يسبيد Chendvar, are situated on the eastern side of the river of Moultan, each at the distance of one farsang from the bank of the river. The water used in these towns is well-water.

Danbul is situated on the eastern side of the river Mihran, on the sea coast; it is the port of this country. In the cultivation of their lands, the inhabitants do not use water. It is a barren place; but people dwell there for the convenience of transacting mercantile business.

mesouai, and سنواي Sedousan, and هليه Beherje, and هستواي Helbeh, are situated on the western side of the river Mihran. هالوي Andi and اندي Daloui are both on the eastern side of it, at a distance from the river, in going from Mansourch to Moultan.

Baloui is situated on the banks of the river Mihran, near a bay, formed by that river behind Mansoureh. Eamhel is a town on the first borders of Hindoostan.

مانه Manah is a small town, built by عبدالعزيز هباره Ab-dalaziz Hebareh, the ancestor of that race which took Mansourah.

and Mekran, and Moultan, and the towns of Mansoureh. This territory lies on the west of the river Mihran. It is a place remarkable for camels. The chief town of this district is a place of much commerce; it is called تنمانيل Kandabil. The men of this town resemble those of the desert; they have houses constructed of reeds, along the banks of the river Mihran, as far as the borders of Moultan, and to the sea side; and between Mihran and Famhel they have pasture lands and meadows. They are a numerous tribe. Famhel, and Sedousan, and معروف Meimoun, and معروف Keniabeh; all four have mosques, in which the religious ceremonies of Islam are publickly performed: there are great quantities of the Indian wall-nut (معروف معروف), and of the fruit called معروف Mouz, with various kinds of herbs, and much honey.

اهوت Rahouk and کلوان Kelwan are two districts between راهوت Armaiel and کیر Kair: both these are without water: they abound in cattle.

احران Touran is a little district, with many small villages and hamlets belonging to it. احدد بن معمر Ahmed ben Maanar possesses them, and the Khutbah is read in the Khalif's name. The town in which he resides is a considerable place, well supplied with provisions, and abounding in fruits; it is never subject to cold weather. Between a wind Maniah and Famhel there is a desert; also between Famhel and winds.

sulmans and Indians are intermixed. In this place the only garment they wear is the fill azar, or sash round the middle, as the heat renders all others unnecessary: it is also the custom at Moultan. In the province of Makran they speak the Persian and Makrani languages. The merchants wear the cloak and turban.

Makran is an extensive country, but liable to scarcity and want of provisions. احسين بن عسي بن معدان Hosein ben Isa ben Maadan took possession of the district called Mihra, and dwelt in the town of كير Kair, which is as large as Moultan, and a good harbour: it has many date trees: in the territory of it is a well called the "Well of Makran." It is the largest town in Makran.

There is a district called خوج Kherouje, the capital of which is السك Rasek, and there is a village belonging to it called السك Herman: these places belong to خيان Zefer ben Reja, and the Khutbah is read in the name of the Khalif. His territory extends near three merhileh; it affords some hundred of date trees, and furnishes فانيد Faneid (a kind of sweet paste or candied cakes), to all quarters; its villages border on those of the province of Kirman, at the place called مسكني Meskeni.

Resasil and تنتابي Kanteli are two large towns within two menzils: from Resasil to the sea is half a farsang.

تندابيل Kandabil is a considerable city situated in the desert. کيرکانان Kirkanan is another large town in the desert.

In the district of ازند Azend the Mussulmans and infidels are all intermixed. Here they have cattle and gardens. The name of a man who took this place was نابل Naiel (or نابل Nabul), and it is called after him.

The waters of the river Mihran are pleasant and wholesome; and they say it is liable to tides, or flux and reflux, like the Nile, and that it is infested by crocodiles. The water, and joins the river Mihran. Water is very scarce throughout the land of Makran; there is some near Mansoureh. Many of the inhabitants of Makran resemble the Arabs; they eat fowl and fish: others of them are like the Curds. Here is the extreme boundary of the land of Islam in this direction.

Now we shall turn back, and begin to describe ارمنیه Ar-menia, and ادربایکا اخربایکا اول Azerbaigan.

Description of Armenia, and Aran, and Azerbaijan.

All the boundaries of these countries, كوهستان Korchestan on the east, and the banks of the Caspian Sea, and the provinces adjacent to اران Armen, and الله Armen, and الله Aran, and the mountains of تنجات Kipchak*, and the borders of Irak and Jezireh, on the south; all these boundaries we lay before the reader in the annexed map.

ارفييل Ardebil is the most considerable city of Azerbaijan: it is about half a farsang in length and breadth, and contains the Governor's palace: it has walls, and four gates, and is a pleasant town, and well supplied with provisions. It has extensive suburbs; and within two farsang of it there is a mountain called with Seilan, which is never free from snow either in winter or summer.

^{*} قبشات Kibshak, according to the Arabian mode of expressing the Persian or Turkish letters Ba and Chim.

Meraghah is nearly of the same size as Ardebil; in former times it was the seat of government: it has villages, and suburbs, orchards, and gardens, and land improved by agriculture. The town had walls: but ابي الساح Abi al Sah demolished them.

Armenia is an extensive and fertile region, bounded by the sea, and full of delightful situations: the towns are منسان Misan, خونه Khounah, المنسان Bervanan, خونه Khounah, سلباس Sel-mas, تبريز Neshoui, برزند Tabriz, تبريز Bezerend, برزند Derban, موقان Moukan, and دربان Khaberan; and several smaller towns.

Berdaa is a populous and flourishing city, with cultivated lands and much fruit. After Rey and Isfahan, there is not in Irak or Khorasan a city more large, more beautiful, or pleasant, than Berdaa. At the distance of one farsang from Berdaa, between Berdeh, and الموت Bektan, there is a well called الموت Anderab; and for one day's journey the whole country is laid out in gardens and orchards. The fruits are excellent; their filberds (فندت) are better than those of Samarcand, and their chesnuts (شاه بلوط) superior to the chesnuts of Syria; and the figs of Berdaa are more delicious than those of any other place. There are also mulberries; and silk is sent from that to Khuzistan, and to Irak.

In the river Kur رافی they take fish of two kinds, وافی Rafen and شد Ausher, which are better than any other fish. At the Curd's Gate (الاروازه كردان) there is a market-place, or bazar, called كري Gurki: every Sunday the people assemble there: it is about a farsang square. Men from Khorasan and from Irak meet there. The Revenue Office is in the great mosque, and the bazars on the ramparts.

Derbend is a city built on the shore of the sea, on two banks of a bay, with two walls constructed so as to render the navigation of ships more convenient and safe; and a chain is drawn across the entrance, that ships may not enter or sail out without permission; and these two walls are formed of stone and lead: and this town of Derbend is situated on the coast of the sea of علي Taberistan. It is larger than Ardebil, with many fields, and meadows, and cultivated lands. It does not produce much fruit; but the people supply that from other quarters. A wall of stone extends from the city to the mountain; and another of clay, to hinder the على المنافعة للمنافعة (Infidels) from coming into the town. Part of this wall projects a little way into the sea, so that ships may not come too near the ramparts. This wall is a strong building, and was the work of منافعة المنافعة المنافعة rounded by enemies, who have different languages. On one side of Derbend is a great mountain called lower Adeib; on this they assemble every year, and make many fires, that they may confound and disperse their enemies from the borders of Azerbaijan, and Armenia, and Arran: they are as numerous as the waves of the sea that come up to the walls of the city. It is said that this mountain, which is close to Derbend, contains above seventy different tribes, who have each a peculiar dialect, and understand not one the language of another.

The sovereigns of Persia have considered the possession of this city as a matter of great importance, and have established a race of people to guard it, called طيريان Tairberan; and there is another tribe called عياليشار Heilabshar, and another called النيان Lekzan: there are also two other tribes, the النيان Leniran and النيان Servan: the foot soldiers are mostly of these tribes; they have few horsemen. Derbend is the port-town for dependent of the second from it they send linen clothes to all parts of Aran and Azerbaijan. Here they also weave tapestry, or carpets, and cultivate saffron.

On the coast of this sea (the Caspian) is another town called شابران Shaberan; it is a small place, but pleasant and well supplied with provisions: it has many villages belonging to it. Above those is the village of جسران Jesmeden, as far as the borders of مرينة Shirvan, and باكو Baku, and Derituk, and المرينة Lekez; and in this village is a castle so very extensive that all the cattle in the country may be secured in it, without any guards or centinels left to watch them.

Teflis is a smaller city than Derbend: it is a pleasant place, and abounds in provisions: it has two walls of clay, and produces much fruit, and agriculture is practised in its territories. It has hot baths, in which, as at طبيه Tiberiah, the water is warm without fire. In all Aran there are not any cities more considerable than Berdaa, Derbend, and Teflis.

As for ريان Berzenje, بيلغان Reyan, and بيلغان Berzenje, and مروان Shamakhy, and شابران Shaberan, and شروان Shirvan, and شابران Alenjan, and تنجه Kablah, and تبله Shemkour, and شكور Sherousend; they are small towns, but pleasant and plentiful.

Deinel is a larger city than Ardebil, and the chief town of Armenia; the palace of the governor is there, as at Berdaa, the capital of Aran. It has very wide and extraordinary ramparts. There are great numbers of Christians and Jews here; and the churches are interspersed among the mosques. Here they manufacture fine hangings, and carpets, and make the beautiful colour called sormez. I have heard that this kermez is a certain worm *.

This place has heretofore been in the hands of شنباط بن اشوط Shenbat ben Ashout, and at all times has belonged to Christian princes; the greater number of the people of Armenia are Christians. Armenia is bordered on one side by Berdaa; on another by the confines of Jezirch; on another by Azerbaijan, and Jebal, and Dilem, and Rey: the south side is bordered by the Seghour of Roum (ثغور روم)

Trabzoun is situated on the extreme confines of Roum; it is much frequented by merchants. سروه Mia-farekin and سروح Serouah are small but pleasant towns.

Description of Kouhestan, that is, Irak Agemi.

On the east of Kouhestan are the deserts of Khorasan, and part of Fars, and Isfahan, and the eastern side of Khuzistan. On the west of Kouhestan lies the province of Azerbaijan. On the north is المن Deilman, and ترك Deilman, and ترك Rey, and Mardein. These towns, Rey, and Cazvin, and المهر Abher, and ترك Zengan, we have not placed in the map as belonging to Kouhestan; we rather assign them to the province of Deilman, because it winds irregularly along Kouhestan. The southern boundaries of Kouhestan are Irak, and part of Khu-zistan.

There are many great and celebrated cities in the province of Kouhestan; such as المنافل Hamadan, and المنافل Deinour, المناهل Isfahan, and ترادقان Isfahan, and الور Kashan, and الور Nehavend, and الور Lour, and جربادقان Lour, and الور Jerbadcan.

In all Irak, date trees are not to be found, except at Semirah, and سابر خواست Sirvan, and سابر خواست Saber Khast, where there are a few: and the people of Kom and Kashan are all of the Shiah sect, and originally from Arabia.

The southern borders of Deilman are خارم Cazvin, and Parem, and part of Azerbaijan, and part of Cay Rey. On the north it has the Caspian Sea (الارباكي خزر), or Sea of Khozr. On the west, part of Azerbaijan, and the towns of that country. On the east are the mountains of Rey, and the hills of خارب On the east are the mountains of Rey, and the hills of خارب Gurkan, and the Caspian sea. The region of Deilman is partly mountainous, and partly flat; the level tract is that of منافع Gilan, on the borders of the Caspian sea, under the mountains of Deilman. The sovereign (بالانتاء) of Deilman resides at ريادي) Rudbar. This territory is covered for the greater part with forests and woods.

In this place are many bazars, and caravanseras, and marketplaces. In the suburbs there is a mosque. The citadel is in good repair, and there is a wall round the suburbs, which is, however, falling to decay, and almost desolate. Here they have both river water and water brought by canals or trenches: one of these is called the خاريز شاهي Kareiz Shahi, or Royal Aqueduct; it passes by Sarbanan: another, called كاريز شاهي Gilani, also passes through Sarbanan. For the most part the inhabitants drink the water of these aqueducts. There are many canals besides. Here they cultivate the land, and practise husbandry, and traffick for gold and direms. The people of this place are hospitable and polite. Here they manufacture fine linen, cotton, and camelots, which are sent to all parts of the world.

Dehmeh is larger than Shelineh; it abounds in cultivated fields, gardens, and orchards, and fruits. There is not any place in the whole country of a more cool temperature.

In the territory of Rey there are villages larger than those towns; such as ارينو Vameiz, and ارينو Arinou, and ارينو Dersein, and ارينو Kousein, and توسين Seist, and خسرو Khosru, and others: and I have heard that in every one of these villages there are two thousand inhabitants or more.

From the territory of Rey, cotton and linen clothes are sent to Baghdad, and into Azerbaijan; and in those places which we have spoken of, there is not any navigable river: a stream flows from the summit of Damavend; and all round this mountain are considerable villages, such as درميه Debiran, and درميه Debiran, and درميه Ali ben Sherouin, who was taken prisoner on the banks of the river المحدود Jihoun.

The mountain of Damavend is the most eastern of all the mountains in Taberistan, and may be seen from all parts of the country: they call it *, because that on it there are not many trees.

Cazvin has two suburbs, with walls. The chief mosque is situated in the great suburbs. The waters of this sea are bitter and dark-coloured; its bottom is a blackish clay, differing in this respect from the Sea of it Kolzum, or of Pars. This Sea of Pars is of such clear water that one may see the white stones at the bottom; but the waters of this Sea of Khozr are dark-coloured, and in it there are not found any such things as pearls, or coral, or similar marine productions. It is, however, much frequented by the ships of merchants who traffick from one town to another; and it affords much fishing. In this ocean there are not any inhabited islands, as in the Sea of Fars and of Roum; but there are many trees and forests *.

[&]quot; لبكن درختار ويبشد بسباراست It is not clear whether those trees occupy the islands of this sea, or tkirt its borders.

One island is considerable, with a fountain of water and many trees; and there is another large island on the borders of الكذاب Lekzan, which has also fresh water. To this island they bring cattle from بردع Berdaa in boats, and turn them out to graze, and leave them until they become fat.

Near دهستان Abisgoun is a place called ابسکون Dehestan, with very sweet and wholesome water. Here the people of the neighbouring places assemble for the purpose of fishing. It is said that there is a race of Turks (ترکان) dwelling in the vicinity of سیاه کوه Siah Kouh (or the black mountain.)

After one passes مراكب Moukan to شيوان Shirwan; from that to Shirwan; from that to Semender, fourteen days journey; and from Semender to Atel. This Atel is a certain river which comes from روس Rous and اتل Bulgar. One half of this river belongs to the western side, the other to the eastern. The sovereign of Atel resides on the western side: he is styled King, and surnamed بال Baul. Here are many tents; and in this country there are but a few edifices of clay, such as bazars (market-places) and bathing houses. In these territories are about ten thousand Mussulmans. The king's habitation is at a distance from the shore: it is constructed of burnt bricks; and this is the only building of such materials in all the country: they will not allow any body but the king to erect such a dwelling.

The city of I'l Atel has four gates. One of those gates faces the river; another looks towards Iran, in the direction of the desert. The king of this country is a Jew; he has in his train four thousand Mussulmans, and Khozrians (Christians), and Idolaters; but his principal people are Jews: And this king has twelve thousand soldiers in his service, of whom when one dies, another person is immediately chosen into his place; and they have no other commander but him. And this king has under him nine magistrates or judges (قاضى): these are Mussulmans, Jews, Christians, and Idolaters. The smallest in number of the inhabitants of this country are the Jews; the greatest in number are the Mussulmans and Christians: but the king and his chief officers are Jews. There are magistrates of each religion; and when they sit in the tribunal of justice, they are obliged to report to the king all that passes, and to bring back his answer and opinion, and put his sentence into execution.

This city has not any suburbs; but the cultivated fields and grounds extend for near twenty farsang. Agriculture is much practised, and the husbandmen carry the produce of their labour in boats and carriages to the city. The chief diet of this people is fish and rice: they bring honey and wax from the borders of Rous. The principal persons of Atel are Mussulmans and merchants: their language is like that of the Turks (or Tartars), and is not understood by any other nation.

The river of Atel comes from the borders of جرجير Jerjir, and from that goes on to كياك Kaimak, and to غز Ghuz, and so on to برطاس Bulgar, and falls into the sea near برطاس Bertas. It is said that this river, at the season when all its waters are collected, is greater than the river عند Jihoon; and that it rushes into the sea with such a body that it seems to conquer the water of the Caspian; and one can see its stream unmixed with the sea water, as far as a journey of two days.

Which has so many orchards and gardens, that from Operbend to Serir the whole country is covered with the gardens and plantations belonging to this city. It is said that there are above forty thousand of them. Many of these produce grapes. In this town are many Mussulmans, who have mosques; and their houses are built of wood. The king is a Jew, in friendship with the Padshah of Khozr, and on good terms with the Padshah of Serir, is two farsang.

The inhabitants of Serir are Tersas or Christians. It is said that in this Serir was a throne, and that there was a certain king of the kings of Pars, who, when he gave a principality to one of his sons, sent him here with a golden throne; which principality has continued established to this time. A son of Behram Chopin is said to have first possessed it *. The inhabitants of Serir are on good terms with the Mussulmans. In this part of Khozr I know not of any other town than Semid (before written Asmid.)

برطاس Bertas is a people near Khozr, on the banks of the river of اتل Atel. They are called برطاس; but the region is also styled in general خور Rous, or Serir.

The people of Khozr are near the Turks (رَرَكَان), whom they resemble. They are of two classes; one of blackish complexions, and such dark hair that you would suppose them to be descended from the Hindoos: the other race fair complexioned; these sell-their children; but it is not allowed among the Jews and the Christians to sell, or make one another slaves.

They bring from other countries those commodities which Khozr does not produce, such as tapestry or curtains, honey, candles, and similar articles. The people of Khozr have not materials for making garments or clothes: they therefore import them from Gurkan, Armenia, Azerbaijan, and Roum. Their king is styled the خاقان خر Khacan of Khozr.

^{*} Behram Chopin is said to have flourished in the latter end of the sixth century of the Christian æra. See D'HERBELOT's Bibl. Orient. Art. Baharam and Serir.

When a prince is to be raised to the Khacanship, they bring him forth, and tie a piece of silk about his throat, so tight that he can scarcely draw his breath. At that moment they ask him, how long he will hold the sovereignty? He answers, "so many years." He then is set at liberty, and becomes Khacan of Khozr. But if he should not die before the expiration of the time he mentioned, when that space is fulfilled, they put him to death.

The Khacan must be always of the Imperial race. No one is allowed to approach him but on business of importance: then they prostrate themselves before him, and rub their faces on the ground, until he gives orders for their approaching him, and speaking. When a Khacan of Khozr dies, whoever passes near his tomb must go on foot, and pay his respects at the grave; and when he is departing, must not mount on horseback, as long as the tomb is within view.

So absolute is the authority of this sovereign, and so implicitly are his commands obeyed, that if it seemed expedient to him that one of his nobles should die, and if he said to him, "Go and kill yourself," the man would immediately go to his house, and kill himself accordingly. The succession to the Khacanship being thus established in the same family; when the turn of the inheritance arrives to any individual of it, he is confirmed in the dignity, though he possesses not a single dirhem. And I have heard from persons worthy of belief, that a certain young man used to sit in a little shop at the public market-place, selling petty articles; and that the people used to say, "When the present Khacan shall have departed, this man will succeed to the throne." But the young man was a Mussulman, and they give the Khacan-ship only to Jews.

The Khacan has a throne and pavilion of gold: these are not allowed to any other person. The palace of the Khacan is loftier than the other edifices.

In the district of Bertas the houses are built of wood. The people are of two tribes or classes; one near the extreme confines of is Ghuz, near like Bulgar, about two thousand in number, under the dominion of the Bulgarians; the other next the Turks. The language of Bulgar and of Khozr is the same. Bulgar is the name of a city, where there are Mussulmans and mosques; and near Bulgar is another town called , where there are also Mussulmans and mosques.

In these two cities there are about ten thousand inhabitants. Here the length of a summer's night is such that a man cannot go more than the distance of one farsang—rather, not so much; and in winter the day is equally short as the night in summer.

^{*} Doubtful in the Eton MS. and mine.

Bulgar; their king dwells in a town called ارتاء *: this is larger than Bulgar. Another race is called ارتاني Orthani or Arthai; their king resides in a place called ارتاني Artha: but the other tribe, called جلابه Jellabeh, is superior to those; but no one goes for the purposes of traffick farther than Bulgar. No one goes to ارتاني Artha, because that there they put to death any stranger whom they find. Artha produces lead and tin, and the animal called (سهروسياه) Black Martin or Scythian Sable. The Russes burn their dead; and it is an established rule amongst them not to shave one another's beards. Bulgar is next to Roum. It is a powerful and numerous people, for the greater part Christians.

Of the Deserts between Pars and Khorasan.

On the east the desert of Khorasan partly borders the province of سیستان Makran, and partly مکران Seiestan; to the south it has کرمان Kirman, and Fars, and part of the borders of Isfahan.

In this desert there are not many habitations of men, as in the (عالميد) desert, where the Arabs have their dwelling; or the other desert between Oman and Yemameh (or على Hemameh), towards the sea, on the borders of Yemen, where also they reside; or the deserts of Makran and سند Sind, in which, likewise, are the habitations of men, and meadows for the pasture of cattle. But this desert of Khorasan is almost totally uninhabited and waste. To the north it has Khorasan and part of men, and selestan; to the west it borders on توسس Seiestan; to the west it borders on توسس Koumis, تاشان Kashan.

This desert is the haunt of robbers and thieves, and without a guide it is very difficult to find the way through it; and one can only go by the well-known paths. The robbers abound in this desert, because it is situated on the confines of so many different provinces. wiah Kouh, or the Black Mountain, belongs to the province of Jebal.

In this desert are some springs; but I never heard of any towns, except, perhaps, one little city (*) of Kirman, on the road to Seiestan.

In this desert, on the road from Isfahan to Nishapour, there is a place called جرمه Jurmeh. On the confines of this desert are some well-known towns: on the borders of Pars, Mabin or Mahin ماهنان, Yezd, عقده Akedeh, اردستان Ardistan of Isfahan; and on the Kirman side, خبيص Khubeis, and وزي Ruzi, and خبيص Bermashir. On the borders of برماشير Kuhestan are برماشير Kom, توهستان Kashan, and دامغان Damghan, on the borders of دامغان Damghan, on the borders of دامغان Damghan, on the borders of دامغان

The principal roads through this desert are those from Isfahan to Rey, from Kirman to Sejestan, from Fars and Kirman to Khorasan; the road of Yezd, on the borders of Fars; the road of Ruzi, and خبيص Khubeiz, and another called رافنو or the new road from Khorasan into Kirman. These are the best known roads.

Route from Rey to Isfahan.

FROM Rey to O Durreh, one merhileh; all this way, except two farsang, is cultivated and inhabited.

From Durreh to Oper Kahein, (no distance marked): the well-water here is bitter, and they drink rain-water, and have two cisterns or reservoirs without the town.

Road of Shour.

Shour is the name of a stream of water in the desert. This road begins at the village of a Bereh*, on the edge of the desert toward the Kirman side. From that village the road winds to the fountain, one merhileh: In this journey there is not any building seen. Thence to Omru Bersereh, one merhileh: here are great pits of red clay, and wells from which the water runs into a reservoir. Thence to مور دوارده Sur Duardeh (probably منور دوازده or), one merhileh. Thence to رباط ويران Rebat Viran (or the mined Rebat deserted, &c.), one merhileh: this place is never free from robbers. Thence to دير برقان Deir Berkan, one merhileh: there are about twenty houses in this place, where is a fountain; the people here are good husbandmen, and they have date trees. At the distance of two farsang is likewise a fountain, with date trees; but no one lives there, as it is the haunt of robbers. At every two farsang is a cistern or reservoir of water, as far as بير شک Bireshk: The water of Bireshk is sweet. From Bireshk to يست Jawr is one merhileh : from Jawr to حور Lest or جور Yest, two merhileh; and from Jawr to Gozi, three merhileh.

Road of Khebeis.

KHEBEIS is a town on the borders of this desert, with running water and date trees. From that to Durak is one merhileh; and during this stage, as far as the eye can reach, every thing wears the appearance of ruin and desolation; for there is not any kind of water. One merhileh to shour, where is a broad water-course of rain water: the stream of Shour waters these grounds, and torrents fall into this water-course. Thence to ارسل Arsel, where is a small hill, one merhileh: thence to a pond, or reservoir of rain water, one merhileh: thence to a Rebat, two merhileh; here is a fountain of running water, and about two hundred inhabitants, who live by husbandry. Thence to Sou Kour, one merhileh; this is a populous village on خوست Kouhistan. From Kou Kour to کوهستان Khust, two merhileh: and on this road of Khebeis, when one goes two farsang from the Rebat, where is the fountain on the way towards Khorasan, there are, for about four farsang, black stones. From Arsel to Kur (کورخاوچی or کوکور) are small stones, some white, some blackish, like camphor (كافور), and some greenish, like glass.

ذكر سيستان

Account of Seiestan or Sejestan.

THE east of Sciestan is bounded by the יגוייט אלוט desert of Makran, and of the land of Sind יאנט אוני, and partly by the territories of שעלוט Multan. To the west it has Khorasan and part of the territories of Hind: To the north it has Hindoostan; it is bounded on the south by the deserts of Sciestan and Kirman.

Zarinje is fortified, and has a castle, with walls and ditches: the water which supplies these ditches, springs up in them; and it has other supplies of water. It has also five gates. One gate is called مرافع المحافظة المحافظة

The fortifications have thirteen gates: one called هروازه رسينا

Dervazeh Remina, or Meina, which leads to Pars; another, the مينا Dervazeh Gurkan; the third, Dervazeh

Ashirek درسان; the fourth, دروازه اشيرک Deri San; the Deri Khouiek; the seventh, عن Deri Kar; the eighth, كر كار Deri Khouiek; the seventh, كر وازه طعام Deri Kar; the eighth, در وازه طعام Deri Belbiki, or Beliski; the ninth, در وازه طعام Deri Aireis; the eleventh, نه ايريس Deri Anjoueh; the twelfth, كر وازه رستان Dervazeh Restan; the thirteenth, is the در وازه رستان Dervazeh Restan; the thirteenth, is the در وازه رستان Deri Zingian. All these gates are built of earth or clay, because wood becomes rotten, and decays.

Here is a mosque, situated without the Dervazeh Pars. The Governor's palace is situated between the English Derwazeh Taam and Dervazeh Pars.

ben festimic a advers

Between these two gates, also, is a lodge or dwelling, erected by يعقوب بن ليث Yacoub ben Leith; and the Governor's palace is one of those which belonged to عبرو بن ليث Omru ben Leith.

Near the Der Gurkouneh, and the Dervazeh Biseky, there is a large building, which was the treasury of Omru ben Leith. The bazars of the town are situated about the mesjed or mosque: they are ample, and well supplied; as are those of the citadel, one of which was built by order of Yacoub ben Leith, who also bequeathed a legacy to the mosque, and another to an infirmary (unique) or hospital for the sick. And from this bazar there is a daily revenue of a thousand direms.

In this city are streams of running water: one passes by the Dervazeh Kohen; another by the Dervazeh Nu; and another by the gate of Taam: where these three meet together, they turn a mill. Near the mosque is a large reservoir of water; from which a stream flows, and enters the gardens belonging to the principal houses. The greatest number of houses are about the suburbs; the citadel, however, has its gardens and running streams.

Some land in the vicinity of this city is barren and sandy. The air is very warm. Here they have dates: there are no hills. In winter there is no snow: in general there is a wind, and they have windmills accordingly.

Between Kirman and Seiestan there are some considerable buildings, the remains, it is said, of the antient city called الم شرستان Ram Shehristan; and they say the river of Seiestan رون سیستان runs through this place. The city of Zerenje was built by men originally of this Ram Shehr.

ذكر روديهاي اين ديار

Of the Rivers of this Country (Sejestan.)

THE most considerable river of Sejestan is called the ود Rudi Heirmend, which comes from غور Ghaur to the city of بست Bost, and from that runs to Sejestan, to the lake Zareh المرياي زره. This lake is very small, when the waters of the river are not copious; when the river is full, the lake increases accordingly. The length of this lake is about thirty farsang from the quarter of مريول كرمان (كوهستان), to the bridge of Kirman ريول كرمان), to the bridge of Kirman بيول كرمان المعالمة والمعالمة والمعالمة

The رول هیرمند Heirmend is a large river, and goes one stage (ایک منزل) from Seistan. There are some other streams, as that which runs to لسکر Lesker; another called سببرو Sebirud or سببرو Seibud; and another called سیبرو Siareh Rud, or Sibareh: and in the seasons that these streams are full, boats come down the Heirmund from Bost to Seistan; and the rivers of Seistan all proceed from the سیاره Siareh Rud.

There is another stream called Levillages. Rud Shaabeh, which affords water to thirty different villages. There is another river here, called Levillages. Rud Meila, which is said to fall into the lake Zareh. On the road to Lost, over this river, they have constructed a bridge of boats, like those bridges which are in Irak. Of the streams which fall into the lake Zareh. one is the رون عاصل Rud Aamil, which comes from the low grounds of فرة Fereh; and رون يسك Rudi Sek, which comes out of غور Ghaur: its waters are almost consumed in passing through the land; but what remains of it falls into the Zareh lake.

Sejestan is a fertile and fine country: it produces dates in abundance. Most of the inhabitants are wealthy and opulent. In the district called جميع Reheje, they apply themselves very much to farming and husbandry. In this district are the towns of معرب المناه المناه

The Khiljians are of a Turkish ("Tartar") race, who, in ancient times, settled in this country, between Hindoostan and the borders of Sejestan. They resemble the Turks or Tartars in personal appearance, and retain the dress and customs of that nation; and all speak the Turkish language.

Bost is one of the principal cities in the province of Sejestan; except Zirenje, no city is larger than it. The inhabitants of Bost are polite and generous, resembling, in dress and manners, the people of Irak. It is a city well supplied with provisions, fruits, and dates: they trade from this city with Hindoostan.

From the vicinity of this place came the * عناريان Soffarians, who conquered Pars, Sejestan, Khorasan, and Kirman: they were four brothers, يعقوب عبرو طاهر على فرزندان ليث Yacoub, Omru, Taher, and Ali, the sons of Leith. Taher was killed at the gates of Bost. Yacoub died at his return from Baghdad, and his tomb is at Nishapour. Ali spent some time in Gurkan; then settled in کرکان Dehestan. Yacoub, it is said, had originally been the servant of a coppersmith; and Omru, a camel-driver.

Tauk is a small town near Bost: it has a suburb, or neighbouring village, which supplies fruits and grapes for all parts of Seiestan: it has also reservoirs of water. خون Fereh is a large town. In the neighbouring villages there is much farming carried on; and there, also, are dates in great abundance. ماور Daver, and المانيات Talecan, are at two menzils distance from them: they are small towns near فيروزينك Firouzmend, with running water and cultivated grounds.

There are five towns on the borders of Kirman, belonging to Seistan, built by عبرو ليث Omru Leith: here is the طاق Kantereh Kirman, which is a bridge; and طاق Tauk, on the road of عبرو ليث Gouir, five farsang. From Seistan to عبر المحال المعالى المعالى

From Bost to سروان Sirvan, two merhileh; on the road of Duar, cross the river Heirmend, one merhileh: thence to Durghesh, one day's journey: from عرفش Naas to العجراي Hejrai, about one farsang; from هجراي Asfjai, three merhileh.

Now we proceed to describe the region of Khorasan.

فكر ديار خراسان

Account of the Province of Khorasan.

KHORASAN, on the east, is bounded by part of Sejestan and Hindoostan; because all that lies beyond Ghaur may be esteemed in Hindoostan. To the west lie the desert of غزند Ghazneh, and the borders of ماوراللنهر Gurkan. To the north of Khorasan, ماوراللنهر Turkestan. To the south the deserts of Fars and قومس Koumis, part of which extends towards the borders of كركان Gurkan, كركان Tabaristan, كركان Rey, and the hills of كركان Dilem.

Now it is time to exhibit a Map of Khorasan, and to describe its various divisions.

From the borders of کرمان Kirman to the coast of the Caspian خوارزم and to the boundary of خوارزم Khuurezm is all well inhabited, and cultivated, and fertile.

The city of Nishapour is situated on a level ground, and extends one farsang in every direction: the buildings are of clay. There are two considerable suburbs, well inhabited, with mosques. Here is a place which they call with the considerable suburbs, well inhabited, with mosques. Here is a place which they call with the considerable suburbs, well inhabited, with mosques.

^{*} Station of the army.

vernor's palace is situated in the ميدان حسين Meidan Hosein, near which is also the prison. The governor's palace was built by order of Omra ben Leith.

There are four gates. One is called در يول Der-i-poul; another, المعضل Derwazeh Goui Moasel; the third is called در وازه کوي معضل Der-i-Kohendez; and the fourth, Derwazeh poul Nekein در وازه پول نکين Kohendez is without the suburbs. The gate which leads toward Balkh and Maweralnahr is called در وازه خبک Derwazeh Khebuk; and the gate towards در وازه خبک Derwazeh Ishab. On the road leading to Pars and Kuhestan there is a gate called در وازه سيرپس Derwazeh Seirpes. In the suburbs are two market places, or bazars, and fountains of water.

The city of Nishapour is watered by a subterraneous stream, which is conveyed to the fields and gardens, and falls into cisterns and reservoirs without the town; and there is a considerable stream, that waters the city and villages about it: this stream is called Lin Seka. In all the province of Khorasan there is not any city larger than Nishapour, nor any blessed with a more pure and temperate air. Here they make garments of silk and fine linen, which are in such esteem that they send them to all quarters.

The places depending on, and bounding Nishapour, are numerous and extensive; as بوركان Bourkan, and ساوتك Selutek, and توكان Turkan, and ساوتك Zozen, and اردوار Daven, and كالدروحان Ardvar, and اردوار Bahmanabad, and اردوار Bahmanabad, and بهناباك Khosrugird, and خبينان Bahmanabad, and مواده Kherinan, and ساروان Saruan, and خبينان Remvadeh, and مواده Mihrjan, and استراين Asferin, and زيدين Zeidin, and كركان Gurkan, and Tous, to the north of Nishapour, where is the meshid of Ali ben Mousa al Redha, on whom be the blessing of God! There, also, is the burial-place of Haroun*.

In the mountains of Nishapour and Tous they find Turquoises. In former times the governors of Khorasan resided at Meru, or at Balkh; but the Taherian † family made Nishapour the capital. Many illustrious personages and learned men, as is well known, have issued from this place.

The city of Meru, which is also called Meru Shahjan, is very ancient. Some say it was originally built by Tahmuras, or by Dhul Kernein (Alexander the Great). Here are three celebrated mosques: one which was erected at the first introduction of Islam, they call the old mosque. Four streams water this city: near one of these the ancient walls and buildings were situated, of which some vestiges may yet be seen. There are four gates: one, the عن المحالية المحالية

Here Yezdegird, the last Persian monarch, was slain in a mill; which circumstance gave to the Mussulmans possession of Farsistan. From Meru also rose the splendour of the Abbassides; and Mamoun was at Meru when he became heir to the Khalifat. Various gallant generals and illustrious learned men has Meru produced; so that in more remote times, it was remarkable above all other places of Iran. Arabuelle, the physician who excelled all others of his profession, and Arabuelle, the musician who composed such delightful airs, were of this place. The melodies of Barbuel are still imitated in this country.

The fruits of Meru are finer than those of any other place; and one cannot see in any other city such palaces, with groves, and streams and gardens. They manufacture silk at Meru; and I have heard that the art of making it was originally transferred from Meru to Taberistan, and that they still send to Meru for the eggs of the silkworms, from the other cities. The cotton and linen of Meru are also highly esteemed.

Herat * is the name of a city to which belong the following places: الله Malef, الله Hessan, الله Marabad, الله Marabad, الله Dashan, كوف Kerukh, الله Marabad, الشان Dashan, الله Sheker الله Masheran, الله Masheran, الله Sheker Kuaran, الله Kousef, الشران Ashran. The city of Herat has a castle with ditches. This castle is situated in the center of the town, and is fortified with very strong walls. قهاندن Kehendiz, with its mosque, belongs to this city. The governor's palace is situated in the suburb called خواسان اباله Khorasan Abad.

Herat extends about half a farsang on the road of Busheng or Pusheng بيشنگ. There are four gates; one on the road to Balkh; another, on the Nishapour road, called يوشني Zeyadi; another, which they call عرازه خشک Derwazeh Khushk. All the gates are made of wood, except that on the road to Balkh, which is of iron, and situated in the midst of the city. In all Khorasan and Maweralnahr there is not any place which has a finer or more capacious mosque than Heri (or Herat). Next to it

^{*} Or هري Heri.

⁺ Aserinan or Lucilly Aserbenan.

we may rank the mosque of Balkh; and, after that, the mosque of سيستان Seiestan.

At the distance of two farsang from Herat there is a mountain, between which and the city there is not any garden, orchard, nor water, except the river of the city and a bridge. In all the other directions there are gardens and orchards. This mountain, of which we have spoken, produces not either grass or wood, or any thing but stones, which serve for mill-stones. Here is a place inhabited called was Siccah, with a temple or church of Christians.

many orchards and gardens. العنان Hessan is smaller than Malan, and has but few gardens, and little running water. العربان Aserinan is more remarkable for pasture and tillage, than for orchards and gardens; and the inhabitants of this village are hereticks or schismaticks. العنان Marabad is well supplied with water, and abounds with gardens. العنان Asferan has four towns belonging to it.

الله Sarkhes; but in a season of excessive heat the same plan about half the size of Herat, and built on the same plan. The towns depending on Pousheng are, خسروک Khosrugird, کوسری Kouseri and الله Hereh. Pousheng produces such a number of arar trees, as is not to be found in all Khorasan beside: they are sent to all parts. The river of Pousheng comes from Heri, and runs on to سخس Sarkhes; but in a season of excessive heat the water does not run so far. Pousheng has a castle, with a ditch: it has three gates.

لوسري Kouseri is a smaller town than Pousheng; but it is well watered, and has gardens, groves, and orchards.

Badghis has several places within its territory: The خوارج "

[†] I find in the MS. Dictionary Borhan Kattea, that عرعر is the Arabick for mountain cypress, سرو کوهی

Best, and کوه سیم Kaberoun, and کوه سیم Kaberoun, and کالون Kaberoun, and کالون Dehestan. The inhabitants of Koui Ummabad are of the Shian * sect. The Kouh Seim contains mines of silver. There are running streams at Koui Ummabad, and at Harur; but for the purposes of husbandry rain water is used there; also at Kaloun and Kaberoun, where they have well water. The silver mines are on the road to Sarkhes.

Keif is a smaller place than Bein is larger then Pousheng. Both Keif and Bein are well-watered, and abound in gardens and orchards.

Meru-al-rud† is a larger town than Pousheng, with a considerable river, which is the same that runs to Meru (Shahjan). Here are extensive gardens and orchards. The town of خشک احت Koushek Ahef is also well watered, and has gardens, but not equal to those of Meru-al-rud. The air of حالتان Talkan is wholesomer than that of Meru-al-rud. The river runs between these, and is crossed over by a bridge. Here are many gardens and plantations. Talkan is about the same size as Meru-al-rud: it is situated amid hills; but has running water, and orchards that produce good fruit.

Two towns belong to غرجسان Ghurjestan, one called, Neshin, the other سورمين Surmin, nearly of equal size. Neshin produces great quantities of rice*; and Surmin of dried grapes. From Neshin one goes to the من Derreh of Mern-al-rud; and from Neshin to Surmin is the distance of one merhileh. خور Ghaur, which is a considerable district, I shall enumerate among the regions of Islam, or Mohamedanism: because many True Believers dwell there. It is a mountainous country, well inhabited, with running streams, and gardens, Sarkhes is a city between Meru and Nishapour; situated on a level, without any running water but that which comes from Pousheng*. It is computed that Sarkhes is as large as Meru-al-rud: It is a populous and thriving city: the air is wholesome: the inhabitants drink well-water, and they employ horses or asses in their mills.

is a city of the same magnitude as Sarkhes: it is pleasant and well supplied with water running amidst the houses and streets, and various orchards, groves, and gardens.

it has a fort, with ditches, and a mosque, and a governor's house: the water which they drink there is conveyed in trenches; it has but a few orchards or gardens, and the air is cold.

Teisin † is smaller than Kaien: it has some trees, and the water is conveyed in trenches.

Chun is smaller than Teisin; it has fine gardens, and very little water: the inhabitants have sheep and other beasts.

Kubabeh is larger than Chun, and has two villages belonging to it: the water which they use is brought in trenches. Of all these places which we have just mentioned the air is cold; and an ample desert stretches out between them, where shepherds reside.

In the district of Kaien, on the road leading to Nishapour, is found such excellent chalk, that it is sent into all parts. Throughout all the region of Kouhestan there is not any river water: the inhabitants, therefore, drink water preserved in trenches, or well-water. Here they manufacture very fine linen, hair-cloth, and similar stuffs.

The city of على Balkh is situated on a level ground, at the distance of four farsang from the mountains: it has ramparts, with a castle and mosques; and extends about half a farsang: the buildings are of clay. There are six gates. The first of these is called در دوبال Deri Nubehar; another, the کر رحبه Deri Rehabeh: another, the کر وازه هندوان Derwazeh Hindouan

(the gate of the Indians): another is called און בארט בייט בייט בייט Deri Shest-bend; and one called און בייט Deri Yahia. Through the town runs a stream called the תני שליט Rudi Haas, which passes out at the gate of the Nubehar: this stream turns ten mills, and waters several villages and districts, and flows as far as שייט שייט און Siahgird. In the direction of every gate there are gardens and orchards. The walls of Balkh are made of clay, and there is not any ditch.

Of طایقان Tokharestan the largest city is طایقان Taikan, situated on a plain, in the vicinity of mountains. It is watered by a considerable river, and has many orchards and gardens. اندرابه Anderabeh is situated between the mountains and اندرابه Penjhir. There are two rivers, one the اندرابه Rud Anderabeh; the other رده کاسان Rud Kasan; with gardens and orchards. The other towns of Tohkarestan are nearly of the same size as these; but Taikan is the largest of all.

Derab are two towns, with running water, and considerable plantations of trees. المنافرو Is- • kandereh, or Sekandereh, is situated in the midst of the mountains. خش Khesh is the largest town of this mountainous country; also, the towns of مناك Mank and مناك Melenk are amongst the hills, where there are various streams, which, as they approach ترمد Termed, are collected together, and fall into the river بنحون Jihoon, (the Oxus.)

Wank is a larger town than Melenk; but the houses of both are made of clay. Badakhshan is smaller than Mank. The neighbouring grounds are well cultivated, and the district populous, with many gardens on the banks of the river. The hills here abound in excellent cattle; and Badakhshan produces the ruby (الجرف) and lapiz lazuli (الجرف). The mines are in the mountains; and there is also much musk at Badakhshan.

Penjhir is a town situated on the mountains, containing about ten thousand inhabitants, people of bad character: here are gardens and running water, but husbandry is neglected.

Jarianeh is a smaller town than Penjhir. Between these two places are the mines of ore, in which the people dwell, without gardens, orchards, or tilled lands. The river of Penjhir runs through the town, and passes from Jarianeh till it comes to نوان Ferouan, and so proceeds into Hindoostan.

Bamian is a town about half as large as Balkh, situated on a hill. Before this hill runs a river, the stream of which flows into غرجستان Gurjestan. Bamian has not any gardens nor orchards, and it is the only town in this district situated on a hill: all the others have gardens and orchards, except غزني Ghizni, which has not any. A stream runs through Ghizni, than which of all the towns in the districts of Balkh, none is more wealthy or commercial, being the pass or frontier of Hindoostan.

Which is a town with a very strong castle, accessible only by one road: this is in the hands of the Mussulmans; but the town belongs to the infidel Indians. They say that a king is not properly qualified to govern, until he has been inaugurated at Kabul, however distant he may have been from it. Kabul is also (like Ghizni) a pass into Hindoostan. The fruits of a warm climate, which abound at Balkh, are brought to Kabul, except dates, which do not grow at Balkh, where snow falls. Kabul is situated in a warm climate, but does not produce date trees.

there are Mussulmans; but Ghawr is mostly inhabited by Infidels. Here are great mountains. The dialect of Ghawr is like that of Khorasan. It is populous, containing many running streams; and I have described it as belonging to Khorasan, because it borders on that province; in like manner including Bamian, and Penjhir, and Maweralnaher, as far as Turkestan. The mountains of these places all abound with mines.

But the خوازم Jihoon (or river Oxus) and خوازم Kharezem, and امل Amol, and j Zam, we reckon as belonging to Maweralnahar (Transoxania); and shall speak of them accordingly. Kharezem is situated on the borders of the (Caspian) sea; and the bounds of it, from Balkh and Meru and its other extremities, are all a desert, in which there is not any thing but sand. This desert affords not any running stream: the people use well-water until you come as far as Meru.

Sheep are produced in Ghizni, and Ghaur, and Khilje. Garments of silk and linen are brought from Balkh and Nishapour. The best sheep are those of Ghizni; and the best water, that of the river Jihoon. The men of Balkh are ingenious, and learned in religion and law, and of polite manners. Nishapour is the pleasantest part of Khorasan, and the inhabitants of the most amiable and chearful disposition. The warm parts of Khorasan are, should should be and the borders of should be should

This is the delineation of Maweralnahr.

The province of Maweralnahr is one of the most flourishing and productive within the regions of Islam or Mahommedanism. The inhabitants are people of probity and virtue, averse from evil, and fond of peace. Such is the fertility and abundance of this country, that if the other regions were afflicted by a scarcity or famine, the stock laid up on the preceding year in Maweralnahr would afford ample provision for them all. Every kind of fruit and meat abounds there; and the water is most delicious. The cattle are excellent: the sheep from Turkestan,

Maweralnahr affords raw silk, wool, and hair, in great quantities. Its mines yield silver, and tin or lead (ارزيز), abundantly; and they are better than the other mines, except those of silver at Penjhir; but Maweralnahr affords the best copper and quicksilver, and other similar productions of mines; and the mines of sal ammoniae (نوشان) (used in tinning or soldering) in all Khorasan, are there. Like the paper made at Samarcand, there is not any to be found elsewhere. So abundant are the fruits of سفد Soghd, and سفد Ferghanah, and خافاند المنافذة المنافذ

ومعدين توشادر در عمد خواساري المجاست

I have translated this passage literally,

Such is the generosity and liberality of the inhabitants, that no one turns aside from the rites of hospitality; so that a person contemplating them in this light, would imagine that all the families of the land were but one house*. When a traveller arrives there, every person endeavours to attract him to himself, that he may have opportunities of performing kind offices for the stranger; and the best proof of their hospitable and generous disposition is, that every peasant, though possessing but a bare sufficiency, allots a portion of his cottage for the reception of a guest. On the arrival of a stranger, they contend, one with another, for the pleasure of taking him to their home, and entertaining him. Thus, in acts of hospitality, they expend their incomes. The Author of this work says, "I happened once to be " in Soghd, and there I saw a certain palace, or great building, " the doors of which were fastened back with nails against the " walls. I asked the reason of this; and they informed me, that " it was an hundred years, and more, since those doors had been " shut: all that time they had continued open, day and night: " strangers might arrive there at the most unseasonable hours, or "in any numbers; for the master of the house had provided "every thing necessary both for the men and for their beasts; " and he appeared with a delighted and joyful countenance when

^{*} If the simplicity of this beautiful cologium should please the reader as much as it has delighted the translator, he will, perhaps, derive additional satisfaction from perusing this part of it in the original:

و اكر كسي تامل كند پندارد كه همد ورا" ماورا"النهر باينمعني بك خاند است

"the guests tarried a while. Never have I heard of such things in any other country. The rich and great lords of most other places, expend their treasures on particular favourites, in the indulgence of gross appetites and sensual gratifications. The people of Maweralnahr employ themselves in a useful and rational manner: they lay out their money in erecting caravanserais or inns, building bridges, and such works. You cannot see any town or stage, or even desert, in Maweralnahr, without a convenient inn or stage-house for the accommodation of travellers, with every thing necessary. I have heard that there are above two thousand rebats or inns in Maweralnahr, where as many persons as may arrive shall find sufficient forage for their beasts, and meat for themselves."

" respectable person who was with ناصر احبك Nasser Ahmed, in the war of Samarcand, that of all his immense army, the greater part were men of Maweralnahr; and I have heard that " عبدالله بن طاه Motasem wrote a letter to عبدالله بن طاه Noah ben when in Maweralnahr in Maweralnahr in Maweralnahr in Maweralnahr there are three hundred thousand المعادة المعادة المعادة وعدا المعادة ال

"well disciplined, and furnished with implements of war, that "they are not to be equalled in any region of Islam. And among "the lower classes there are farmers, who possess from one hundred to five hundred head of cattle. Notwithstanding all this, there are not any people more obedient to their kings; and at all times the "Turk soldiers had the precedence of every other race, and the Khalifs always chose them on account of their excellent services, their obedient disposition, their bravery, and their fidelity."

Maweralnahr has produced so many great princes and generals, that no region can surpass it. The bravery of its inhabitants cannot be exceeded in any quarter of the Mussulman world. Their numbers and their discipline give them an advantage over other nations, which, if an army be defeated, or a body of troops lost at sea, cannot furnish another army for a considerable time; but in all Maweralnahr, should such accidents happen, one tribe is ready to supply the losses of another without any delay.

In all the regions of the earth, there is not a more flourishing or a more delightful country than this, especially the district of Bokhara. It a person stand on the Kohendiz (or ancient castle) of Bokhara, and cast his eyes around, he shall not see any thing but beautiful green and luxuriant verdure on every side of the country: so that he would imagine the green of the earth and the azure of the heavens were united: And as there are green fields in every quarter, so there are villas interspersed among the green fields. And in all Khorasan and Maweralnahr there are not any people more long-lived than those of Bokhara.

"It is said that in all the world there is not any place more " delightful (or salubrious) than those three: one, the Soghd of "Samarcand; another, the Rud Aileh; and the third, the Ghu-" tah of Damascus #." But the Ghutah of Damascus is within one farsang of barren and dry hills, without trees; and it contains many places which are desolate, and produce no verdure. "A " fine prospect ought to be such as completely fills the eye, and " nothing should be visible but sky and green †." The river Aileh affords, for one farsang only, this kind of prospect; and there is not, in the vicinity of it, any eminence from which one can see beyond a farsang; and the verdant spot is either surrounded by or opposite to a dreary desert. But the walls, and buildings, and cultivated plains of Bokhara, extend above thirteen farsang by twelve farsang; and the win Soghd, for eight days journey, is all delightful country, affording fine prospects, and full of gardens, and orchards, and villages, corn fields, and villas, and running streams, reservoirs, and fountains, both on the right hand and on the left. You pass from corn fields into rich meadows and pasture lands; and the Soghd is far more healthy than the Rud Aileh, or the Ghuteh of Dameshk (or Damascus); and the fruits of Soghd are the finest in the world. Among the hills and palaces flow running streams, gliding between the trees. In Ferghanah and Chaje, in the mountains between Ferghanah and Turkestan, there are all kinds of fruits, of herbs, and flowers, and various species of the violet: all these it is lawful for any one who passes by, to pull and gather. In Siroushteh there are flowers of an uncommon species.

This river rises within the territories of بدخشان Badakshan, and receives the waters of many other streams. The river Wekhesh joins it: then the river igolowing, which is the river of منك Menek. The third is the river فارغى Farghi; the fourth river is that of اند جاراغ Andenjaragh; the fifth, the Kobadian. All these rivers تباديان Wekhshab, near وخشاب fall into the Jihoon: the river Wekhshab comes out of Turkestan, into the land of بخش Wekhsh, near a mountain, where there is a bridge between Khotlan and the borders of ويشكره Weishkird. From that it runs towards Balkh, and falls into the Jihoon at Termed. The Jihoon then proceeds to W Kalef, and from Kalef to Zam, and from Zam to Jamoui, and from Amoni to خوارزم Khuarezm, and flows into the lake of Khuarezm. There is not any town watered by the Jihoon, until you come to Zam: there the inhabitants derive some benefit from it; still more at Amoui: but the chief advantage of the Jihoon results to Kharezm.

The first district of Maweralnahr, situated on the river Jihoon, is Khotlan: there are also Wekhsh, and other districts. Near Wekhsh there are some districts, such as Dekhan, and Sekineh: these two belong to the Infidels. Boys and girls are brought from these places. There are mines of gold and silver in Wekhshab. The mountainous country, bordering upon Tibet, is very populous, well cultivated, abounding in fruits, and excellent cattle; and the climate is very pure and healthy.

تومد Termed is a city situated on the banks of the Jihoon: it has a castle and suburbs, and ramparts: the government palace is in the kohendiz, or castle; the prison is in the town; the mosque, and the bazars, in the suburbs. The buildings are of clay; all the streets and bazars are paved with burnt tiles. They drink the water of the Jihoon; and use, for the purposes of agriculture, the water of the river Cheghanian رود چغانیای.

Weishgird is about the same size as Termed. From the borders of Weishgird to شوبان Shuman, to near Cheghanian, they cultivate saffron. شوبان Kobadian produces madder (روناس). Cheghanian is larger than Termed; but Termed is more populous, and better supplied. اخسیک Akhseik is opposite کمسیک Zam. Zam is on the borders of Khorasan, but reckoned among the territories of Maweralnahr: it is a small town, and the inhabitants deal in cattle. Zam, and Akhseik, on the banks of the Jihoon, are both at the extremity of the desert.

Khuarezm is the name of a region distinct from Khorasan. All round Khuarezm the desert extends. One side of it borders on غزنين Ghaznein; that is the western side. The western and southern sides are bounded by Khorasan and Maweralnahr. After Khuarezm and Jihoon, there is not any town until you come to the lake. Khuarezm is situated on the northern side of the Jihoon. On the southern side of the Jihoon is خرکانج Korkanje: it is a smaller town than Khuarezm; but it is the pass into various parts: from it the caravans set out for Khorasan and Gurkan, and Fhizni, and Fhizni, and Khozar, and other places.

It so happens, that one half of Khuarezm should appear in the map of Khorasan, and the other half in the map of Maweralnahr: but we have wished not to separate those parts, or render the reference to the map more difficult.

These are the other cities of Kharezm: المربي Deraan, المربي Hesarasp, مربي Chereh, المربي Ardejer, المربي Safzoun, المربي Nouran, كران Kirdan, المربي Khouas, كران Nekin, المربي Merda, كران Jefan, المربي Memha, المربي Deha, كالم Hasker, كالم Memha, المربي Memha, المربي المربي المربي Kanjesk. The chief place of that territory is called كالم Kab; it has a castle now in ruins. There was a town here which the water destroyed, and the people built another higher up; and the water has approached the castle, and, it is feared, will ruin it also. The mosque is in this castle, and near it is the palace of the مربي المربي المر

The first border of Khuarezm is called طاهريه Taheriah, in the direction of Amoui, an inhabited country on the south of the river Jihoon. On the north side of Khuarezm there is not any population or cultivation, until one comes to the village which they call غارا الحيد Ghar-al-haiah; from that to Khuarezm there is some appearance of inhabitants and of buildings. At six farsang distance, before you come to this village, there is a river which joins the Jihoon, and on the banks of this are many villages and hamlets; this river is called موخواره, Gaw-Khareh; in breadth it is about five of guz; boats ply on it. After runing two farsang, there is another river branching from it, which they call Gurbah زود كربد; it waters many villages, but is not very broad: from this, for about one merhileh in breadth, the villages and buildings become more numerous; and when you come to Korkanje, at two farsang back, there is the extremity of the borders of Khuarezm; and at five farsang a ruined village, called كراغ Koragh, near a mountain: from which, and from Hezarasp, on the western side of the Jihoon, there are streams running from that river: Here is Amoui; and there is another river about half as large as the Gaw Khareh, on which boats ply at within two farsang of Hezarasp. This river is called Rudi Kurd Khouas, and is larger than the river of Hezarasp. There is also the river on Heireh, on which boats ply.

From the river of Dal to Khuarezm is two farsang. The river of Bouh is in the district of Korkanje. The water of the river Dal comes to the village of livel Anderbaz, where there is a bridge that admits boats; from this place to Korkanje is a distance of one merhileh.

and there is another river below Khuarezm four farsang, which receives its waters from four different places; when they are united, they form a stream about as large as that of the river Bouh. It is said that the Jihoon crosses this river; and that, when the waters of the Jihoon sink, the stream is also diminished. There are many streams on the northern side of the Jihoon, at one farsang from the town called Medeminiah; and all the villages along have small streams. The Jihoon falls into the lake at a place called Ahiljan, where there is not any village, nor any buildings; the people live by fishing. On the banks of this lake is the land of Ahuz; from this, when they are at peace, they go from this side to the village of Aubgir, and from the other to Korkange; both of these are on the banks of the Jihoon.

Before one comes to the the river Gaw Khareh there are some mountains, amidst which the Jihoon runs: this place is called boukeseh; and from the place where the Jihoon falls into the lake or sea (كان ما), to that place where the river of Chaje falls into it, is a journey of ten days. The river Jihoon is frozen in winter, so that loaded carriages pass over it. The ice begins at Khuarezm, which is the coldest place upon the Jihoon.

On the banks of the sea or lake of Khuarezm (دربای خوارزی) there is a mountain called جغافر Cheghagher: here the ice continues from winter till near the end of summer. In circumference of this sea or lake is an hundred farsang: its waters are salt or bitter; and the river Jihoon, the river جاء Chaje, and many other streams, flow into this lake: yet this increase of water is not perceptible; and it is generally supposed that there is a communication between this lake and the Caspian Sea (Deryai-i Khozr العرباخر): between these two is a distance of twenty merhileh.

Khuarezm is a town well supplied with provisions, and abounding in fruits; it affords not any walnut-trees. Linen and wool are manufactured there, and also brocade. The inhabitants are people of high reputation and polished manners: the men of Khuarezm are great travellers; there is not any town in Khorasan without a colony of them. The lower parts of the land of it Ghuz belong to Khuarezm: the inhabitants are active and hardy. The wealth of Khuarezm is derived from its commerce and merchandize. They have carpets of its commerce and merchandize, and they bring to Khuarezm, from Khozr, the skins of foxes, and martens, sables, and ermines.

Bokhara in Maweralnahr first: at all times it has been the seat of government. Bokhara is called "Bounheket: it is situated on a plain; the houses are of wood, and it abounds in villas, and gardens, and orchards; and the villages are as close one to another as the groves and gardens, extending for near twelve farsang by twelve farsang: all about this space is a wall, and within it the people dwell winter and summer; and there is not to be seen one spot uncultivated, or in decay. Outside this there is another wall, with a small town and a castle, in which the Samanian * family ("In which the Samanian family ("In w

In all Maweralnahr or Khorasan, there is not any place more populous and flourishing than Bokhara. The river of Soghd (رود سغد) runs through the midst of it, and passes on to the mills and meadows, and to the borders of بيكند Beikend; and much of it falls into a pond or pool near Beikend, at a place called سام كوس Sam Kous.

Bokhara has seven gates: one is called the בת شارستان Deri Sharestan; the second, טר בענ Deri Derou; the third,

^{*} For some account of this dynasty, and of Nasser Ahmed, mentioned in page 235, see the Appendix.

There are, besides, some gates among the bazars, such as the مر المونين Der Ahenin, or iron gate; the مر المونين Deri Pool Hesan; and a gate near the mosque of مرجيد Maje; and between these two gates there is another called مرجيد Der Rejieh: there is also a gate near the villa of ابو هاشم Abu Hashem, and near the كوي مغان Goui Moghan (or the magi's dwelling), and the در سرقند Deri Samarcand.

There is not any running water between the city and the gate of the kohendez: they bring water from the main river; and this river furnishes some other streams: one is a considerable river called مسرده Feserdeh, coming from the river of Bokhara, at a place which they call ورع Wera; and it descends by the gate of Seroukeseh ابو ابر اهيم till it comes to the lands of ابو ابر اهيم Abou Ibrahim; and thence proceeds to the gate of ابو لغضل Sheikh Aboul Fazel, and falls into the river Nukendeh, مرود نوكنده On this river are situated near two thousand villas and gardens, exclusive of corn fields and meadows; from the mouth of this river to the place where it falls into the Nukendeh is a course of about half a farsang.

There is another stream, called the رود باسكان Rud Basegan; proceeding from the main river through the middle of the city near the mosque called قزازان Kezazan; and there is another stream which comes from near the mosque called عارف Aurez, and flows into the Nukendeh; this is called the جويبار عارف Jouibari Aarez.

There is another stream, called بركند Berkend, which waters part of the fortifications, and falls into the Nukendeh. This river Nukendeh comes from the main river, near Nubehar, and runs among palaces, and houses, and mills, till it comes to the mills on the lands of بيكند Beikend, and affords water to them. The river من Keiseh runs on to غاران مرغ issues from the main river near بالمستاد Reikestan, and flows on to the villa of Rebah, and waters a thousand summer-houses, and gardens, and groves. The river of Reikestan passes through that place to which it affords water, and to the kohendez, the suburbs near the ramparts, and the government house; and after that it proceeds to the villa of ما الماد الماد

The villages Ferghaneh and موايس Derufen, بومه Sefli, بومه Sefli, بومه Sefli, بومه Sefli, بومه Sefli, بومه Sefli, بخاجي Bourek Ferghaneh, وستاكا Bekhajemr, العالمين Bekhajemr, بخاجي Bekhajemr, بخاجي Samjer Mawer- الديان Samjer Mawer- مادون Samjer Mawer- مادون السغل Ferazen al Sefl, اردان المعالم Ferazen al Sefl, اردان العليا Ferazen al Aalia; all these districts are included within the walls. Those without the walls are, برغاند Chend, مباخس العالم Veis, عرفاند Shak, عرفاند Sekend, and غليار Sekend, and فرين Sekend, and سكند Sekend, and فرين Ferin.

Near the district of طواويس Touaveis, before you come to the gate of Bokhara, there are many streams which water the villages and meadows. One of these is the river Kaferi Kam which runs to مناكل Werkaneh; and the river وكاندي كا وكاندي كاندي كاند

Of the rivers we have heretofore enumerated, the greater number proceeds from the river of Soghd, on which boats ply. The inclosure or wall round Bokhara contains twelve gates. There is not any hill or desert; all is laid out in castles, villas, gardens, corn-fields, and orchards. The wood which they use for fuel is brought from their gardens, and they burn also reeds and rushes. The grounds of Bokhara and of Soghd are all in the vicinity of water; whence it happens that their trees do not arrive at any considerable height; but the fruits of Bokhara are more excellent than the fruits of any part of Maweralnahr. Corn is brought to Bokhara from Maweralnahr and other places.

There is a mountain called Sold Zarkah, in the vicinity of Bokhara; it goes between Samarcand and Skesh, and joins the border of Ferghanch, and Idellater, and goes on towards the confines of Cheen; and this mountain is skirted by a desert in the borders of Ferghanch and Idellak, as far as Ierjereh.

In Ferghanch there are mines of sal-ammoniac, and of copperas or vitriol, of iron, and quicksilver, and brass; also of gold, and of turquoise stone; and in this mountain there are springs of naphta, and of bitumen, and resin; also a stone that takes fire and burns. There is, likewise, water, which in summer is frozen, and in the depth of winter is warm. There are some districts of Bokhara within the walls, and some without: of those within the walls, and at a stated time, once every year, the people assemble in it from Maweralnahr: it has pleasant gardens, and orchards, and running streams, and an ancient castle, with suburbs, and a mosque: the inhabitants manufacture linen.

The other towns within the walls are nearly of equal size one with another.

Kerjinet is a large town;

Jerghaneket, and Medmamehelet are of equal size.

Every town of the territories of Bokhara has a district belonging to it, except
Which has not any village, but contains near a thousand Rebats.

The town of ترين Kerin is near the river Jihoon. The people of Bokhara speak the language of the people of Soghd: they are ingenious: and in business they use direms: their silver is عذرتي Azerki, or غدرتي Ghederki; and the mode of purchasing used in Maweralnahr does not pass among them. For the greater part they wear the tunick عمل علم and the cap ملك.

At Bokhara, within the city, there are bazars, where, on certain appointed days, the merchants assemble in great numbers, and transact much business. Bokhara and its territories produce I have heard a peculiar circumstance mentioned. concerning the Kohendiz or castle of Bokhara; which is, that they never have brought out of it the bier or coffin of any prince, and that any person once confined there is never seen again. "It " is said that the inhabitants of Bokhara are originally descended "from an ancient tribe, which emigrated from Istakhar and " settled there "." The Samanian princes resided at Bokhara; the territories of which and Maweralnahr were under their jurisdiction; the people of Bokhara were so obedient, and so observant of their treaties, that the sovereigns chose to reside among them. The kings of Khorasan were descended from the race of Saman. Ismael ben Ahmed resided there: the people of Khorasan had behaved treacherously towards him; and his children also resided at Bokhara. Before that, the governors of Maweralnahr dwelt in Samarcand, at جاع Chaje, or فرخانه Ferghanah; but since that the seat of government has been removed from Khorasan to Bokhara.

between that, and between the road, is a distance of one farsang. مغكان Moghkan is five farsang distant from the city, on the right hand of Beikend, and from it to the road is a space of three farsang. ونديم Rendieh is at four farsang from Bokhara. ونديم Bumeheket is on the road of بوصحات Touaweis at a distance of four farsang.

From کیفنید Kermeniah to Beikend is one farsang in the borders of Soghd. Bumeheket is situated on the river of Soghd. Soghd is adjacent to Bokhara. After passing Kermenieh one comes to Debousi.

The capital of Soghd is سرقند Samarcand; it is situated on the southern side of the river of Soghd. It has a castle, and suburbs, and fortifications, with four gates; one, the مر جین Deri Cheen, or the China gate, on the east; the مر انوبها Deri Nubehar, or the spring gate, on the west; on the north, the مر انو کش Deri Bokhara, or Bokhara gate; and on the south, the مر ازه کش Derwazeh Kesh, or Kesh gate.

There is running water through the streets and bazars of Samarcand. The city is surrounded by a deep ditch, and a dyke, by which water is conveyed. The most flourishing and populous quarter of Samarcand is that called the Seri tauk, where there is the fountain of Arziz: and the shops of the bazar in this place are very numerous; for many legacies and gifts have been appropriated to the buildings about this fountain, which are in the charge of Guebres (or Fire-worshippers) who watch winter and summer.

There is a mosque in the suburbs, near the should show the river Arziz there are springs, and rivulets from it water the gardens and orchards. The government palace is in the kohendiz; and the citadel is near the river of Soghd; and the walls of these fortifications are about two farsang in extent. There are many villas and orchards, and very few of the palaces are without gardens: so that if a person should go to the kohendiz, and from that look around, he would find that the villas and palaces were covered, as it were, with trees; and even the streets and shops, and banks of the streams, are all planted with trees.

Samarcand is the great pass into Maweralnahr; and the seat of empire was at Samarcand until اسبعيل بن احبد Ismael ben Ahmed removed it to Bokhara.

The walls of the fortifications have several gates; such as the مر عبد Deri Abed, the در عبد Deri Afsheineh, the טר צפט Deri Kouhek, the טר לפפט Deri Rousein, the טר ניפאיט Deri Pouberi Fou-jend.

The author of this work says, "I saw a gate at Samarcand, of which the front was covered with iron; and there was written on it, in the Hamiri language; that "Senaa is distant from Samarcand a thousand farsang; and the people preserved the explanation of this writing, in hereditary tradition. After that I had been at Samarcand, a tumult or insurrection happend; and this gate was burnt, and the inscription mislaid or destroyed. Afterwards, Abu Mozaffer Mohammed ben Nasser ben Ahmed ben Ased, caused the gate to be again constructed of iron, but the writing was lost.*"

The houses of Samarcand are made of clay and wood: the inhabitants are remarkable for their beauty: they are gentle and polite in their manner, and of amiable dispostions. From Samarcand to the mountain (o) is one merhileh: and there is close to the city a small eminence which they accordingly call kouhek (a diminutive of o) the little mountain: that mountain is about half a mile in length; it produces clay, and marble, and stones of various kinds; and I have heard that in it were also mines of gold and silver, but they are not worked.

^{*} The reader will find the original Persian of this passage in the Appendix, No. I. See also the Preface and Appendix, No. III.

The water of Samarcand is all from the river which comes from the mountains above Cheghanian. There is a reservoir for that water, which they call Bergher; from this that water flows till it comes to a place called Biheket, and thence to Warghes, where there is a bridge; from that the rivers of Samarcand are divided to the east and west. Those on the eastern side proceed from near Warghes, at the place called the cultivated fields more numerous: from this the river flows; and the river which water.

The river باركة Barmis rises in the vicinity of that river, in the southern territory, and waters many villages there. The Bous and Barmis are the largest of all those rivers; they both are navigable for boats, and many streams branch off from them, which water many villages and meadows. From the territory of Warghis to the village called Arghem, ten farsang in length, and from four to one farsang in breadth; from the district of Arghis, and Arghis, and Aller Manferenje, and Zarghem, and Bikheru, above Zarghem, and the rivers which flow from the desert of Gherban محراي غربان Sawat, and the river and waters many places, and proceeds to the village of المواطنة Weddan, and to the borders of the district of Istakhar: the river, in all, runs about two merhileh.

The rivers Sawat and Mourmajez run towards the city, and water near seven farsang of territory, till they come to Samarcand; from the mouth or entrance of this valley, or water-course, to Samarcand, is a distance of twenty farsang. After passing Samarcand about two merhileh, a river branches off called Rudeki, which waters one of the most fertile and populous tracts of land in all Soghd: other streams branch off from this channel, until it approaches the territory of Bokhara, a journey of near six days, watering so many gardens and orchards, that if any person were to look from a hill along the valley of Soghd, he could not behold any thing but trees and green herbage, with here and there a villa and an old castle.

In the district of Barghis are many gardens and dykes. From this valley (or channel) come the rivers above mentioned, and pass under the bridge of Kouhek پول کوهک, at the Samarcand gate مرسبرتند. The waters of this valley are augmented in summer by the snow from the mountains of غرجستان Ghurge-stan and the vicinity of Samarcand.

In the territory of is Famurgh there is a certain place called ربود Reboud, in which dwelt اخشيد Aksheid, king of Samarcand; and his villa or palace yet remains.

The village of (iz) Zerghem is adjoining to that of Famurgh.

Famurgh is the most populous and fertile of all the villages of Samarcand.

it enjoys a pure air, and the inhabitants of it are healthier and handsomer than those of the other territories. The extent of this hill, and the villages on it, is about ten farsang. At Sarouan is a place which the Christians have built for religious worship, and which is richly endowed. (This place is called مروكرة Zarukird.)

The district of Bermer is without water, but is well inhabited, and produces much cattle; the air is good, and the inhabitants are wealthy. The length of this district is two merhileh; and every village in it is above two farsang in extent. The pasture lands are better here than those of Maweralnahr.

Those are the territories of Samarcand, on the right hand of this valley. These on the left hand are, اولاد Aulad, and Barkeit, near باركيت Setrushtah; the village of تورغك Kourghed, on the borders of Setrushtah, adjoining to Bar-

The village of egolders of Samarcand. From the borders of Gherban to those of Samarcand is about one merhileh.

Weddan is a populous and fertile district, with hills and plains. The towns of Weddan and of Kish are situated near each other: these two places have belonged to tribes of Arabians, called سباعیان Sebaaians. This people had dwellings at Samarcand. سربان بن کشنی Merzeban ben Kashfi was a man of this district, whom all the illustrious and chief persons invited to the sovereignty of Irak.

There are six villages of Samarcand on the right side of the valley of Soghd, and six on the left. In former times the village of Laian was annexed to the territories of Samarcand, but afterwards became a district of Setrushtah. Pecuniary affairs are transacted in Samarcand by means of gold, and of direms of Ismael, broken, similarly affairs are transacted in Samarcand by means of gold, and of direms of Ismael, broken, and similarly affairs are transacted in Samarcand by means of gold, and of direms of Ismael, broken, which is not current in any other place besides the territories of Samarcand. This country abounds in gardens, and orchards, and corn fields, and pleasant prospects; and the Soghd is a delightful and fertile region. Keisaneh is the eye of all the towns of Soghd; it is inhabited by rich and powerful people.

Account of the City of Kish.

Kish is a city with a kohendiz and ramparts, and two suburbs, one of which (the interior) and the kohendiz are ruined; the mosque also, which was here, is in ruins; the bazar is on the ramparts, and the extent of this city is three farsang by three farsang. The climate here is warm: the buildings are of wood and clay. Here are four gates; one, the در اهنين Der Ahenin, or Iron Gate; another, the مروازه عبيد الله Derwazeh Abeid Allah; the third, the فر قصابان Deri Kesaban; the fourth, the ی شارستاری Deri Sharestan. The inner town has two gates; one called the در شارستان درونی Deri Sharestan Deruni; and the other the در تركستان Deri Turkestan. Turkestan is the name of a certain village. Near this gate are two rivers; the Rudi Kesaban, which comes from the town of Siam. The two rivers pass by the gates of the city; and there are other streams in the vicinity; such as the Chaje Rud, on the Samarcand road, at the distance of one farsang from the city; and the river خبك روى Khebek Rud, on the Balkh road, also at one farsang distance from the city; and another, called the river of Jeran, on the Balkh road, at a distance of eight farsang from the city. Account of the City of Naksheb.

The city of Naksheb has a ruined kohendiz. The ramparts have four gates; one, the مروازه الخاري Derwazeh Bokhari; another, the مروازه سرقند Derwazeh Samarcand; the third, the مروزه كش Derwazeh Kish; and the fourth, the Deri Ghaznin مرغزيين. Naksheb is situated on the high road to Balkh: it stands on a level ground; from the city to the hills is a journey of two days, in the direction of Kish; from Naksheb to the river Jihoon the intermediate space is all desert. In the middle of the city is a considerable river, which comes from the collection of streams at Kish, and waters the territories of Naksheb. The palace of the chief governor is situated near this stream, at the place called we Seri Poul, near which, also, is the prison. The mosque is near the Deri Ghaznein, or Ghaznein gate; and an oratory near the Derwazeh Bokhari, or the Bokhari gate: the bazars are on the ramparts, between the governor's palace and the mosque.

Naksheb possesses many territories: two very considerable are of Berdeh and Keshteh; and there are some villages as large as cities: but in Naksheb and all its territories there is not any river besides that above mentioned; and even that river, in a very hot summer, becomes dry, and they use well-water for their gardens. Naksheb is abudantly supplied with provisions.

Description of Setroushteh:

Soghd; there is not any city or village in this country that bears the name of Setroushteh. It is a mountainous region, bounded on the east by part of Ferghanah; on the west, by the borders of Samarcand; on the north, by جاء Chaje; on the south, it lies near Kish and جفانیان Cheghanian, and شیان Blieshkird, and شیان Rast. The chief town of Setroushteh is called, in the language of that country, Boumheket; and the districts of it are, Il Aran, who ساباط ,Waakes وعكث ,Gherk غرق ,Waakes كوكب ,Waakes Boumheket, - بوصحكت Boumheket, كبن Debzek, واميين Boumheket, and Jerkanah. Boumheket is the residence of the governors; it contains ten thousand inhabitants: all the buildings of this town are made of clay and wood. The inner town has two gates; one called the دروازه باللمين Derwazeh Balamein; and the other, دروازه شارستان Derwazeh Sharestan. There is a mosque in this inner town, and a kohendiz: there is also a considerable river, which turns mills; its borders are planted with trees: there are also bazars; and the extent of this town is one farsang. The water of the ditch runs among the villas, and gardens, and meadows, and corn-fields. The citadel has four gates; one, ابن سبندر Ramin ; another, the Derwazeh رامين Ebn Samender; another, the Derwazeh ابن حات Ebn Heket; and the fourth, the Derwazeh Jkehilban. This town has six streams or rivers; the which runs into the suburbs, the بحين Berjin, the رساجين Resmajin, the Iskenkejr, the Rouleji, and the Seheker: all these six streams proceed from one fountain, and turn ten mills. From this fountain to the town is not so much as half a farsang.

Ramin is about the same size as Setrushteh, situated on the Ferghaneh road, in the direction of Soghd: the people here call this place, in their language, سليسده بليس Selisedeh Belis.

This town has walls. The caravans on the high road from Ferghaneh to Soghd pass through it. There are many running streams and gardens, and much tilled land; and the back of this town extends to the hills of Setroushteh, and the front is towards the desert of the country of $\dot{\mathcal{F}}$ Ghuz.

The town of Spice at two farsang distance from it there is a Rebat, which they call the chief town of a district: at two farsang distance from it there is a Rebat, which they call the chief town of a district: at two farsang distance from it there is a Rebat, which they call the chief the Rebat Khedish: it was built by limit Afshin, and is the best Rebat; the people of Samarcand have not one better. In the midst of the Rebat there is a spring of water, over which a dome has been erected.

with running water, gardens, and orchards. All the towns of this region, which we have spoken of, are nearly equal to and resemble one another, but with spoken of, which has running water, but has not any gardens, the cold being excessive. It is, however, a large town, and in summer has pleasant meadows.

and Chaje. If you wish to go the road of Ferghaneh and Chaje. If you wish to go the road of خين Khojend, by the way of كوكت Kouket, (or Koukib) you must go to Ferghaneh, nine farsang from Samarcand.

In all Setroushteh there is not any river considerable enough to admit of the plying of boats; but there are running streams, and fountains, and meadows, and groves. The villages of the mountainous part of Setroushteh are these: بشاغر Beshagher, فرغور بالعام , Baloam بالعام Mesek بالعام Lesken بالعام Besenk. These are situated on steep hills: and the cold part of the country, also, has many strong fortresses. Here also are mines of gold, and silver, and copperas, and sal ammoniac. The mines of sal ammoniac (نوشادر Nushader) are in the mountains, where there is a certain cavern, from which a vapour issues, appearing by day like smoke, and by night like fire. Over the spot whence the vapour issues, they have erected a house, the doors and windows of which are kept so closely shut and plastered over with clay that none of the vapour can escape. On the upper part of this house the copperas rests. When the doors are to be opened, a swiftly-running man is chosen, who, having his body covered over with clay, opens the door; takes as much as he can of the copperas, and runs off; if he should delay, he would be burnt. This vapour comes forth in different places, from time to time; when it ceases to issue from one place, they dig in another until it appears, and then they erect that kind of house over it: if they did not erect this house, the vapour would burn, or evaporate away.

In the territory of سبنده Semendeh they make excellent iron.

Iron is also manufactured at نوغاته Ferghaneh. At Semendeh there are market-days established, when people come from a great distance; these days occur once every month.

which is two days journey by three. In all Soghd and Maweralnahr there is not any country equal to this in populousness and in buildings: one of its borders is the valley or watercourse of جاء Chaje, which falls into the lake of Khuarezm والمنابع المنابع خوارزم; it is bounded also by the خوارزم it is bounded also by the خوارزم Sinkhab; another of its boundaries extends to the mountains, adjoining the territories of نشامین Neshamein; and another extends to Benagur of the Christians بناكر ترسایان (Benagur Tersuian.) All the land is flat.

Chaje is the most considerable of the frontiers of Turkestan: it has many fine buildings. Every palace in it has running water, and delightful verdure. All the buildings are of clay. The capital of that district is called من Seket; and the other towns are, منكوان Divemaket, حينك Hedinket, المناب Kankouan, منكوان Nehaket, ساكت Saket, ماك المناب المنا

Bounket, the capital, has a kohendiz without the city; but the walls of the town and of the kohendiz are the same. There is a citadel with a wall, and another fortification outside that, with gardens and palaces. The kohendiz has two gates, one of which is towards the town. The town has a wall, and three gates, one of which is called the well and three gates, one of which is called the vertical property of the least o

The citadel has ten gates on the inside; one, the Derwazeh جدين Hamdein: the second, the Derwazeh اهنين Ahenin; the third, the Derwazeh مير Mir; the fourth, المنان Deri Ferkhan; the fifth, Deri من Kedeh; the sixth, Deri كوانح Kouafah; the seventh, Derwazeh كوي سهل Ashedbehak; the ninth, Deri خاقان Ashedbehak; the ninth, Deri خاقان Der Koushek Dehkan.

On the outer side, the citadel has seven gates; one, the Derwazeh ناكت Deghket; the second, Derwazeh خاكت Khakhet; the third, Deri بيكند الحاق Beikend Behak; the fourth, Der اهنين Ahenin ; the fifth, Deri كونجان Kerenjan ; the sixth, Derwazeh شكر Sheker; and the seventh, Derwazeh شكر Segherbad. The governor's palace and the prison are in the kohendiz; and the chief mosque is on the walls of the kohendiz. In the inner town is a small bazar; but there are great bazars in the citadel. The length of this city is one farsang. The inner town and the citadel are watered by a running stream. There are extensive and fine gardens; and there is a great wall, reaching from the hill called will Sailaa, to the brink of the channel or water-course of Chaje. This wall was erected, to separate the country from Turkestan, and prevent incursions. It was erected by order of Abdullah ben Hamid. From this inclosure, to the ditch or fosse, is a distance of one farsang. Here is another river, called the رون تركستان Rudi Turkestun, which partly comes from www Neskan, and partly from the country of Chekrel: it reaches the town of Elehaket.

There is in Ailak a river called by the same name (Ailak): this also rises in Turkestan; and runs, for the greater part, into the river of Chaje. Boumeket is the chief town of Chaje. Chaje and Ailak border one upon the other. The buildings, and gardens, and orchards of Ailak, are continued to the valley or water-course of Chaje, without any interval. In the mountains of Ailak there are mines of gold and of silver: these mountains are on the borders of Ferghaneh.

Deinket is the largest of all the towns in Ailak. In all Maweralnahr there is not any mint, except at Samarcand and at Deinket.

Senjat is a town, with a kohendiz and citadel; the former now in ruins. The town is in a flourishing state; the inner part of which extends for near a farsang. Near the citadel are gardens and running streams; from the town to the foot of the mountain is three farsang. The town has four gates: the Deri Bouchek, the کر بوچک Deri Bouchek, the کر بوچک Deri Bokhara. There is a bazar both in the town and in the citadel. The mosque, and the governor's palace, and the prison, are situated in the inner town.

The towns in the territories of Senjat are, بالك Bedheket, and اطلح Sameket, عراز Teraz, اطلح Atlah, اطلح Beily, اطلح Kezr, and غرسيران Ghersiran; but Sameket is the chief town of the Koureh of Kunjideh غرسيران Kezr is the chief town of the Koureh of Kunjideh عران Mian is a town to which the people of خراب Ghuz come for the purposes of traffick; and as there are not any hostilities carried on at Mian, the town flourishes, and abounds in all the necessaries of life.

is the name of a district, the extent of which is near one day's journey; all the places in it are very strong: it is a hilly country, and contains much land sown with grain. In the eastern part there is a valley with a water-course, which is supplied by the river of Chaje, and runs towards بيكند Beikend to the west.

Chaje is a city flourishing and populous, and the inhabitants are Mussulmans of خ Ghuz, and of خارى Khilje, all of the غازى Ghazi sect. Between Farab, and Kenjideh, and Chaje, there are many fields sown with grain: the people live in tents, and are all Mussulmans; but they are not powerful.

Turks and Mussulmans; and all about there are strong castles, called in general after Teraz. The region of Islam extends as far as this spot.

In the territories of Identity Azerkend there is a city, with a kohendiz, and a mosque, and ramparts, on which is situated the governor's house; and the prison is in the kohendiz: this is a pleasant town, affording good fruits, and inhabited by a courteous and handsome race. Corn is brought to this place from Ferghaneh, and Setroushteh, and other countries, in boats, by the river of Chaje, which is a considerable stream.

The عبود Amud rises in Turkestan, in the borders of Azer-kend; also the river خرساب Khersab, and the river اویس Aweis, and the river حدعلي Hedali, and other streams.

The people of ¿ Ghuz are for the greater number Mussulmans. Ghuz is the capital, where the kings of this country reside during the summer. The kingdom of Ghuz extends in a straight line ten merhileh from Khuarezm to this place; and from this to Barab, twenty merhileh.

which contains many towns and villages: the capital is called which contains many towns and villages: the capital is called اخسيكت Akhsiket: it is situated on a level ground, on a river; and has a kohendiz, and suburbs, and a castle. The governor's palace and the prison are in the kohendiz, and the mosque is in the town: There is an oratory on the banks of the river Chaje. The extent of this city is near three farsang. The castle is walled; and the inner town has five gates: the citadel has runing water: and there are gardens and groves at each of the gates; and there are rivers at the distance of about two farsang.

Keba is one of the pleasantest places in this country; it has suburbs, and a kohendiz, and a citadel: the kohendiz is fallen to decay; but the mosque is there. The bazars, and the governor's palace, and the prison, are in the citadel. The citadel is walled round; and has gardens, and orchards, and running water.

اوش Awesh is about the size of Keba, with suburbs and a kohendiz, in which are the governor's palace and the prison: it has also a citadel, with walls which are connected with the mountain. On this mountain are stationed the sentinels who watch the motions of the Turkestan army. Awesh has three gates: the معنده Derwazeh Kouh, or the mountain-gate; the معنده Derwazeh Ab, or the water-gate; and the معنده المعندة المعندة

In the province of Ferghaneh: it is next to the enemy, and is twice or thrice as large as Awesh; it has a kohendiz and suburbs, with groves, and gardens, and running streams. In all Maweralnahr there is not any village more considerable than that of Ferghaneh; it extends one farsang in length, and in breadth; it is well inhabited; the people are good husbandmen, and possess much cattle. The territories of Ferghaneh are, Bestay Zeirin توان Areh, او المستاي زيون Touan, المستاي زيون Memaroujan, المستاي المستاي المستاع المس and the towns of Bestay Zeirin are, ونحواس Merghenban, انحوكان Rendwames, اسبقان Debel, اسبقان Asbekan, انحوكان Andukan. This territory consists of both hilly and level ground, سوخ Kaimakhes, سوخ Mamkakhes, سوخ Soukh. There is a certain city called ماهكا خس Medouaneh. اوركند Awerkend is also the name of a city, and there is not any other city in the territory. ارم المداوية المد

Merouan is the name of a city, all around which are many villages. اوراست Selikend, سالب Selab, are towns which belonged to Turkestan, but have lately fallen into the power of the Mussulmans.

In the territories of Ferghaneh there are mines of gold and silver, and the district of Bestay Zeirin affords springs of bitumen or pitch; and they say that in the mountains of a Ashehreh there are fountains of naphta, and mines of copper, and of turquoise stone, of lead, and of iron: all these are in the borders of Ferghaneh.

In the mountains here they burn a kind of coal, and, having moistened the ashes with water, use it as soap in washing their clothes. In these mountains, also, is a certain stone, part of which is red, and part green, and part white. From Turkestan to Awerkend there are mines of sal ammoniac, as in the mountains we have before described.

Thus terminates the Oriental Geography of Ebn Haukal, according to the Manuscript preserved in the College Library at Eton—(My copy wants the last leaf.) However abrupt it may seem, I am induced to believe that this is the proper conclusion of the Work; for a considerable part of the last page in the Eton Manuscript is left blank—a circumstance which could not have happened, had it been intended that any more should follow, as the Eastern Penmen are so scrupulously exact in filling every page with an equal number of lines, that they frequently begin a new Section or Chapter at the very bottom of a page. The Author, besides, appears to have accomplished his design, intimated in the second and third pages of this Volume.

The Reader will find, among the passages in the preceding article of this Appendix, a short account of the Boloujes, mentioned in pages 140 and 141 of the work. It is necessary here to point out an incongruity between Ebn Haukal's description of this people, and that of other writers. This, however, may be reconciled, if we suppose (what indeed occurs in every page of the original MS.) an error in the writing. For they do not infest the roads), we must read "they do infest the roads," and alter the remainder of the sentence accordingly. I was induced to adopt this reading, from the concurrent testimonies of various Eastern Authors, who all bear witness against the character of the Bolouches.

Borhan Kattea بلوچ , article فرهنگ برهان قاطع, article بلوچ which thus ascertains the true pronunciation of the name:

[&]quot;Bolouche-with the vowel accent damma on the first and

" second; the third quiescent, with the Persian letter chim, " (i. e. with three diacritical points.) A race of people who in" habit the desert." (Barbarous, or uncivilized) of very little understanding—fierce, &c.

Under another article, the same excellent Dictionary furnishes more ample information on the subject of this people:

کوچ و بلوچ—نام طایغه باشد از صحرا نشینان که در کوههای اطراف کرمان توطن دارند و کویند اینها از عربان حجازند و حرفت ایشان جنگ و خونریزی و دردی و راهزنی باشد آکر احیانا پیکانه نیابند یکدیکررا بکشند و مال یکد یکررا تاراج گننده و همچنین برادران و خویشان و ترابتان و دوستان باهم جنگ کنند و این فعل را بسیار خوب دانند

"Kouche and Bolouche—the names of certain races of barbarous people who inhabit the mountains on the borders of Kirman. It is said that they are descended from the Arabians of Hejaz. Their employments are fighting and shedding of blood; thieving, and robbing on the roads. If at any time it happens that they cannot find strangers, they murder one another, plundering and destroying each other's property.
Thus, even brothers, near relations, and friends, quarrel;
and they consider this as a pleasant occupation."

I shall extract a passage, on the same subject, from another very valuable work, the فرهنگ سروري Ferhung Sururi.

بلوچ-تومي اند بغايت بيعقل از مردمان بياباني كه قافلهارا زنندو اكثر شجاع و تيرانداز باشند و ايشانرا كوچ بلوچ نيز كويند

" Bolouche—a people extremely stupid or void of understanding, who inhabit the deserts and plunder the caravans, and for the greater part are warlike and good archers; they are also styled Kouche Bolouche."

The خوهنگ جهانگيري Ferhung Jehanguiri gives the same account and nearly in the same words as the Borhan Kattea above quoted.

If the origin of this extraordinary people were to become the subject of antiquarian investigation, the character of the ancient inhabitants of Hejaz (Arabia the Stony or Rocky) should be compared with that of their reputed descendants; and I believe that such a comparison would in some measure confirm this traditional origin. Of the barbarism which prevailed among the Scenites* or ^{*} Strabo (Geograph. Lib. xvi.) describes the Scenite Arabs " as plunderers or robbers, and feeders of cattle."—Σκηνιταί Αραβες ληςρικοι τινες κ) ποιμενικοί—who almost totally neglected the arts of agriculture, devoting their attention to the feeding of cattle of all kinds, but especially camels.—γεωργουντες μεν η ουδεν η μικρα, νομας δε εχοίζες παντοδαπων θρεμματων, και μαλιςα καμηλων.

Nomades, or, as they are emphatically styled by Ebn'olathir*, the people of the rock, it would be easy to collect a variety of anecdotes. But one quotation from an Arabian author will serve to prove, that if the ferocious Bolouches are descended from the Hejazians, they are not, by any means, a degenerate offspring.

On the subject of these Arabs we are informed, that

- " A disposition for war and shedding of blood, a love of slaughter
- " and violence, and a spirit tenacious of anger and of hatred, were
- " among their peculiar qualities and characteristicks †."

To their uncivilized state Sir William Jones alludes in the following passage:

"The manners of the Hejazi Arabs, which have continued, we know, from the time of Solomon to the present age, were by no means favourable to the cultivation of arts; and as to sciences, we have no reason to believe that they were acquainted with any, &c. ‡" established themselves in the confines of Hindustan and Persia: that a commercial intercourse subsisted from the earliest ages between the inhabitants of Arabia and the Hindus, cannot well be doubted. The same learned author, Sir William Jones, declares, that the "ports of Yemen, (or Arabia Felix,) must have "been the emporia of considerable commerce between Egypt and "India, or part of Persia*."

But it was not merely a few traders or merchants that settled in Hindustan; according to a writer † quoted by Pococke, whole bodies of Arabians having emigrated from their own country, invaded and occupied the territories of India, in an age of very remote antiquity ‡.

The following extract from the ancient Chronicle of Tabari is referred to in the Preface, page x, and may serve to illustrate Ebn Haukal's account of the Hamyaritick inscription on the gate of Samarcand. See p. 254, and 287.

The transactions here recorded are said to have happened early in the sixth century, when Cobad, the Persian monarch, was slain, and his dominions invaded and plundered by the Arabs, under Samar, a nephew of the Tobba, or king of Yemen. The account of this invasion, and of Cobad's death, as related by Tabari, with a literal translation, will be found in the Oriental Collections, vol. iii. p. 150; where I have given it as a specimen of the most pure and ancient Parsi. The original Chronicle of Tabari was written in the Arabick language; and this Persian translation was made in the year of the Hegira 352, (A. D. 963), by a vizier of the Samanian princes*, who inserted many curious traditions and observations of his own. See the Preface, p. xii.

And Samar also passed from the river Jihoun (the Oxus) and went to Samarcand. This city had a castle very strongly fortified, in which the king resided: one whole year Samar continued before the gates of this castle, without being able to effect any thing against it. At length he himself went the rounds, and took prisoner a certain man, one of the porters of the castle, and brought him into the camp, and said to him: "What kind of "person is the king of this place, whose skill and ingenuity are "such, that, after trying every stratagem for a whole year, I am "not able to take this castle." The man answered, "This king "is not by any means a person of sagacity: he is one of very "foolish conduct; whose only employments are drinking of "wine and festivity: he is intoxicated day and night: but he has "a daughter who manages all these affairs, and takes care of the

Then he asked the man, Whether this daughter of the king had a husband?—the man informed him, that she had not. Samar having bestowed him a present, said, "I have occasion for your services; you must bear a message from me to this damsel:"—the man consented. Samar then brought out a golden casket, and filled it with rubies, and pearls, and emeralds, and said, "Present these to that damsel; and tell her, that I have come from "Yemen in search of her; that the conquest of this kingdom is not my object, for all Khorasan and Persia already are mine; but she must give herself to me as a wife. There are with me "four thousand chests full of gold: all these I will send to her;

هزار تابوت زرست آن هه بدو فرستم و این شهر بیدرش بخشم چون این کار براید و تهام شود مکر از وی مرا پسری آید که ملکی عجم و چینستان اورا باشد و من بشب از نخست این تابوتهای زر بدو فرستم پس آنشاه اورا بخواهم آن مرد هان شب در سهرقند اندر رفت و این شخن مر دختررا بثغت دختر رای کرد و هم آن شب آن مرد باز فرستاد باجابت بدن و شخن برآن بنهادند که فردا شب آن تابوتهارا بغرستد و بشب بشارستان اندر آید چنانکه کس نداند و سهر قند را چهار در بود گفت کدام در شهر بکشایم دیکرروز سهر چهار هزار

"and I will bestow this city on her father, whenever these affairs shall be finally settled: and if she should bear unto me a son, the empire of Persia and of Cheenistan shall be his. I shall first, as an earnest, send her, by night, the chests of gold; and afterwards espouse her."

The man having gone into Samarcand the same night, delivered this message to the damsel, who deliberated on it, and then sent back that person to ratify the bargain; and to desire Samar that he should on the following night send the chests of gold into the city, and come there himself in such a manner that no one might perceive it. Samarcand had four gates, and she told him which of these gates should be opened. تابوت بیاورد و بهر تابوتی دو مرد اندر نشاند با سلام تهام چون شب تاریکی شد هرتابوتی بر خری نهاد و برهر تابوتی مردی موکل کرد با سلام تهام مقدار دوازده هزار مرد بسر قند اندر فرستاد و ایشانرا گفت که من سیاه برنشانم و ههرا کرد کرد حصار بیای کنم چون شها بشهر اندر شوید سرها تابوت بکشائید و بیرون ایید و جرسها بزنید تا من بدانم و هر مر دیرا جرسی داده بود پس در بکشایند تا من با سیاه درایم پس چون نیوشب بود رسولی دختر بیامد که در شهر بکشادند پس پاره تابوتها بغرست سبر تابوتها بر خران نهاد و خود باسپاه

On the next day Samar brought out four thousand chests, and put into each two men completely armed; and when the night became dark, he placed each chest on the back of an ass, and to each he appointed a man as a superintendant, likewise completely armed: thus there were to the amount of twelve thousand men. These he senton into Samarcand, and told them that he would place his army in proper disposition, and station them all round the castle; and he directed them, that when they should be within the city, they might open the lids of the chests, and come out, and ring bells (for he had given a bell to every man), so that he might know how matters went; and then they were to open the gate and let him enter with the army. When it was midnight, a messenger came from the damsel, saying, "The gate of the city " is opened; let some of the chests be now sent." Samar placed the chests arrived at the castle, all the men came forth from them, and began to ring their bells, and threw open the gates of the city; and Samar entered with his troops, sword in hand, and they continued to slaughter until it was day; so that blood ran in streams: the king was slain and the damsel taken prisoner; and Samar remained in this city one year. In the book entitled Tesmiah al Boldan, it is mentioned, that in those times Samarcand was called Cheen, and the Cheenians were there; and these people first made the paper of the Cheenians. But Samar called this city after his own name. In Persian Samarkand (with the letter 5). Kand (i) in the Tartar or Turkish language signifies a city. But when this name was used in Arabick, it became Samarcand with the letter 5.) After this Samar led forth his army and proceeded into Turkestan and to Tibbet, &c. &c.

The ancient tradition, here recorded, is unknown to most of the modern Persian writers, or, at least, unnoticed by them *. Emir Rauzi, however, in his excellent geographical compilation, the Heft Aklim, or Seven Climates, informs us that شهرنامي که از اهل تبع يهن بود آن شهررا وبران کردانيده چنانکه از آن عهارت اثري نکذشت پس از آن بشهرکند اشتهارياتت عرب معرب ساخته سهرقند کفت

"a person named Shamar who was of the family of the Tobba, or sovereigns of Yemen, destroyed that city, so that no vestige remained of its (principal) building, (a castle of immense extent, and said to have been erected by Gurshasp, and repaired, at different times, by Lohorasp and Alexander the Great). After that it acquired the name of Shamarkand (with the letter 1) which the Arabs, according to their idiom, call Samarcand, with 2)."

The same account is given in the Ajaib al boldan and other manuscripts, which agree in assigning to this city the highest degree of antiquity. If the tradition preserved by Tabari is founded in historical fact, we may suppose the gate on which the

^{*} I must also acknowledge that in one copy of Tabari, in my possession, it is not found: but the other two preserve it. From the more ancient of these, transcribed A. D. 1446, this extract has been given.

Hamayritick inscription was fixed, to have been that which the avaricious princess opened to the wily Samar; and it is probable that this inscription commemorated in the language of that Arab, the success of his stratagem, although we only learn from Ebn Haukal that it mentioned the distance from Samar to Samarcand. See page 254—287, and Preface, p. ix, x, xi.

The paper of Samarcand, to the manufacture of which Tabari alludes in the preceding extract, is celebrated by various writers. Although the Arabians do not pretend to have known the invention of it before the eighty-eighth year of the Hegira (A. D. 706), yet the use of paper was universal among the Persians and Chinese in ages of more remote antiquity*. According to Ali ben Mohammed على بن على بن على بن المعاملة (quoted by the learned Casiri) the art of making paper was introduced at Samarcand in the thirtieth year of the Hegira (A. D. 650); and he adds,

"heretofore the use of paper was only known at Samarcand and "among the Chinese." And Casiri† thinks it most probable that the Arabians learned it from the Persians or Chinese. "Unde "verisimile profecto est Arabes hujusmodi usum a Persis et

In pages 235, 245, 254, the reader is referred for some account of the Samanian Dynasty to this article of the Appendix; and in the Preface also, p. x. a passage is quoted from Abulfeda, which mentions a prince of this family.

The learned D'Herbelot, in his account of the Samanians*, (which he collected from a chronicle, expressly written on the subject of their history, and another excellent work, the Lebtarikh) notices a difference of calculation in respect to the duration of this dynasty, which commenced in the year of the Hegira 201 (A. D. 374), and terminated in the year 388, (A. D. 998.)

[·] Bibliot, Orient. Article Samaniah.

I find that, according to the Tarikh Gozideh, it lasted 102 years, 6 months, and 20 days: according to the Tarikh Kipchak Khani, 103 years, 2 months, and 11 days: there are still greater variations in other accounts; but all may be reconciled by observing that some historians do not consider Ismael as king, although he possessed all the power of one, until his government was acknowledged by the Khalif.

The names of the Samanian princes in the order of their succession are here given according to the Tarikh Gozideh, the Khelassut al Akhbar of Khondemir, and other manuscripts.

The Tarikh Jehan Ara and some other chronicles add the name of another of another limit Ismael ben Nouh; but the Samanian Dynasty is generally said to consist of nine princes, those who are above enumerated.

Hegira 330, (A. D. 941.) According to Kipchak Khan, the poets Rudeki and ابو العباس زيچي Abou l'abbas Zeichi flourished in the time of Nasser Ahmed.

The Cazi Ahmed al Ghuffari, in his Tarikh Jehan Ara, informs us, that در معجم البلدان مذكور است كه سامان قريه است در سرتند و بعقيده بعضي موضعي .60

"in the geographical work, entitled Moajem al Boldan, it is observed that Saman was a town belonging to Samarcand, or, according to some, a place in the territories of Balkh, from which the ancestor of the Samanian family derived his name."
